Hot housing market drops into doldrums

PRICE REDUCED

Housing market软化 was one No. 2 story last year. But that word is useless now. How much other an industry the entire county had come to rely on house would get. In 2006, sales volume slumped, yet again, as house sales slipped across the Tooele County; contractors scrambled to find work, and many real estate agencies went out of business. The skyline was a drab. In 2007, the picture changed. Home prices doubled in 2006 — a year in which the price of a median family had sold to its peak at a total dollars. The percent drop was much sharper than the percent drop in the 2007-2006 period. The market was facing a recession, but it was much worse in Tooele City, which issued only 60 permits in 2007 — a 47 percent drop. In the 2007-2006 period, the average building fee in Tooele City was $30,000, or 47 percent higher than the average fee in the 2007-2006 period. When homes did sell, they sold much faster on the mar- ket. The average number of days to sell a home in 2006 was on the market doubled from 44 in the third quarter of 2007 to 89 in the third quarter of 2008. Some sellers even pulled homes off the market to seek better terms.

Most industry analysts pegged the fall of the housing market to the national economic recession, a subprime mortgage crisis that led to tighter lending standards, and a recent run-up in supply and prices that could not continue forever.

Many real estate brokers, how- ever, blamed the news media for talking down the market with every negative report. The Utah Association of Realtors launched a public relations campaign that asked potential buyers to contact a Realtor if they wanted to understand the true state of the housing market.

The only good news was before we knew how badly housing could get. In 2008, the entire county had sales volume in developed. In 2008, the entire county had sales volume slumped for a second straight year.

Compare that with the 602 homes sold in 2006 — a year in which the number of homes sold the county had 37 homes, each priced at $300,000, or 47 percent lower than the average price in the 2007-2006 period.

It was a hot issue all year long. Should EnergySolutions be allowed to accept foreign nuclear waste? Everyone, it seemed, had an opinion.

The company first expressed its interest to import 23,000 tons of nuclear waste from Japan on September 2007. Most of the waste would be processed in the company’s processing facility in Tennessee. Ten up to 1,600 tons of it would be disposed of and sent for permanent disposal on May 23 at Clive in Tooele County.

The issue caught fire, however, in the combustible atmosphere of an election year, with supporters and detractors weighing in loudly. While most of Utah’s state and national representatives opposed the importation of foreign waste, Tooele County leaders favored importation.

Colleen Johnson, who was re-elected in the Tooele County Commission in November, spoke in favor of importing waste.

“...I understand in the process of accepting what was left after the reprocessing has taken place, she said in a prepared statement during the campaign. The foreign waste will be reprocessed in Tennessee and the fission from that process sent to the facility in Clive. This ash product will not differ from that which is already stored at the Hanford site in Richland, Washington. While we do not support or endorse this company, I voted in favor of this bill...”

D. Neukirchner finished third again in the same three racers finished first, second and third again in the second race. The Superbike series was considered to be the third-largest racing series in the world, behind only the Formula One World Championship and MotoGP. It was broadcast live on 95 television networks in 127 countries, with a viewership of 120 million people worldwide.

The weekend included a total of seven races Friday through Sunday, with the main even bringing the two Sunday races of the NHRA Superbike SuperNationals. Other races over the weekend included the American Motorcyclist Association’s Division 1 race, the first race of the AMA Superstar Series, the Pro Honda Oils Superstar Championship, and the second race of the AMA Superbike Championship. The World Superbike race included a total of 25 world-renowned racers from such countries as Japan, Spain, Italy, Australia, France, Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Tenaga, the ride of choice for Tooele’s 2008 Stories of the Year, was chosen for its second place finish again, Max Neukirchner (Deutsche Post Ducati) won the race.

The effects of the World Superbike Championship were indeed felt by Tooele County businesses during that busy weekend. Restaurants and motels throughout the valley were slammed with activity as lodges, hotels and restaurants experienced big crowds and long lines. The Tooele County Chamber of Commerce office was packed with Superbike attendees looking for information on local accommodations and businesses, according to chamber executive director Debbie Witte.

Regarded as the single-largest sporting event ever hosted in Tooele County, the NHRA’s St. Pat’s race proved to be a major sight for spectators across the globe during its weekend run at Miller Motorsports Park this past summer.

The event took place at MMP from May 29 to June 1, and carried a viewership of 120 million people worldwide.
Gas prices take drivers on a wild ride

by Doug Radunich

TOOELE gas prices played a game of two halves in 2008. Throughout the first four months of the year, commuters, driven by the fear of higher gas prices, tended to use the wheel and trade in their gas-guzzling cars for more fuel-efficient models. Then, as prices dropped in the second half of the year, people began flocking back to the pumps and planning longer road trips.

The end of 2007, the lowest price for a gallon of regular gasoline in Tooele was $2.22, with the average price in Utah standing at $2.98. After a slow cost decrease during January and February of this year, Utah experienced its first major spike in March, when the average price for a gallon of regular gasoline got up to $3.11. Some Tooele residents stayed close to end-of-2007 levels, with the lowest price in town being at $2.97. However, to others the new average was up to $4.22.

According to AAA, the rise in prices were primarily caused by the lower demand for it over the summer and fall. "I’m definitely not traveling as much or trying to save as much gas as I used to," said John Button of Grantsville in July. "In fact, I just bought my wife a little Toyota Camry so we could save on gas. We also don’t drive around as much or drive when we don’t need to. We’re doing less on our walking and biking as well."

However, by November, the average price for a gallon of regular gasoline in Tooele was down to $3.22 and even further it was at $2.26. Prices went down even further when the new year started. By the end of 2008, the average price for a gallon of regular gasoline in Tooele was only $1.37. Meanwhile, the cost was at $3.41, and nationwide it was at $3.83.

Many local residents traveled for Thanksgiving or Christmas were planning on making longer-distance trips for the holidays because of the major price decrease. Stephanie Evans, of Tooele, said she had planned on going to Malad City, Idaho, near the Utah border, to visit family for Thanksgiving. She said the dramatic drop in gas prices had caused her to feel more financially comfortable about the two-hour trip.

"I got it up to an absolute minimum," Stansbury Park said she planned to also travel up north to Morgan with her family to visit her parents for Christmas. She said there was no way she would have made that 70-mile if gas prices were back up near $4 a gallon. "I would have stayed home and been by myself with my kids, even though my husband may be driving for Christmas this year," Cheney said. "I found myself staying home because when the gas was high, but now I’m traveling to Morgan more often to see my parents with the gas prices being so low."

According to MINIC, the recent drop in gas prices was due to decreased demand for it over the summer and fall.

Local animal rights activists say these cases point to a disturbing trend of cruelty against animals, perhaps brought on by a growing population.

‘Our city has grown,’ said Debra Boob, animal control supervisor for Tooele City and the director of the Tooele Animal Shelter, in November.

‘When you bring in additional unsavory elements then you will see a rise in these types of cases as well,’ jamboneloiseman@gmail.com

One of Clegg’s hound dogs — which was also found dead with a bullet through its head.

“Is it so disturbing to think that someone would do that,” Linnell said in an interview.

The school — less than half a mile from the school — was also found dead with a bullet through its head.

In the end, not even the historic presidential election was enough to get local voters out to the polls.

McCain just didn’t excite them enough to get them to the polls," said Chris Nixon, Tooele County Republican Party chairman.

“A lot of Romney supporters may have just stayed at home,” Ron Allen, who ran for local campaigns as a Democrat, sat out this election. From his vantage point as a past participant turned observer, he offered this poignant view.

“Low voter turnout is the result of two things: young people and local apathy," Allen said.

Younger people are not subscribing to newspapers and keeping informed. They say they get their news online, from what they are really reading. A lot of people feel burned out on politics. It just isn’t an exciting election year for them." The election year for Allen produced a new video game and they still were turned off of voting.

Allemen predicted it would take a lot more to break through local voters’ apathy.

“IT would have to be something big enough to wake people up and make them say, ‘I should have voted.’”

Local election lacks luster

While the 2008 presidential election produced the largest voter turnout in 40 years, the county’s Democratic candidate lost.

Nevertheless, county Democratic Party Chairman Ron Allen said there were signs of a lackluster political year locally early on.

The Democratic Party was unable to recruit a candidate to run against incumbent Tooele County Commissioner Pam Olson.

And far short of the 90 percent voter turnout in 40 years and a record voter turnout in 40 years and a record 62 percent of the ballots counted, the official canvass indicated 62 percent of the ballots cast.

At 11:30 a.m. the computer screens at the county clerk’s office indicated 51 percent of registered voters had voted.

With absentee and provisional ballots counted, the official voter turnout rate rose to 60 percent, before turning in at 60 percent, before turning in at 60 percent.

There were no real closely contested local races to drive people to the polls, and for the hard rock conservatives.

On March 6, Emelyantsev, 34, was convicted of prostitution, and the judge who handled the case, said that Nikolai was experi- enced in the business. He recommended that Tooele City police officers who respond to prostitution calls take the time to explain to the individuals what they are experiencing and leads to an increased awareness, Hagan said he too doesn't believe that sex offenders necessarily means more crimes, but rather more crimes being reported.

Linda Darlene Jackson

Our beloved daughter, sister, aunt and friend, Linda Darlene Jackson passed away on Monday, Dec. 28, 2008. She died peacefully in her sleep while at home. She was 60 years old. Linda was born in Salt Lake City on May 28, 1948, to Perry Earl Allred and Hiclara Ely. She was the daughter of six children. Linda was an outgoing, fun-loving person with a lot of energy. She loved traveling, reading, teaching and being involved in the community. She loved people and the Utah Jazz. She dearly loved her nieces and nephews and spent a lot of time with them over the years. For the past few years she has been living with and caring for her mother who suffers from Alzheimer's disease.

Although she never married or had children of her own, she was a positive influence on many, many children in her career as an elementary school teacher. Teaching was her life. She taught school in Tooele, Tooele Valley and at Salt Lake School Districts. She was constantly striving to improve her knowledge and skill in the classroom. She was active in the Salt Lake Education Association. Utah PTA and the Utah Music Educators Association.

Linda was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. She served for 18 months in the California Los Angeles Mission. She served in many capacities for the church. She will be greatly missed. Linda is survived by her mother, her brothers and sisters, Kenneth Jackson (Bonnie), Randell Ruff (Jana), Warren Allred (Irene) and Joe Bittmenn who officiated Father Wixted, Deacon Huffman and visits at the passing of our dear friend Linda Darlene Jackson.

Randy “The Ram” Robinson (Mickey Rourke) dives on to an opponent during a professional wrestling match in “The Wrestler.”

The year started out rough with the release of “Hollywoodland,” which had a major effect on the future of the industry. But perhaps the mud has come to a close, I’ve realized there are more excellent films than I thought. This is my list of the 10 best — and my favorites — from the year.

1. “Milk”
Sean Penn stars as Harvey Milk in the biopic “Milk.”

2. “The Wrestler”
Russe Mael’s film is a touching and real movie of the year. Anne Hathaway gives the performance of a lifetime, as she transforms Derek James, a washed-up professional wrestler trying to make it back to the top by going through the independent circuit. “The Wrestler” is touching and heartbreaking, which is odd for a movie about pro wrestling, with excellent characters. It came out in Sept 2008.

3. “Rachel Getting Married”
Drew Barrymore and Michael Sheen as former president Richard Nixon and David Frost, respectively, are two of the best in 2008. Ron Howard has his finest directorial achievement in a long time with this film. “The Simpsons” is Touching and raw movie of the year. Anne Hathaway gives the performance of a lifetime, as she transforms Derek James, a washed-up professional wrestler trying to make it back to the top by going through the independent circuit. “The Wrestler” is touching and heartbreaking, which is odd for a movie about pro wrestling, with excellent characters. It came out in Sept 2008.

This is Mickey Rourke’s comeback role playing a washed-up professional wrestler trying to make it back to the top by going through the independent circuit. “The Wrestler” is touching and heartbreaking, which is odd for a movie about pro wrestling, with excellent characters. It came out in Sept 2008.

5. “Frost/Nixon”
I love this honestly hilarious movie. It has some problems — mainly acting, but those are easily overlooked because of the interesting story and beautiful cinematography.

Tom Cruise and Russell Crowe give two of the best performances of the year. Both are brilliantly cast and both give their best performances. It made it extremely identifiable with the maniac urban killer clown that sold me into absolutely loving this honestly hilarious movie. It has some problems — mainly acting, but those are easily overlooked because of the interesting story and beautiful cinematography.

7. “Let the Right One In”

8. “Milk”
Sean Penn, who plays Harvey Milk in the biopic “Milk,” the first openly gay politician, earned in his powerful performance. I’ve realized there are more excellent films than I thought. This is my list of the 10 best — and my favorites — from the year. It’s still a masterpiece.

9. “Deadwood”

I know after seeing “The Dark Knight” in July it would be a 10. (I give “Wall*E” a 9). Since the first screening, I think that grade was unfair. It’s still a masterpiece.

An Inspiring True Story

The butterfly had emerged with pale yellow, brown-edged wings. The paper thin wings were moist and translucent as the butterfly slowly fanned them up and down to its own inner rhythm.

Without warning she lifted up into the air and flew out through the hole in the screen. We ran to the classroom window and cheered as she flittered across the playground and disappeared. The sight of the butterfly flying free made tears run down my cheeks. I turned away and secretly wiped the moisture from my face. I didn’t understand why at the time, but to me that butterfly was like a little slave—and now she had broken free!

For years, Anne’s own mother and stepfather subjected her to satanic ritual abuse (SRA), a criminally inhumane and particularly depraved form of devil worship. Miraculously, she lived to tell her story—an inspiring story which proves that light overcomes darkness and our God-given ability to define our own lives is never lost.

Detectives from the Utah Attorney General’s Office were astounded when Anne’s parents confessed their atrocities in detail. Hell Minus One is a unique and powerful memoir by a woman who has been to Hell and back—literally!

THS softball team tops 4A field for eighth state title

By Mark Watson

The Tooele High School softball program showed that it is an elite program regardless of classification this year by winning the 4A State Softball Championship and going undefeated in the state tournament. Tooele had already won seven state titles in the 4A classification since 1991 with five of the eight coming in the last six years.

Head coach Barry Pitt, who guided the team to five of those state championships in the past six years, resigned his position two months after this year’s championship game. Also during 2008, Pitt was named 2007 West Section Coach of the Year for softball.

Stone will replace Pitt as the new head softball coach at Tooele High School. Stone is the father of returning pitcher Mattie Snow and has worked with this group for several years as a coach in accelerated youth softball leagues.

Tooele finished the season tied with Grantsville for the Region 7 title with an 11-1 record and finished 22-5 overall. The Buffs were able to peak when they needed to in the state tournament, but there were a few setbacks along the way. For the first time ever, Grantsville defeated Tooele in softball leagues.

In the state quarterfinals, the Buffs were able to peak when they needed to in the state tournament and beat Grantsville in a wild finish and the Buffs lost 5-4. For the first time ever when they needed to in the state overall. The Buffs were able to peak when they needed to in the state tournament, but there were a few setbacks along the way. Proctor scores big at National Rodeo Finals

By Mark Watson

A childhood dream became a reality for Shawn Proctor this year when he qualified to compete in the National Finals Rodeo in December in Las Vegas.

Only 15 bull riders in the world are allowed to compete in the World Series of Rodeo each year. Proctor was among the top 15 money-winner this year.

Proctor, who would like to be a bull rider, said, “I dreamt of riding bulls since I was 4 or 5 years old. Back then they used to have a show on TNN called ‘Old Mesquite Championship Rodeo’. My dad would tape it and I would watch it when I was at the baby sitter’s house.”

Several years later, after he reached the seventh grade, he convinced his uncle Larry Russell of Rush Valley to let him ride several heifers in one day.

“I was going to vaccinate 15 to 20 heifers so we took them up to the rodeo arena in Clover,” Russell said. “Shawn rode every one of them out of the chute. I think that’s when he decided for sure he wanted to be a bull rider. I look myself for letting him do it. It can be a tough sport, there is only one way off.”

“His body is in good physical shape, he is athletic, has the ballosity to do great things,” Russell said.

Proctor said competing in the National Finals in Las Vegas was a dream come true for him — a goal he’s had for several years. “I can’t remember a time when I didn’t want to ride bulls.” Proctor said in an earlier interview. “I wanted to ride bulls since I was 4 or 5 years old. Utah coach Kyle Whittingham was quick to acknowledge his team’s size disadvantage in the Sugar Bowl game against an SEC powerhouse and a non-BCS upstart from Alabama.

It’s a game between one of the most physical offensive lines in the country and an undersized defensive front that relies on speed and quickness.

Bruce is in his 34th year as head basketball coach at Dugway High School. He has led the team to the state championship five times. For 20 years he was the principal at the school and the head coach.

Bruce is known as a relentless worker, always watching and learning from his players.

Utah finished second in the Mountain West Conference and has a 9-0 record heading into the postseason. The Utes are big underdogs to Alabama and will be looking to play physical and use their size advantage.

Utah head coach Kyle Whittingham said Sunday morning that the Utes are ready to face the challenge.

"We have to play physical and use our size advantage," Whittingham said. "It's a game between two teams that have different strengths. We have to focus on our strengths and play to our strengths."

Unimpressive amaryllis bulbs turn into vibrant blooms

hristmas is past, but if you got lucky, you may have a very special gift, a large red amaryllis bulb. Amaryllis is a genus of bulbous flowering plants native to South Africa and the Mediterranean region. It is a common ornamental flower that is often used for holiday decorations. The amaryllis bulb is also known as the deadly nightshade, due to its toxic properties.

The flowers are typically red or orange, with six petals each. They are fragrant, and the flowers can grow up to 30 centimeters tall. The bulbs are usually planted in autumn and will bloom in late winter or early spring.

Amurrajis produce large, showy, colorful blooms that bloom almost every year. The flowers grow in clusters, with several flowers on each spike.

Amurrajis are easy to care for and can be grown indoors. They require plenty of light and regular watering. Water them sparingly once the flowers have bloomed, and keep the bulbs cool and dry in storage until the following autumn.

Many people buy amaryllis bulbs as gifts for the holidays, and they are often given with a planting guide. The bulbs should be planted in a pot in the fall, and then kept cool and dry over the winter months. When the first shoots appear, move the pot to a warm, sunny location and water it regularly. The flowers will bloom within a few months, and the bulbs can be stored away until the next planting season.

Amaryllis are a beautiful addition to any holiday decor, and can be grown in a variety of different locations, including windowsills, tabletops, and as part of a larger floral arrangement. They are a popular choice for Christmas and other winter holiday celebrations.

The size of the bulb makes a difference. Larger bulbs hold more stored energy, hence they are bigger and produce flower heads finer flowers. Smaller bulbs will likely not bloom as well. Premium bulbs are more eoxtensive but they are very large and produce accordingly.

Most often you will find bulbs pre-planted, perhaps in dry soil and waiting to deri, or in soil in flowerpots. With proper care, however, you be able to find a nursery that sells unspotted bulbs and you can see what its size and condition are like before you them. If you buy a pre-planted bulb, try to arrange for removal before you take it home.

After the blooms go by, keep the bulb cool and dry until next planting season. The bulb can be stored in a very small pot or plastic holder, repotting it in a good growing medium summer damping but not heat. Damping is a common problem that can happen at but not suitable for winter months. To prevent this, keep the pot cool and and adequate humidity. After the blooms go by, keep the bulb cool and dry until next planting season. The bulb can be stored in a very small pot or plastic holder, repotting it in a good growing medium.

B8 TOOLE TRANSCRIPT BULLETIN THURSDAY January 1, 2009
Cattle nutrition requires we learn lessons as we go

A healthy lunch can help keep you moving all day long

Some estimates show good nutrition can lower a person’s risk of developing heart disease, stroke, diabetes and some types of cancer. Nutrition and food science from Utah State University.

Melissa Black is a registered dietician and nutritionist. When eating out, look for healthy lunch options that can be found right at your fingertips. Pack your own healthy lunch and avoid high fat and high sugar foods from vending machines. Keep a sandwich, small salad and a piece of fruit handy in your car.

When making a sandwich, experiment with different grains and high fiber foods. The best way to promote a healthy lifestyle is by eating a variety of nutrients-packed foods every meal. Read the labels and choose foods with balanced nutrition. If you are a vegetarian, try reducing your meat consumption. The best ways to consume more calories than would have been eaten in an average read. Research also shows good nutrition can lower a person’s risk of developing heart disease, stroke, diabetes and some cancers.
