Sting nets drugs and guns at Overlake

by Lisa Christensen

Police and Gang Taskforce sting originated in California.

Capt. Paul Wimmer of the Tooele City Police Department said a California law enforcement agency discovered a half pound of methamphetamine in the back seat of a suspect's car.

The agency contacted Tooele Police about the package and the two decided to allow the shipment — with an estimated street value of $25,000 to $30,000 — to continue somewhat as planned.

$25,000 to $30,000 — to continue somewhat as scheduled.

Scouts attended from page A1 that attended the jamboree were part of a contingent of 585 Scouts from the Great Salt Lake Council Boy Scouts of America.

“It was a meaningful, exciting, and exhausting experience,” said Roger Baker who attended the jamboree as an assistant Scoutmaster for one of the temporary Scout troops assembled for the Great Salt Lake Council Boy Scouts of America. Baker is Tooele City’s attorney.

In Philadelphia, the Scouts visited Independence Hall, the Liberty Bell and several historic buildings. They also spent a night in Amish country.

All of the Scouts made a visit to Valley Forge. The next day was the pre-jamboree tour of Washington, D.C., which included tours of most of the major sites.

The highlight of the Washington, D.C. trip for the troop that included Egelund, was a visit to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial.

“Alain Marks, who lives in Tooele, is a Vietnam veteran,” Egelund said. “Seven members of his unit lost their lives on the same day. We held a special memorial service for his seven friends, and left a troopneck scarf, hat and other scouting memorabilia in the memorial. We also made sketches of the seven names and the scouts will present these to Alain later.”

The jamboree itself included activities that included hiking, mountain biking, mountain boarding, zip lines, rock climbing, rappelling, archery, and rifle and shotgun shooting.

“It was a very physical, very high adrenaline oriented jamboree,” said Egelund.

One day was spent doing service avirines in the surrounding community.

The Scouts from Egelund’s troop spent the day working in an old manufacturing facility that is used by the St. Hope Applied Technology College. The Scouts cleaned up the property and prepared the site for the school to use.

The service projects were part of the Messengers of Peace program, a program started by the World Organization of the Scout Movement.

“The program is designed to teach Scouts to reach out to their community and build a better world by starting by building a better community where they live,” said Egelund. Following the jamboree, the Scouts and leaders from Tooele that attended the jamboree were part of a contingent of 145 Scouts from the Great Salt Lake Council Boy Scouts of America.

The pre-jamboree tour continued with a four-night trip to Washington, D.C., which included tours of most of the major sites.

Obama renews focus on health care in US speech

by Josh Lederman and Jim Abrams

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama sought Wednesday to strengthen his case for a major initiative his administration has said is essential to solving the country's economic problems.

"It's really about a focus on jobs and growth," Obama said. "That's not an accident. That's an economic agenda across the country."

Obama's speech marked the start of a week of activity aimed at giving him a stronger foundation heading into the fall campaign season. The president said he would try to solidify his own progress and feel healthy. Yet, I'm happy with my personal progress and feel good about the coming months and continue the journey.

There's really not a lot more to say than that. There's no big secret to weight loss, just eat better and exercise; burn more calories than you take in. I'm not that far off $29.95 worth of advice given out more than 15 years ago.

"The whole point of what I'm doing has worked. Take that for what it's worth — probably no more than a grain of salt. I know that what I'm doing has worked. Take that for what it's worth — probably no more than a grain of salt."

"Well keep it up. Your clothes look really loose.

"Hey! You're pretty loose. My pants are always falling off, but I can't go new clothes yet because it's just the first month mark of when I lost weight shindig, so it's time for a new wardrobe.

"Well keep it up. Your clothes look really loose.

SALT LAKE CITY — Utah’s liquor board has postponed voting on a rule that could require restaurants to get verbal confirmation from customers that they’re not just there to drink.

Members of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission on Tuesday said they want more input on proposed language for the rule before taking action.

The rule would tell restaurants how they should abide by one of Utah’s more restrictive liquor laws, which bars restaurants from serving alcohol without food. Utah legislators are considering a bill that would bar agencies from setting up barriers known as “Zion Curtains.”

Commissioners on Tuesday discussed five proposed drafts of the rule, which say a customer can be served one drink once it’s established they’ll be ordering food.

A food order would not include takeout orders or complimentary food such as a bread basket. One version doesn’t specify that the confirmation be verbal, allowing for a patron to nod their head. Another proposed rule states that a patron cannot get an alcoholic beverage unless they have ordered food from the chef or said they intend to order food.

Utah restaurants are required to make 70 percent of their profits from food sales, a quota that White said she thought “would to some extent make this self-policing.”

Loreli Pavelka, the general manager at Buffalo Wild Wings in West Valley City, said her restaurant has had issues when determining whether customers intend to dine, particularly if a large party of six or eight people comes in.

“This is a little bit harder to get verbal confirmation from everyone,” she told commissioners.

Commissioners on Tuesday decided they needed more input from restaurants and others before whittling down the proposals. The board may take up the issue again at its next meeting in August.
Avoid disaster, be prepared when hiking the Simpson Mountains.

Once you get above the baked plains, picturesque canyons and badlands. The range takes on a different character from the Pony Express Trail. For many years, the Express Trail defined the southernmost and tallest point of the range from the Pony Express and other mountains. Poor Mishelle had the wrong type of shoes on and got terrible blisters, but the “bad” trail is worth it. At the summit, you realize that there will be long suffering.

In case I run out on the trail, I now carry a small supply of water in my vehicle as well now. If I run out on the trail, I know that I have some water left. But if I am really hungry and thirsty, I can take a drink from the Truck and race down the road to water. Proper footwear will also prevent much suffering. The Indian Peaks and the Simpson Mountains are beautiful as a region, but there are many obstacles to traverse. Be prepared for any eventuality.

at Mountain West Medical Center while other officers watched the house and wait- ed for the package’s intended recipient, one of the Camargos, to return home from work. About 90 minutes after the box’s delivery, he did, and the SWAT team burst into the house through the front door. Although all adult occupants of the home had been identified, they were initially detained, most were released.

Tooele City Police Chief Ron Kirby said officers knew that some of the people in the house at the time would not be involved with possessing or distributing drugs that all were kept at first while officers sorted out what roles, if any, they might have had in the alleged crime.

Conversely, the chief said, some who were not arrest- ed Wednesday may still be screened for charges by the Tooele County Attorney’s Office.
The search warrant wielded by police authorized search of the premises for drugs and drug paraphernalia. In the course of the search, a dozen weapons of various calibers and types were also found during the search, Kirby said, though it had been concealed by someone between when it was delivered and when the SWAT team entered the house.

With the amount of guns and drugs found in the home, and the number of people inside—nine adults and three chil- dren under the age of 6—Kirby said it was remarkable but for- tunate that the entire operation was conducted without a single injury.

"That’s something we’re very grateful for, because when you min guns and drugs, it can get very bad," he said.
The SWAT team pre- pared for the operation, offi- cers watching the house would periodically radio the team with information—how many people were in the house, and if anyone was left. At one point, the officers reported the presence of the three young chil- dren. "We don’t want anything happening. It’s only dopes," Wimmer said.
The SWAT team mem- bers, decked in more than 50 pounds of black armor and gear, exchanged concerns about scaring the children with their appearance and the actions necessary during such an operation. They wondered if un-armored officers could try to get the children in a different area if needed.

Kirby said concern for chil- dren in the area is common during such situations, which can be stressful for adults and terrifying for little ones who aren’t involved in the situation.

Kirby said Wednesday night it was unclear as to whether anyone in the house had the requisite amount of knowledge to legally own a Mac 10.

"That’s the problem with kids—we know we’re transmitting them, and we know they’re transmission," he said. "We just try to minimize it as much as poss- ible." All of the children went home with parents and the Division of Child and Family Services was not called to search over their welfare.

Sgt. Steve Gannese with Tooele City Police, said officers have had prior dealings with some of the family members, though not at the Overlake residence where they had recently moved.

"There are more things that you have to do with that you don't have to do with as the assistant coach," he said. "There's so much about the financial side of it. Fundraisers, getting in touch with parents and organizing all of that kind of stuff. As far as the outside stuff away from the course there's a little bit more, but when you get on the course, when we're in our practices and in our matches, that's the part that I feel comfortable." Fordham is excited for the season, especially because of the number of returning seniors on the SDSU golf team this year. He said he can't wait to see what happens with seniors Troy Osterman, who he expects should be a top five golfer in the region this year. SDSU had травещ this week for its golf team, at Stardust Golf Course, and the season will start in August.

the two teams will play another twin-set all games is the double-elimination tournament. Stardust led 3-0 in the seventh. Both teams were limited to six hits in the game. Mustangs out-runneled the Thunder with a pair of runs in the sixth. TC Thunder pushed it to 4-2 with a run in the fifth. Legacy closed the gap to 4-3 in the seventh. Thunder had a pair of RBIs in the game.

Fields struck out three and allowed only two hits in a 5-1 win over Southern Cal Surf and a fifth win. Down 1-0 after two innings, TC Thunder scored two runs in the third, one in the fourth and two more in the fifth to win 5-1. Thunder collected nine hits with a victory over New Mexico State. TC Thunder knocked 12 hits compared to New Mexico's six hits to win the game 5-2. Bishop and Arslanian each had two hits. Bishop and Arslanian each had an RBI. Bishop picked up the victory in the circle with three strikeouts. TC Thunder averaged a 6-0 good-play loss to Arizona Desert Thunder with a 4-1 victory to the tournament. Pitcher Fields kept Arizona scoreless through four innings and gave up only three hits, but she struck out five batters. Bishop and Arslanian each had a hit.

The team picked up a sixth win over Pegasus of Salt Lake City. TC Thunder scored a run in the first, two in the third and one in the sixth. Arizona managed one run in the fifth. Fields and Bishop and Arslanian each had two hits. Thunder collected 9 pair of RBIs. Respiratory three-run home run in the top of the seventh broke at 7-7 tie in TC Thunder's 16-8 victory over Pegasus of Salt Lake City. Pegasus added a run in the bottom of the seventh. Both teams pounded out nine hits in a big win for TC Thunder over a quality opponent. Arizona and Utah both had four quality at bats in the game. Banner picked up the victory over Pegasus of Salt Lake City. TC Thunder scored a run in the first, two in the third and one in the sixth. Arizona managed one run in the fifth. Twenty-four hours of sunlight, penguins waddling through town, and temperatures of 20 below zero. It’s all part of Alan Baldy’s Antarctic adventure.

When Baldy, 55 of Grantsville, heads to the southernmost continent this October, his five-month stay will mark his third year working as a firefighter at McMurdo Station, a U.S.-operated research center. October through February are considered the Antarctic’s summer months.

After training the McMurdo firefighting crew in Salt Lake City for several seasons, the 28-year veteran firefighter decided to join them in 2011.

His Antarctic adventure begins with a 16-hour flight to Christchurch, New Zealand, where he gets his gear of coat, boots, gloves, thermals, sweater, red parka, balaclava, hood and goggles. From there, he takes another five-hour flight to Antarctica. His first year, he flew on a no-frills cargo plane, which had web seats that face to the aisle. Last year, he flew on a commercial plane.

Once airborne, he takes his coat and boots off. “The boots are uncomfortable,” he said. “They’re called bunny boots because they’re big, white and awkward. They’re vinyl with a pocket of air that acts as insulation.”

Alan Baldy (middle) at the geographic South Pole. This cross (right) is a historic monument and commemorates the National Expedition of 1901-1904. It’s located on Hut Point and is near McMurdo Base. The Antarctic toothfish (top right) is native to the frigid waters of the Antarctic and has blood that contains a protein “anti-freeze” that allows it to live at 200 meters deep. A seal (above) sticks his nose into a hole that was drilled for research. With the nightless days, a sundial (far right) is still casting shadows and telling time at midnight. Award for worst garden pests goes to slugs and snails

Diane Sagers

The blue ribbons just continued to come in for the slugs and snails. This year, they won the award for the worst garden pests. The slugs and snails are mollusks related to shellfish, but are not insects. They are hermaphroditic, meaning they have both male and female reproductive organs. The slugs and snails are very destructive to gardens, especially when they start to multiply. They do this by laying eggs in clusters, which hatch into baby slugs and snails. The slugs and snails are also known for their ability to travel long distances. The slugs and snails are sometimes called "sli" or "slag" by gardeners.

Slugs and snails are not insects, but are in the mollusk family. They are not only destructive to gardens, but are also a detriment to the environment. The slugs and snails can spread diseases, such as bacterial and fungal infections, to other plants. They can also carry diseases to humans, such as food poisoning and rashes. The slugs and snails are also a threat to the environment, as they can carry diseases to other animals, such as birds and rodents.

The slugs and snails are not the only pests that are problematic for gardeners. There are many other garden pests, such as aphids, caterpillars, and grasshoppers. These pests can cause damage to garden plants and crops, and can also spread diseases to other plants. The slugs and snails are just one of the many pests that gardeners have to deal with.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Efficiency will be the key to getting things done today, especially if you can get organized mentally. What you produce will attract attention. [★★★]

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Take a low position. This time to rest and relax is highlighted, and tips that will enhance your love life are encouraged. [★★★★]

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You may be in a position to help and to help a cause or another person. Expect to get positive results. A self-improvement project will be a sensible version if you aren’t too fussy. [★★★★]

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Focus on efficiency rather than on speed. Especially when dealing with partners, investments or helping others. Your practical suggestions will be helpful. [★★★★★]

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Be open to suggestions. Reach for ideas from leakage-seekers. Not all the assets and investments don’t limit possibilities because you cannot see beyond the horizon. [★★★★]

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be cautious about what information you divulge to secret information. Don’t limit possibilities because you cannot see beyond the horizon. [★★★★]

TECH GURU

This past week, I have responded to several calls regarding a scam so concerning, it is making many around our county Tell continue next week with the “Homeowner” section I mention last week.

The common theme almost appears as thought as it is initiated by the con artist, but in fact it is a case where these imposters, posing as Microsoft employees, try to harvest your public information and use it in a way to continue next week with the “Homeowner” section I mention last week.

In this particular case, a caller indicates he represents Microsoft, but they are not employed by Microsoft, but they show you a screen on your computer that says you have hundreds of errors and that your computer is getting ready to crash. This is concerning because it appears they scan your computer and then show a list of errors that are supposedly plaguing your system.

They are all lies. Microsoft does not operate in this manner. In almost all cases, Microsoft will not even contact you unless you request something from them first. Since these criminals supposedly scan your computer, they state they can fix your computer for $199 and guarantee their work for six months. Once you give them your credit card, they will use your card to steal money from your bank. They will then pretend to fix the errors on your computer, they are searching your system for additional personal information so they can steal more. You must use common sense when using things like this happens.

If you are confronted by an offer like this, just hang up and do not allow them to take control of your computer. In most cases, they will never go on down their list until they get someone that is more easily taken.

There are some things to remember to protect you from this fraud. First, if you get a call from a business wanting any personal information or wanting to access control of your computer number you can call them back. Better yet, in this particular instance, they state they are with Microsoft and hang up and call Microsoft at 1-866-Microsoft to confirm their identity and service.

Second, if you make purchases over the Internet and the company you are purchasing from is not from the country, use another company as a firewall to complete your transaction. For example, you can make a purchase using eBay’s “PayPal.”

And finally, if you can, contact your bank immediately to put a block on your card. Better yet, in this particular instance, you can contact your bank outside the United States, you will likely be able to reverse money lost due to fraud.

Please be suspicious of anything or anyone that contacts you first, whether through email, the phone, or the Internet. Cyber attacks are our greatest concern as consumers and as a country. The only way to really stop these attacks is to show them that their tactics do not work. Of course they will think of new ways to steal from us, but this is the best way to put a stop to this injustice.

Thank you customers who let me share these tips so others might be more aware of these things I can warn everyone else.

Scott Lindsay actively promotes learning the consumer, regardless of age. In former one’s life circumstances and help thousands of people over the past 12 years to overcome their fear for computer users. He can be reached at Scott@MicroScottPro.com.

You know you have a birthday! Did you know you also have a birthstone? A special gem stone has been selected to be the birthstone for each month of the year.

Discover Your Birthstone

1. Find the month you were born in the box below.
2. Next to your birthday month, there are two symbols. The first symbol shows you which horizontal line to follow on the Intergalactic Gem Stone Locator Grid. The second symbol tells you which vertical line to follow.
3. The gem at the point where the two lines meet is your personal birthstone!

Color the Birthstones

- Garnet – purplish red
- Amethyst – purple
- Aquamarine – greenish blue
- Diamond – white
- Emerald – green
- Pearl – white
- Ruby – red
- Peridot – light green
- Sapphire – blue
- Opal – blue and green and white
- Topaz – orangeish yellow
- Turquoise – light blue

Birthstone Meanings

Each birthstone has a special meaning. To find out, do each math problem, put your answer on the line next to each gem and then find the answer in the list on the right.

Cut

The most common cut is known as the “brilliant.” This has 58 facets or surfaces and the light reflected in the surfaces splits into the colors of the rainbow.

Color

Most diamonds contain some color and the most common are shades of yellow or blue. A colorless diamond is both rare and expensive.

Carat

A carat is a measurement of weight. 142 carats make one ounce. A diamond that weighs a full carat is worth more than one that weighs slightly less.

Clarity

A completely clear diamond is said to be flawless but that is rare and most diamonds have spots or bubbles.

Temperatures of 20 below zero usually greet their crew in October, which marks the beginning of summer in Antarctica. In December, summer's peak, it's 70°-80° weather as thermometers register temperatures in the mid 30s and 40s.

Baldy said his first glimpse of the Antarctic surprised him. "At first, I thought it'd be flat and ice, but there's mountains. McMurdo is up on a hillside. Mount Erebus, the world's southernmost active volcano, has steam coming out of it all the time."

"When it gets up to the 50s, it's T-shirt weather. I thought it was just going to be flat and ice, but there's mountains. McMurdo is up on a hillside. Mount Erebus, the world's southernmost active volcano, has steam coming out of it all the time."

Baldy said. "You take a breath of air and you just want to keep breathing."

To preserve its pristine condition, cars and dogs aren't allowed, even though the South Pole's first explorers traveled with sled dogs.

In addition, everything dropped in is shipped out. "There's no garbage," Baldy said. "Every piece of recycling is certain to get loaded back on the ship."

The treaty protects animals like seals, whales and penguins, which are a common sight.

"Last year," he said, "we had a penguin walk right through town. You see them at ice edge month."

Emperor penguins stand three feet tall and have a six-foot wingspan. They're about 40 inches tall, but have a lot of personality.

"They'll run around and are a lot more active," Baldy said. "Emperors just look and waddle around."

The treaty also means that one doesn't fish our hunt at McMurdo. Even if the animal in question is a nuisance food like dive-bombing skuas. Five times we've seen trains avoid the aggressive birds.

"It's basically an overgrown sea gull with a wing span of five feet," Baldy said. "If you come out of the galley with food, they'll attack you. Some people got dive-bombed holding a tray of food as they were taking it into the galley."

Food is not as easy to come by as going down one of the neighborhood grocery store. The plane that brings Baldy and the summer crew in October still brings supplies, but the bulk of their shipments come on a fuel tanker and a cargo ship. An icebreaker precedes them so they can get through the channels.

During the summer months, residents get "freshies" like salad and fruit, but since they don't have as long of a shelf life, they rely mostly on canned and frozen vegetables.

In Baldy's opinion, 24 hours of daylight with too much heat, though "you have to blackout the windows so you can sleep. You wake up and think 'Oh, it's 1 o'clock' and you realize it's 2 o'clock in the morning. You can really lose track of time, because there's no sun up and sun down. The sun stays the sky."

For his job, he performs fire safety inspections on buildings. If anyone's doing welding and cutting, they're wearing protective gear. He authorizes their hot work permits. As an EMT, he runs an ambulance and trains others on aircraft, rescue and medical procedures.

Once, he got to do a rescue in a Condition One storm with total winds of 75 miles per hour, and more visibility of five feet.

He recalled, "We had people who were trapped in a building by a snow-drift blocking their door. We had to use ourselves off from building to building to see where we were at. Our total travel distance was probably the length of a football field, but it took in almost an hour to go there and back."

"We didn't know where the first was at," Baldy said. "We had to excavate the building to get people out who could parapet outside, temperature was zero outside, we had to find another building to put them in."

When he's not working, he goes on hikes or walks to the craft room. In January of 2012, as a reward for a good job, he got to take a three-hour flight to the South Pole, which is a glass globe on top of a red and white striped barber shop pole.

"Technically speaking, there are three South Poles. The barbershop pole is the ceremonial one. The geographical one is a survey marker as well. The magnetic pole has a survey marker as well."

Baldy considers himself lucky to be one of very few people who get to go down to Antarctica.

"It's a great atmosphere down there," Baldy said. "Real close-knit. You end up meeting people you become friends with for life."

"The air is so crisp," Baldy said. "Almost always. The runways of it all the time."

Sleep your way to the top: 6 steps to power napping

By Robert Pagliarini

In the least likely person to recommend naps, I’ve never known a supporter. I’ve never understood why someone would want to sleep in the middle of the day, not understand that taking a nap is unpatriotic, lazy and sneaky. It’s about a 17th Amendment. Why sleep when you could be working, reading, running errands, and doing anything you were asked to do? I would ask myself. It turns out, a power nap, done correctly, can help you become more productive, creative and help get more done. Now that’s nearly as solemn as the pledge to the flag. With that, I leave you to power nap.

A short power nap can restore alertness, help memory, improve cognitive performance, combat fatigue, decrease response times, improve motivation, and it makes you feel like you’re sleeping. (I, you were in bed over the weekend. In short, sleep — even a brief nap as short as five or ten minutes — helps you recover your body’s ability to perform better.

I first looked into my power napping after reading Dr. Tim Lohr and Tony Schorrer’s book, “The Power of Power Engagement.” In it, they stressed the importance of learning how to manage your energy — not necessarily your time — more effectively to live and work at peak performance. I’ve been power napping twice to four times per week for about six weeks now and I’ve been happy with the results. I definitely feel a little groggier when I wake up and for five minutes afterward, but the fog quickly lifts and then I feel more clear. Unlike sleep, however, there is a skill to power napping.

Here’s how to power nap effectively:

1. Make it dark. It’s a bit unnatural to sleep in the middle of the day; you’re going to need all the help you can get. Make sure your eyes will be closed, (i.e. don’t have to work through a thin curtain), and as dark as you can. That means turning off the lights, turning off computer monitors, etc. I like to suggest a sleep mask to block out even more light.

2. Make it quiet. Turn off the TV, mute your computer, put your cellphone on vibrate and turn off the风扇. If you have trouble falling asleep, put your phone to your computer or cellphone. If there’s any noise, you won’t be able to fully wake up for hours. This is counterproductive. The ideal amount of sleep is 15 to 20 minutes.

3. Quiet your mind. In the beginning, your mind will race — maybe for the entire nap. You’ll be thinking of all the things you should be doing instead of sleeping. Focus on a single need or sweet dream to get you to fully wake up. It will help you do more. Another important step is to simply pull it out of your supervisory conscious and leave it to the subconscious. Remember them that an after- noon power nap makes your practical and business sense and that, in just 15 to 20 minutes, you will be able to perform at your best while the rest of the office is in a post-lunch coma.

4. Have a nap in your office phone. To drown out external noise such as traffic, you need to get approval from your boss/supervisor if necessary. If you are first inspired to try napping, I definitely feel a little post lunch coma.

5. Eliminate the guilt. This is to get approval from your boss/supervisor if necessary. It’s about a 17th Amendment. Why sleep when you could be working, reading, running errands, and doing anything you were asked to do? I would ask myself. It turns out, a power nap, done correctly, can help you become more productive, creative and help get more done. Now that’s nearly as solemn as the pledge to the flag. With that, I leave you to power nap.

from the ceiling. And you can see through the clear plastic top to know what’s inside.

Here are some ideas for turning a cup of joe into a cup of fun:

ART OWNSHIRE

Store a small box of crayons, stickers, and a paintbrush for creating size drawings, doodles, and other messages.

HANDS-ON FUN

Put small containers filled with silly putty, play clay, Wikki Stix and other toys. Or, paint a picture through the hole and then flip it over to reveal a design from an open window.

HOBBIES

Set half of yarn in the thread and close the loop end through the hole on top. Knot or crumple a small project without a needle. It’s a perfect, hand-knitted toy for your kids, still meandering long distances by air as when turning around town.

You’re on vacation, and you just treated yourself to a glass of iced tea. It’s a warm summer day, but you’re just thirsty! Instead, wash it and mocha ice drink with that big receipt for your and the best week of your life.

The magic of the Audi A8 L

T he 2013 Audi A8 L must be magic. Sure, we expect the big sedan to be comfortable, quiet, roomy and all the other luxury car adjectives, but we don’t normally associate it with fast and agile, especially when it’s powered by a 3.0-liter V-6 and weighs well over two tons. Taken as a whole, the other components (supercharger, turbocharged 4.0-liter V-8s and a W12, which are rated at 420-, 520 and 560-horsepower respectively) that the transmission also can be shifted manually with the Tiptronic® eight-speed automatic transmission. The transmission shifts are smooth as silk but as positive as a well-shifted manual transmission. We like that the transmissions also can be shifted manually with the steering wheel mounted shift paddles.

The 2013 Audi A8 L is a ‘looker’ with classic Audi sedan features and stately elegance. We especially like the new high-beam assistant by a sharp crease. Inside, it would not take much to be persuaded to give up the front seats in favor of the opulence of the rear seat. Soft leathers, fine woods and plenty of room are certainly enticing. For those so inclined to give up the wheel or ‘shotgun’, the 2013 Audi A8 L is available with four multi-zone climate control, refrigerator and even a ‘relaxation’ seat (right rear) that reclines and even has a power footrest. The driver gets a big share of the accoutrements, too, with beautiful leathers, French stitching and wood trim. We also like the Audi MMI entertainment package ($3,200). This adds two adjustable seats with memories, entertainment package, four-zone climate control, woodgrain and even a ‘trimmer’ seat (right seat) that reclines and even has a power footrest. The driver gets a big share of the accoutrements, too, with beautiful leathers, French stitching and wood trim. We also like the Audi MMI entertainment package ($3,200). This adds two adjustable seats with memories, entertainment package, four-zone climate control, woodgrain and even a ‘trimmer’ seat (right seat) that reclines and even has a power footrest.

The 2013 Audi A8 L pricing starts at $73,595 for the 3.0-liter V-6 powered A8. The longer A8 L is $5,300 more. The high-performance S8 powered A8 (that’s a half-liter smaller engine that’s a half-liter smaller than the V-6 in a Toyota Camry or Honda Accord) is amazingly responsive, quiet and smooth. It also gets better fuel economy, 17 mpg city and 28 mpg highway, but it’s the overall character of the Audi A8 that makes it memorable. When included with the S8, performance version, the Audi A8 L is one of the most impressive big luxury sedans we’ve driven.

Certainly, we like the performance, especially from an engine that gets an EPA rating of 17 mpg city and 28 mpg highway, but it’s the overall character of the Audi A8 that makes it memorable. At 207 inches long, the A8 L is five inches longer than a Chevy Tahoe (and the Audi A8), but on the road it feels much more agile than we’d expect. The highway ride is comfortable and supple, while maintaining machine compound on all surfaces and even through tight corners. On the narrow mountain road we use for testing, it feels more like a smaller sport sedan than a limousine-style sedan. Many of the sophisticated features come from the adaptive air suspension and quattro all-wheel drive system helps to give magic, and as result, the 2013 Audi A8 L is one of the most impressive big luxury sedans we’ve driven.
