New $11 million project to tap growing demand for women’s health care services

by Sarah Miles

An addition that will more than double the capacity of Mountain West Medical Center’s women’s services is finally on its way to becoming a reality.

A ceremonial groundbreaking for the new multimillion-dollar women’s center, which was originally announced by hospital officials back in 2007, will be held tomorrow. Mountain West Medical Center CEO Kelly Duffin said the addition is largely a response to growth in the community.

“This is in response to a community need,” Duffin said. “Eighty-two percent of the time this past year we saw some at or above capacity for women’s services. We need to respond to that growing demand in a manner that meets the healthcare needs of the Tooele Valley.”

The roughly 16,000-square-foot women’s center will be built attached to the northeast of the hospital. It will have its own private entrance with walkways that connect it to the main building.

Duffin said the women’s center will contain eight labor and delivery rooms, compared to the three the hospital has now. The expansion will also add five post-partum rooms compared to the four currently at the hospital, and will include a separate C-section room for that procedure as well as gynecological diagnostics.

The project will cost $11 million, which includes equipment and expanding the hospital’s surgical services as well. The expanded surgical area will consist of converting the existing labor and delivery area into two endoscopy rooms and eight pre-procedure rooms. In addition, an existing endoscopy room will be converted into a fourth operating room.

“Clearly we’re at capacity,” Duffin said. “You can talk to any of our physicians and surgeons and they will tell you on any given day we are so full … [This project] is really a response to that — to make the workflow better for the physician and for the patient.”

Insurance claim dispute holding up Grantsville Elementary rebuilding

by Tim Gillis

Almost four months after a fire rendered Grantsville Elementary School unusable, the Tooele County School District has been unable to reach a settlement for the insurance claim for damages to the building.

The Utah State Division of Risk Management provides insurance coverage to the district. The assurance company made an initial offer of $3 million to cover the cost of returning the existing building.

The company’s offer was only half of the $6 million the district, working with MDTN architects, estimated it would cost to restore the school, according to Terry Louise, Tooele County School District superintendent.

Starr Van, construction coordinator, said the district is in negotiations with the insurance company for two months.

The district has filed a claim with its insurance company on Dec. 3 for the Tooele Transcript Bulletin Christmas Benefit Fund.

The project will cost $11 million, which includes equipment and expanding the hospital’s surgical services as well. The expanded surgical area will consist of converting the existing labor and delivery area into two endoscopy rooms and eight pre-procedure rooms. In addition, an existing endoscopy room will be converted into a fourth operating room.

“Clearly we’re at capacity,” Duffin said. “You can talk to any of our physicians and surgeons and they will tell you on any given day we are so full … [This project] is really a response to that — to make the workflow better for the physician and for the patient.”

School dangers not increasing

But officials say tobacco usage is growing as industry pushes more products to youth

by Tim Gillis

Tooele County schools aren’t becoming more dangerous, but abuse among students is an increasing problem, according to the Safe Schools Report compiled by the Tooele County School District. The report, which details incidents of “problematic behavior,” is mandated by the No Child Left Behind Act.

Violence and weapons-related incidents in schools were virtually unchanged in the 2008-09 school year compared to the previous year. There was no gun-related or gang-related violence, and no sexual assault. There was one incident of aggravated assault, which is defined as the use of unlawful force or violence involving a weapon or threatened use of a weapon, that did not result in injuries.

The simple assaults are typically student-fights, according to Louise. “We take school violence very seriously,” she said.

Health department switches to appointment-only for flu shots

by Sarah Miles

The Tooele County Health Department is changing the way it distributes H1N1 vaccine. The department is following the lead of other health agencies by going to a by-appointment-only system. The decision is based on the community’s needs.

More clinics held by the health department to distribute the vaccine have resulted in long lines and people having accidents while waiting. “Switching to an appointment system is going to make the whole process go a lot smoother,” said Rocky Whitehouse, public information officer for the health department. Adding the move should speed up the vaccine distribution process. “We feel that like that would be a manageable system, especially with the number of doses we’re getting on a weekly basis,” she said.

There is an appointment-only clinic today from 9 a.m. until 11 a.m. Then, the doses — 480 for Thursday and 11 for Saturday — will be announced via newspaper advertising and the health department’s Web site, according to Whitehouse.

The clinic this week will only offer the shot, not the FluMist. Whitehouse added the type of vaccination — mist or shot — and number of doses the health department receives changes on a weekly basis.

“Right now we’re in the vaccine delivery stage of distribution. However, these doses as fast as we can get it,” she said. According to Wednesday’s situation report from the Utah Department of Health, statewide the case for influenza-like illnesses for the past week was 4.5 percent, down from 7 percent the previous week.

H1N1 is here and we do know that’s what we’re dealing with,” Whitehouse said. “So we’re encouraging people to come in and get vaccinated as soon as vaccine becomes available, which is still for the priority groups.”

The priority groups for receiving H1N1 vaccine are those who have never been vaccinated or those under age 64 with chronic health problems. That brings the priority list to include pregnant women, caregivers, and household contacts of children under 6 months of age, healthcare workers, and individuals aged 25 to 64 years old.

Any adult who wants to get vaccinated can come in and get vaccine.”

With the increased concern over H1N1 and the need to vaccinate people, local vaccine providers have been working overtime to keep up with the demand. “We were able to vaccinate 6,000 people in the last two weeks,” Whitehouse said.

Grantsville City closes controversial intersection on SR-112

Move prompted by business, safety concerns

by Missy Thompson

A controversial Grantsville intersection has been closed by the Grantsville City Council, hoping to pave the way for a new business on the southern edge of town.

The council voted unanimously Wednesday night to close off the intersection of 800 East and SR-112. The decision is a revised from two months ago when the council, in a 2-3 vote, chose to keep the intersection open.

The intersection was designed to address two concerns: First, the proposed commerce would be built directly east of the intersection would have a right turn-in, right turn-only entrance and exit, which could cause for accidents. Second, nearby residents were worried about the safety of the intersection because of the angle at which drivers have to turn and the high speed involved.

According to the Utah Department of Transportation, no accidents have occurred at the intersection in the last three years.

“When the issue first came up, people were worried about not being able to get out of the area because it was closed,” said councilman Todd Gardiner, who also owns a business near the road. “People were looking at the other issues, safety and the traffic and things like that, but when you look at it today it is a nice, safe intersection and it is closed. However, looking at the business aspect of the issue, the city wants to help us do what we are doing — it becomes clear. For me it’s a simple issue. I don’t think we should close it right now and keep the traffic open. If we are going to close it, we should have the support of the residents.”

Several residents voiced their concerns at Wednesday night’s council meeting. The main concern is running a business out of the area, said Gardiner. “It’s nice to see that the residents don’t want the intersection changed,” said Gardiner. “I am glad the council members visited the home of a client concern that outweighs the spirit of the ordinance they passed.

But not all the residents were in favor of the decision. “For me it closed. But, if we are going to keep the traffic open, we should help with the downtown area and try to move traffic out of the area,” said resident Mary Hall.

Bill banning foreign nuclear waste advances in U.S. House

by Tim Gayle

A bill in Congress that would ban the import of foreign nuclear waste was approved by the House last week after passing the Senate in June. The Nuclear Waste Policy and Procedure Improvement Act of 2009, also known as the Nuclear Waste Policy Act, is used by the Department of Energy to dispose of spent nuclear waste.

The bill was introduced in response to Energy Secretary Yucca Mountain issue. The bill was approved by the Senate in June. The House bill has been referred to the House Energy and Commerce Committee. It is unclear when action will take action on the bill before it makes its way to the House floor.

Tooele City buys land for new fire station

by Tim Gillis

Tooele City plans to buy property for a third fire station to serve the north end of the town. The city council approved the purchase of a three-acre parcel of land on the north side of 1000 South just west of the future extension of 100 East. "The fire department has approved the location," said Tooele City Mayor Pat Dunlavy. "It will be fire station No. 3 and will serve the north end of town." The city will buy the property from Kevin Hunt, managing member of TLI Development, a Salt Lake City-based company for $294,030, or $2.25 per square foot. The purchase will be made with public safety impact fees, according to Dunlavy.

The property was appraised in July 2008 at $355,000 by a commercial appraisal company out of Salt Lake, according to Roger Baker, Tooele city attorney. In addition to the purchase of the property, the city has also agreed to sell to TLI Development a certificate for 20 acre feet of water credits in the current year. They sold wetlands for $15,000,000, the city could then use the certificate in lieu of providing water rights when they develop property within Tooele city.

Dunlavy said he purchase of the certificate could be very timely. "The city has applied for a $10 million grant to help build a new fire station.,"

"We're made it through the first phase of approval on the grant, and if we get successful in the second phase, the funding for the new station will come through about the time we close on the property," Dunlavy said. "We need to get the whole parcel of land to build a fire station."

Two people were injured in a head-on collision on SR-36 near Mountain View Medical Center in Salt Lake City Thursday night.

The accident happened at about 4:30 p.m. when a northbound blue Hyundai Elantra veered into the southbound lanes of travel, crossing over the top of a center divider median, according to Lt. Paul Wimmer of the Tooele City Police Department.

The Elantra struck a silver Saturn, causing both vehicles to spin around and stop at a side- ways direction on the roadway.

"They were both well-dis- placed out of their travel lanes," Wimmer said of the impact.

The driver of the Saturn, a 54-year-old Tooele man, had to be extricated from his vehicle and was admitted to Intermountain Medical Center in Salt Lake with serious injuries, Wimmer said. "We couldn't get the doors off so we had to cut out the roof," he said.

The crash involved occupants of both vehicles, the 44-year-old Stansbury Park woman — not transported to Mountain View Medical Center in fair condition.

Wimmer said police are still investigating the crash, but don't believe speed was a factor. "We're not sure what the cir- cumstances were for crossing over," Wimmer said. "She just didn't know if it was a distrac- tion, or what, but it's not like she doesn't remember. The accident caused signifi- cant backup for commuters heading southbound, as 40 southbound lanes were closed for about an hour while vic- tims were removed from their vehicles, loaded into respective medical transportation, and the scene was cleared up.

"We don't have a value that's connected with the time of the day, or anything," Wimmer said. "I think this is one of the things we're going to have to live with, just for the single crash."

D riving into Salt Lake City Monday evening for a Red Butte Garden "A Christmas Carol" movie, I couldn’t help but notice how dark the sky was. Darklight swirling below, where the Christmas music was playing. I seriously doubt it should be played more than a few hours before Christmas, but in that frame of mind to hear some Christmas tunes.

See, I’m kind of strange. I like this time of year — early mornings and afternoons and all. Once November starts, with the holiday season upon us, I’m almost constantly in a grumpy state — with the exception of holiday shopping.

Exception of holiday shopping

Therefore, with the holiday season

Insurance

The holiday season is supposed to be about family. Because the majority of mine lies at least 1.800 miles away or more, having my sister and brother-in-law at home and few new faces to love will definitely elevate the quality of care that yet — than to celebrate Christmas. Once we cross the hurdle of the parental meeting, then Brooks and I can really start to enjoy our first holiday season as a betrothed couple. Lindsay, I’m sure, will be more excited to help plan our wedding — soon — than to celebrate Christmas. I could have a misstep while jumping on a stair, which lead to a fractured knee, Diffen has a difficult time getting around. Since she won’t be able to walk with herutches until at least the middle of the month, I thought my parents would be the perfect time for her to meet my parents. Of course my parental unit, as well they’re just a bit upset that I haven’t seen my older sister in nearly four months. Not wanting to have the holidays without my parents to cook for themselves this Thanksgiving and making Diffen walk would only upset them, I chose the two together. This way, Brooks and I can really start to enjoy our first holiday season as a betrothed couple.

Diffen said.

Despite continued patient demand, however, Diffen said the hospital has not been immune to the effects of the recent economic crisis. "People who are selective about how they spend their money — in different ways. But for the few who have a physician patient — the patient with insurance or with some or any number of disease types — volume has gone up. And in a real sense that is the indicator of general health and strength of a hospital organization: whether the total population will support and sustain that growth."

Diffen said.

Duffin has been CFO of the hospital since April 2008. He said the primary challenge of his job has been fitting services to community needs.

"To be a good physician — meaning we are knowing in the community and we want the community to convey what those needs are.

He added MWMC has been very fortunate in the staffing area.

"In a small hospital like ours, we've been able to get a sufficient number of MDs and LPNs that we need," he said.

"We are still recruiting more than we've not had the extreme shortfalls that other hospitals in this county perhaps have seen."

Stansbury reaches state in first year

By Jake Gooden

STAFF WRITER

Despite their first year as a team and a school that did not exist a year ago, the Stansbury volleyball team has had a successful season by nearly any standards.

Only a handful of girls spent time on the same team last year and that was for a different school. That ability to come together and be cohesiveness as a team is the main ingredient that has allowed the Stallions to go 4-6 in Region 6 play and earn a playoff spot in their first year.

“I think coming together as a team is something that we have worked on as a team since the beginning,” said Stansbury volleyball coach Leah Dahle. “We have had the standard of being successful from day one and didn’t want to settle for anything less.”

No one outside the Stansbury volleyball program would have thought the team would be this successful after a year as a school as Dahle did. “Our goal right now is to settle for nothing less than a state qualifier that is something that we have in region.”

The Stansbury girls have been led upRegion 7.

The Stallions are open to all K through 12 in grades 5-12 and look for all players and their parents on Oct. 12 from 5-7 p.m. at UVU and Nov. 14 at 10 a.m. for all the information about the tournament. “They know what they need to do and they are working hard for this,” Dahle said. “Our goal now is to make this tournament one game at a time so we are focused on Mountain View right now.”

With the talent Region 6 teams like Highland, Olympus and Bountiful, the Stallions face some of the toughest teams in the state already and won’t be surprised by any teams during the tournament.

“Coach Dahle mentioned that her team has a lot of fun and is not working hard towards that,” Dahle said. “Stansbury has been led up through all the seasons by the strong ethic percentage of Canady Christiansen from the outside. Hannah Allred is also a threat from the outside during matches.”

With the athletic ability of Marinah Shublin in the middle, it would be hard to find a more formidable line in the state. “All the girls have worked very hard for this and they deserve a trip to the state tournament,” Dahle said. “We look forward to state and also look forward to volleyball at Stansbury for years to come.”

Stansbury will host open state Fridays against Mountain View at 10:30 a.m. at UVU in the McKay Center.

100 runners participate in Stallion 5K

by Lisa Roberts

On Oct. 24, many goblins and spooky creatures, even Adam and Eve, were spotted running around the new Stansbury High School. The light rain showers earlier in the day didn’t scare off the runners of all ages that came out to support the inaugural Stallion Stampede 5K. With more than 100 runners participating in the athletic fundraiser for SHS it was considered a great spooky success.

The race started on Buns Canyon Road down to Tom Laune, up Church to Rabbit Lane and then entered the SHS stadium where the runners ran one lap around the track to the finish line with a time of 2:16.34. Following the 5K, kids 12 and under were invited to run a 1/2 mile race. The course came along as the little ones dressed in their costumes can around the track. Each child under 12 received a medal and some candy for participating.

Following the races there was a costume contest where prizes were given. Top runners from each age group were awarded a medal and everyone that participated received a “I Got Spooked” T-shirt. Top runners were as follows: 12 and under female Veronica Collins; 15-19 male David Farley; 50-59 male Ryan Harris; 30-39 male Jason Ruebush; 40-49 female Camille Clegg-Patch; 30-39 male Jeson Barbee; 12-14 female Sabrina Roberts; 12-14 male Trinity Cross and Stansbury on Nov. 12 play at home against Woods Cross and Stansbury on Nov. 12 play at home against Woods Cross and Stansbury on Nov. 12 play at home against Woods Cross and Stansbury on Nov. 12 play at home against Woods Cross and Stansbury on Nov. 12 play at home against Woods Cross.

Hometown

Despite the onslaught of snowstorms we got last week, fall is still a time of brilliant golds, oranges, reds and browns set against the lingering emerald, green, blue-green and olive shades of evergreen trees. It’s a time of cool, brisk temperatures and the sound of crackling leaves scuttling across the ground in the breezes. As the trees shed their summer finery, raking becomes a priority.

Leaving leaves on the lawns is not a good plan as they become a dense mat during the wet winter weather. You will likely have dead patches of lawn next spring at worst and at best the lawn will be much slower to green up and look healthy next spring if leaves are left on them.

If the trees would just stay pretty for a longer time and then suddenly drop all the leaves at once it might be nice. One session of raking or blowing leaves and the whole process would be over. Maybe it would be nice, but that is not nature’s way.

The good news is that leaves are great for garden improvement. They improve our otherwise impoverished soils and as they decompose they add some nutrients to the mix. They also make great mulches to put over and around plants that need some protection during the winter months. To top it all off, it comes free. You don’t need to spend a dime at any store for this soil improvement. It is certainly cheaper than “soil pep,” steer manure, peat moss, compost and other commercial improvements and will reduce your need for such products.

Cake decorators have taken what started out as a hobby to a whole new tier

Vicki Fielder was just starting on her very first cake on her first day at a new job, when she and her supervisor from corporate headquarters happened to be talking the store and supervisor happened to be talking to the assistant food director about exceptional food employees. “He came up to me and said, ‘How many cakes have you decorated before?’” Fielder said. “I told him this was my first and he said he recognized my potential as a cake decorator and told the store director to get me in the cake decorating class for associated food employees.”

That was four years ago at Dan’s Foods in Olympus Cove. Now Fielder is the cake decorator for Macey’s Food and Drug in Tooele and has turned out up to 60 cakes in one week.

Fielder said cake decorating has been a hobby she’s enjoyed for most of her life. “I’ve just always done it,” the Stansbury resident said. “I’ve always made my kids’ cakes when they were younger using box kits from the store.”

At Macey’s, Fielder takes orders for Hi, My name is Laura Dern. I am a filmmaker and actress, but you may have heard of me as the wife of the late actor Paul Newman. Our son, Scott, is a filmmaker and producer, and our daughter, Chloe, is an actress. I have always been a strong advocate for mental health awareness and have made it my mission to educate people about the importance of mental health and to reduce the stigma associated with mental illness.

I am here to talk about a new project that I am excited about, a documentary titled “In Our Own Voice: The Experience of Suicide Attempt.” The documentary is a powerful and intimate look into the lives of individuals who have attempted suicide, offering a glimpse into their thoughts, feelings, and stories as they grapple with their struggles.

The documentary is a collaboration between my production company, Lantern Productions, and the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline. It was important to me to create a space for these individuals to share their stories in a way that is honest, vulnerable, and supportive. I believe that by sharing these stories, we can help to reduce the stigma surrounding suicide and encourage others to seek help when they need it.

While the documentary is focused on suicide prevention, I also want to highlight the importance of self-care and mental health. It is crucial for us to prioritize our mental health and to seek help when we need it. Mindful self-care practices, such as meditation, exercise, and spending time in nature, can help to reduce stress and improve overall well-being.

In conclusion, I hope that “In Our Own Voice: The Experience of Suicide Attempt” will inspire others to reach out for help when they need it and to be more understanding and compassionate towards those who are struggling with mental health challenges.

Thank you for listening, and please remember to take care of your mental health. Together, we can make a difference in the lives of those who are struggling.

Use disk cleanup to make your computer zing again
Microsoft Operating Systems freeze in a blink of an eye when you select “Disk Cleanup” from various areas of your system that don’t need to be cleaned, such as Temporary Internet Files, System Restore, Unnecessary Programs, Windows Update, Task Scheduler and more. You must choose those files you have missed using for a while. Disk Cleanup is a great feature that you should use on a weekly basis. Regardless of your operating system, you are almost always in pretty much the same way.

Click OK
Your computer begins to compile information and the first time you run this option you may see several warnings. When your system finishes gathering information, the Disk Cleanup dialog box will pop up. Click on the files you wish to remove or compressed, high-times files and empty the recycle bin. A separate window will open and show you the files that are the files you are trying to remove. A separate window will open and show you the files you are trying to remove. I don’t think I’m able to give a very incisive book review, but here’s what I found:

The book is about a community that is facing a lot of challenges, including economic issues and environmental problems. The author does a great job of showing how the community members come together to overcome these challenges. The writing is very descriptive and the characters are well-developed.

Overall, I would recommend this book to anyone interested in community development and social issues.

The Shepherd and the Fairies

(a Celtic tale)

adapted by Amy Friedman and illustrated by Jillian Gilliland

The Shepherd and the Fairies
ne autumn day long ago
Einion was herding his flock toward the town. A heavy mist came down and choked the hills, in that fog, he lost his way.
Einion walked and walked, but alas, he knew he was walking in circles. After some time, he came to a hollow place surrounded by rushes, and in the midst of those rushes, he saw a young shepherd called Einion. The sights and sounds and smells were richer -- dressing him in the finest silks and loading his pack with silver and gold. To take these with you, but make certain to come back here.
Einion departed. He climbed the stairs and lifted the stone and revealed a dark, narrow pass. He turned to see who was speaking, and so he smiled.

Cake

Fielder said there’s not a particular busy season for cake decorating, but particularly wedding cakes. “It takes 30 to 45 cakes to fill my case three to four times a year,” Fielder said. “And that’s because more people tend to get married, but overall there isn’t a huge increase in a certain time of year.”

According to Donnell, starting up a cake decorating business wasn’t entirely entry-level. “My wife, dedicated to the business and doing all of our children’s birthdays and some ‘backup’ cakes for the bakery of the store where she would work, was becoming a good source of complaints,” he said. “But she decided in 2001 to leave the bakery. She decided to transplant her case of home orders and decided she could do it just as well of a job without having to leave the house.”

After decorating cakes for family and friends for a number of years, the Donnells decided to display some cakes at a bridal fair at the Stansbury Elementary School. They received a lot of interest.

“We just started getting a bunch of orders and decided to start a business out of our house,” Donnell said.

The Donnells started their in-home business, which they named Bayshore Cakes, two years ago, and had to apply for business licenses and current-use-permit permits to operate.

Currently, the Donnells are in the process of moving and aren’t making any cakes until they have received the conditional-use-permit permits for their new home, which states the former has been approved by the health official and is approved for cooking and self- served sales and has the ability to sell 50,000 to 10,000 pounds of food, starting tips, refurbishing equipment, and can be a little nerve wracking but overall there isn’t a huge increase in a certain time of year.”
