John Raymon Johnson has been named Tooele County’s Department of Engineering for the past two years, as of Tuesday a new man is in charge. Johnson said retirement had been looming on the horizon for a while — and being 66 he felt it was time to hang up the call.

Johnson is not leaving county services, however. He was the man chosen to fill Johnson’s position.

Throughout the years

Johnson graduated from Tooele High School and chose to pursue a degree in civil engineering. Johnson was married to his wife, Pamela Bevan Johnson, for 49 years — and being 66 he felt it was time to hang up the call.

Johnson attributes his success to his parents, Bill and Velma Johnson.

Raymond Johnson

A native of Tooele, Johnson has been employed by the county for six years spending most of his time and then some, Johnson has been a member of the Civil Engineering Department.

Bush aide on study

A researcher from the University of Utah Pharmacotherapy Outcomes Research Center presented the findings of the first major study on appropriate Medicare reimbursements for chemotherapy services to cancer patients on Feb. 15-16 to federal officials in Washington, D.C.

Gary M. Oldsma, Pharm.D., M.P.H., professor of pharmacotherapy and an investigator on the study, met with Doug Badger, special adviser to the president on economic issues, officials from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), and congressional staffers from the House Ways and Means Committee, House Energy & Commerce Committee, and the Senate Finance Committee during the two-day briefing.

The Pharmacotherapy Outcomes Research Center, part of the University of Utah’s Department of Pharmacology, was the coordinating center of four nation-wide inpatient studies in the participants to study the costs of preparing chemotherapy for delivery to patients. The CMS pays health-care providers for chemotherapy services, but the study found that the CMS did not have hard data to help determine reimbursement rates.

The study found the average first-time fee for preparing chemotherapy at the U of U Cancer Center’s community cancer centers in Provo, Utah, and Salt Lake City, Ala., was $138 per dose or infusion. The same fee for Medicare for chemotherapy preparation in other institutions, according to the study, totals $144 million.

The findings will assist the CMS in determining an accurate reimbursement level for health-care providers, according to Sharie I. Brixner, R.Ph., associate professor and chair of pharmacotherapy at the University of Utah College of Pharmacy’s Department of Pharmacy Practice and the study’s principal investigator at the U of U. “This is the first study to provide actual data on the cost of drug preparation,” Brixner said. “Until now, reimbursements have been based on second-hand sources.”

Another component of the study also showed that pharmacists who prepare chemotherapy spend 50 percent or more of their day on tasks directly related to preparing the agents.

Patient Advocate Foundation, at the U of U. The study looked at costs related to chemotherapy that included drug storage, space, insurance inventory and waste management, pharmacy staff payroll, equipment and other supplies. The costs were annualized and divided by the number of chemotherapy doses given at each site in a year, according to Brixner.

The condition can help control allergic conjunctivitis symptoms. For giant papillary conjunctivitis, a doctor may prescribe eyedrops to reduce inflammation and itching. Because conjunctivitis may be caused by bacteria or viruses, it can be very contagious. Therefore, it is recommended that people wash their hands often and refrain from touching their eyes.

In an analysis of funds available to states for disposing of chemical agents, the Undersecretary of Defense in the Office of the Undersecretary of Defense for Installations, Environment, and Energy (CWWG), believes it has identified $1 billion in potentially ap-

According to CWWG Director, Craig Williams, “The Port Authority is a strong partner in the USG effort to dispose of chemical weapons. We are discussing specific projects and plans to develop a comprehensive plan that would be beneficial to the USG. This plan includes the potential of the Port Authority acting as an intermediary to help negotiate with Congress the amounts and appropriation language necessary to fund the projects.”

annual snow goose a big draw for Delta

Lessor Snow goose have been arriving in the Delta area, and the Delta Area Chamber of Commerce and the Division of Wildlife Resources will celebrate their arrival February 25-26 and March 4-5 with the annual Snow Goose Festival.

Thousands of geese use agricultural fields and waters between Clear Lake Wildlife Management Area and the Jordan River as a rest stop on their northern migration. In the morning and evening, the geese congregate in fields surrounding Greenwell Pond Reserve. They rest upon the reservoir, or lay low in the fields, if the weather is bad during the day. By mid-March, snow geese have moved on and arrived at breeding areas in Maine.

The best place to see the white birds is at the reservoir. DWR personnel will have spotting scopes set up on the east side of Shoreline Shoreland and will answer questions about the birds between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. on dates of the Festival. A variety of activities are planned during the Festival. One attraction will be the Tracy Avery booth with live birds at the viewing site, as well as live bird feeding and showing of equipment.

The public is invited to attend. For more information, contact the Delta area Chamber of Commerce at 453-4654 or www.deласnowgoosefestival.com.

Bonsai trees require constant care, sometimes needing attention several times a day. Branches, density of leaves, and shape of trunk all play a part in the overall appearance. Therefore, they need regular attention to harmonize the overall look. Some bonsai cultivars are grown on a single plant while others are multiple trees grouped together.

Hands that Heal

Gilbert Majcher, of Mahwah, has been buffeted by nature over many years and centuries. The containers could be large ceramic pots, rocks or concrete slabs. The art of grouping trees to resemble the pyramids is as old as the pyramids themselves. It is required to see the results of training and pruning. They may resemble forests and groves. Enthusiasts also plan to use bonsai trees as elements that seem to be associated with the Chinese-developed it as an art and the Japanese refined it even further.

Bonsai are small trees that are similar to miniaturized, ancient, full-sized trees. At its best, the art creates an aged effect as though the tree has been buffered by nature over years and centuries. A bonsai requires constant care, training and pruning. Patience and persistence are key words to creating and maintaining bonsai. Because they have such limited root structure and are grown in a container, they are pruned, trimmed and created to look like miniature, ancient, full-sized trees. At its best, the art creates an aged effect as though the tree has been buffered by nature over years and centuries.

Christ suffered to save us pain

It must be emphasized that Jesus did not suffer in Hell. This suffering of Jesus is recorded in three books of the New Testament: Mark 15:34, Luke 23:46, and John 19:30. In all three books, the Passion of Jesus is recorded. These passages on earth are referred to as the crucifixion. During this time He took to His heavenly glory and many of the divine attributes, such as the ability to be present to every- where, see everything, and know everything, and humili- ate Himself by becoming man. During this time He lived a life that was like ours in every way except that He did not sin. He became sin on our behalf. That is, He took on our sin and carried it to the cross for us. Because He did not sin, He is perfect. Because He did not sin, He can save us, but not by His own choice. God's choice is for us to live with Him eternally in heaven, the kingdom He prepared for us from the foundation of the world.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God. "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called sons of God. "Blessed are they who are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. "Blessed are you when men revile you and persecute you...for the kingdom of heaven is yours. "Blessed are you when people insult you and send false witnesses against you...to destroy you...for the kingdom of heaven is yours. "Blessed are you when they speak evil of you and persecute you and falsely accuse you of the greatest things because of Me." (Matthew 5:3-12)

Bonsai trees are a favorite of many green thumbs. The trees love rain and the outdoors and don’t do well inside.

Bonsai trees can live to look as ancient as they often look from year to year. Give your parakeet something to talk about. Line his cage with the puppy pad. Your competitors can’t offer this. It’s MY PARAKEET!
Gilbert Majcher redid a boxer's home to make it wheelchair accessible. He wanted to show it could be both practical and beautiful, helping remove the stigma that is often associated with such homes.

A surprising bonus was an extraordinary vérité footage of extreme poverty. Directed by Rory Kennedy, AMERICAN HOLLOW offers an abundance of compelling stories about what’s exceptional people, along with over 150 historical photos, about the economic challenges of American society. The film is a modern-day Appalachian family struggling to honor century-old traditions while caught between modernity and inability to find employment and their dependency on welfare, which is presented in association with Audiences Utah Initiative and Opportunity Fund at the United Way of Summit County, to try and get them into the Home Builders’ Association. "When it's all done, the whole property will be wheelchair accessible," said Majcher. "And the home will also go to the Real Estate Association," he stated. "I decided to do it," said Majcher. "There are 50 million handicapped. In 1989 there were 40 million handicapped," said Majcher. "There are 20 million now. Majcher's dream is to be the start of a change to make things easier and more comfortable for those whose mobility is limited to a wheelchair. After serving his country, he purchased a home in Tooele in 1994, he had seen and the more information I came across, the more homes I looked at, there was no difference.

To prove it could be done a better way, Majcher went on to work on the house near finishing in Tooele. "I gathered everything I could from the screen tests, all the way up to the roof," said Majcher. "I put it all in new Millwork windows, ensuring that they could adapt the lowered cabin without using any tools, and includes walkways around the house and back porch. This system eliminates the need for motion detectors to turn lights inside the home, there are also accessible homes." said Majcher. Once the homeowner to shovel snow.

The changes can be expensive, but would be affordable if done in a home from the beginning. "I want to prove it could be done in a standard, cookie cutter home," added Majcher. "I will go to鸡栖村, chapter and verse, the cost is nominal, the value incalculable. This is what I hope to show can be done. Majcher plans to take the idea to the building community. "I plan to carry the program into the Home Builders' Association," he stated. "I will also go to the Real Estate Association to try and get them to put a box in for wheelchair accessible homes. I'm determined to stand by the quality of his work. Majcher hopes that eventually there will be more standardized housing for those who are handicapped. In 1990 there were 40 million handicapped," said Majcher. "There are 20 million now. Majcher's dream is to be the start of a change to make things easier and more comfortable for those whose mobility is limited to a wheelchair.

Despite suffering a heart condition early last year that put him out of commission until November, Majcher is up and going and is ready to be made available for those who are wheelchair bound. He is determined to stand by the quality of his work. Majcher hopes that eventually there will be more standardized housing for those who are handicapped. In 1990 there were 40 million handicapped," said Majcher. "There are 20 million now. Majcher's dream is to be the start of a change to make things easier and more comfortable for those whose mobility is limited to a wheelchair.
Moving "Mountain" doesn't pay off for WB

By Jay Bintsis

Q: What happened to the show "The Mountain"? There was never even been much buzz about it, and now it’s disappeared.

A: Let’s try to understand what you mean by "disappeared." From what you’ve written, it seems like you’re asking about the fate of a television show called "The Mountain." The show was a reality series that aired on the WB Network in the United States. It followed the lives of two single parents, Ann Romano and Robert Romano, who were trying to raise their children, R.J. and Sarah, in a world that often didn’t feel right to put it into perspective. The show was created and executive produced by James Darren, with David O’Donnell as host. Montgomery, Montana, was the setting for the show’s first season.

Q: So what happened to the show? Did it get canceled?

A: Yes, "The Mountain" was canceled by the WB Network in 2004. The decision to cancel the show was likely based on its ratings and the overall performance of the network’s programming at the time. The show struggled to attract viewers and was not renewed for another season.

Q: What will the show's new season look like?

A: Since the show was canceled, there will not be a new season. However, the show did have some notable moments, such as the character of Barbara, who was portrayed as a strong and independent woman. Her storylines dealt with the struggles of single parenting and the challenges of balancing work and family life. The show also explored themes of love, loss, and redemption, as the characters dealt with personal and professional issues.

Jennifer Finnegan gets ‘Committed’

By Paulette Cohn

There is an option for famous "The Bold and the Beautiful" star Jennifer Finnegan, who segued from her role on the daytime drama to star in the wacky NBC relationship comedy "Committed," as the kind-hearted, romance-seeking Sam. I was really afraid to tackle the role in any way other than doing a job couldn’t be more polar opposite. Finnegan says, "But it is funny because Mimi is very much the way that character I have played I am sort of a football and this allows me to tap into that part of myself.

As for a return to soaps, Finnegan says, "Never say never or, but to be honest, I am concretely looking for not only a challenge myself if I grew familiar with a certain medium. I tend to become complacent, and I have so much to do that I really don’t know what it is about what I do. Right now, I feel I am just having fun and I have conquered it. At present, I am doing something that scares the hell out of me, but I love it."

Over the Christmas holiday, "Passions" star Hugh Madigan (Kay Bennett) became engaged to actor Matthew Lawrence. The couple plans to marry in June 2006.

In other "Passions" news, ABC announced it is going to spin off the series an early pickup for its second year. While not a "Day of our Lives," the long-running daytime drama is to end at 10:00 PM (episode Monday, Feb. 21)

Dear Paulette: It is true that the actor who played Phoebe Wallingford on "All My Children" didn’t just see her character on the show — Kelley S. Port Washington, Wash.

Dear Reader: Yes, it is true; Kathy Frontier, who played the "AMC" martian, died Feb. 15 of complications from pneumonia. Frontier, who had a brief return to Pias Valley for the show’s 50th anniversary, Susan Lucci released the following statement: "Kathy Frontier was my first mother. Over the years, she not only shared her talent and grace, but she did so with the same country.”

Nothing says quick and easy meals like cheese

All materials courtesy of Wisconsin Milk Marketing Board

So many cheeses, so little time. That’s the good news to hear facing dinner time. More than 60 types, varieties and styles of cheese are available Wisconsin to help you put a dish on the table in minutes. On-the-go families everywhere can spend less time in the kitchen and more time doing the things they enjoy when they make recipes that feature cheese. Delicate, nutty cheeses can be enjoyed with fresh fruit, vegetables or salad. Middle-of-the-road cheeses can bring mellow, tangy, sharp, peppery, spicy elements to add flavor fast! Fresh cheeses, Cottage cheese, Ricotta, Feta, Queso Blanco and fresh Mozzarella taste great in salads, but refuse such as ham, chicken, vegetables, creamy pastas and breads. Semi-soft cheese. Monterey Jack, Muenster, Swiss, Brie, Fontina, Gouda, Edam, Provolone and Camembert are delicious in appetizers, sandwiches, snacks, soups, spreads, steaks, burgers and dips. Delicious, nutritious cheese pair well with with rich foods such as potatoes and rice, or fresh vegetables such as tomatoes, cucumbers, bell peppers and more. Semi-soft cheeses are usually made from milk. Cow’s milk cheeses are popular. Semi-hard cheeses are normally made from both milk and goats milk or from sheep’s milk and goats milk. Semi-hard cheeses are popular. Semi-soft cheeses.
If your kids received a wooden bird-feeder kit for a holiday present, now is the time to assemble it and put it to use. If you don’t have one, stop by your local hardware store or garden center, where you’ll likely find a variety of basic and inexpensive models. Make it a family project, from gluing or hammering it together to painting it in your favorite colors and designs. You might even want to make an extra one for a personalized gift.

For a quick feeder you can create right now, make a seed basket by cutting off the top third of an orange. Scoop out the fruit and eat it for your own nutritious snack. Poke three holes around the rim of the hollowed-out orange, tie string through the holes, fill it with sunflower seeds and hang the string from a tree branch.

Beef suet, a hard fat available at most markets, is attractive to birds in colder temperatures this time of year. Tuck chunks of suet in a mesh bag (use bags from onions, oranges, etc.) and tie to the trunk of a tree. Peanut butter is another good food. Simply save a few stale hamburger or hot-dog buns. Use a cookie cutter to cut the bread into fun shapes, then spread peanut butter on top. Sprinkle birdseed or oatmeal over the peanut butter, tie string through the bread and hang it on a tree branch. As birds come to your feeder, identify them using books, or check www.enature.com. Print pictures of the birds resembling those that you see in your yard or on your patio, and hang them on the wall by the window. Or, make your own bird chart. Cut out pictures of the birds and glue them on a sheet of poster board with their names and descriptions printed under the pictures. Now the pictures make cutouts of sightings as well as what they eat. Make a habit, and experience the joy of seeing birds up close as they come to feed. Eventually your kids might wish to take their own pictures and turn it into a friendship album.

Birding activities with kids

By Samantha Weaver

• Death by caterpillar? If that sounds far-fetched, you probably don’t live in Brazil. In the southern region of the country, you’re five times more likely to be killed by a caterpillar than by a snake. They don’t bite, though; they poison their victims. If you break up against one, you’re in contact with the poison contained in the caterpillar’s horn. Your skin will start to burn, followed by headache and weakness, within a couple of days, and bleeding in your brain will begin to occur. Finally, bleeding in the brain generally leads to coma and death.

• It was poet, novelist and essayist Andrei Codrescu who noted, “It’s not too late to discover America, which seems to get discovered over and over and never definitively.”

• It may seem that global warming is a very modern issue. You might be surprised to learn, then, that the first recorded reference to the greenhouse effect came in 1861.

• Minnesota ranks above all the other states in the U.S. in fishing-license sales per capita. Also, it’s been determined that one out of every six residents of Minnesota has a registered boat—all the highest percentage of any state. The state is likely for a country that is so inhospitable to outdoor water sports for much of the year.
