Passersby who notice rich music, laser lights and fog machines might think Tooele City’s Main Street just got its first modern nightclub.

But it’s actually the newest location for Tooele’s New Life Christian Fellowship — a venue dedicated to youth and the community.

New Life has dreamed of opening a youth-oriented church location on Main Street for at least two years, Pastor Parag said, the children’s pastor for New Life. But it wasn’t until this year — especially the last few months — that opportunities opened up to make that dream a reality, he said.

“I came together very quickly in the last several months,” he said. “The Main Street location will provide a venue for New Life’s already-growing youth ministries. On Sundays, children ages 4-12 will be bused from New Life’s main Tooele location on Utah Avenue for a separate children’s service involving worship, games and lessons. Wednesday night youth meetings should also be possible for ages 13-18. New Life will also invite the youth church dance lessons to the Main Street location. Lessons for children ages 4-10 will be available on Mondays, and for ages 10-13 on Thursdays.

In the future, the church hopes to add an after-school, youth-led program to further utilize the Main Street location, Parag said.

“Though the new location is an extension of New Life’s current youth ministries, the activities that will take place there are open to all Tooele area youth, she said. “It’s an opportunity for the community,” Parag said. “It’s really just a place for kids to come and feel connected with one another. Fun and fellowship with one another is the primary thing we are trying to bring together.”

Parag said about 40 years attended Tuesday evening’s kick-off party — the first official New Life event held on Main Street. The children’s ministry staff officially began this location this Sunday. In the future, New Life will host its first Sunday service on Main Street. The facility is located at 10 N. Main St.

The Tooele County Commission has turned down an application from a Salt Lake City resident who wanted to extract gravel from the Stockton Bar.

On Tuesday the commission denied a rezone request submitted to the commission by Jack Harper, the owner of Harper Companies, a Salt Lake City-based excavation, sand, gravel and concrete company.

The unanimous vote to deny the application was met with applause from a crowd of about 20 Stockton residents who attended the meeting held in the county building’s old district courtroom.

“I would like to thank you as a county commissioner and planning and zoning department for not letting that happen,” said Kendall Thomas, Tooele County planning and zoning manager. Another public hearing had been held on the same application for the same Stockton location.

The commission’s vote was not preceded by any discussion among the commissioners.

A public hearing was held at a meeting of the Stockton City Council on Jan. 7 met legal requirements for a hearing. The meeting was attended by the Harper Companies planner, reported that the county planning commission vote on the Stockton Bar application was 6-0 to recommend the permit be denied because the request was not compatible with the county’s general plan and did not protect the sand bar as a geographic feature.

“The general plan calls for the preservation of open spaces in this area,” he said. “A gravel operation in this area would cause a visual impairment of the bar.”

The Stockton Bar is a set of gravel and sand ridges that separates Rock and Tooele valleys. It was formed by Lake Bonneville approximately 15,000 years ago. The bar is a unique geological feature that contains a complex and detailed record of the climate change, late glacial and interglacial, according to Utah State University scientists.

When meeting the commission, Harper Companies was successful in getting the county to reserve over 60 acres of property a stream north of the Stockton Bar for gravel extraction in 2011. These two gravel pits currently in operation on the Stockton Bar.

A gravel pit near the former town of Bauer on the north side of the bar has been in operation since the mid-1960s. The second gravel pit is on the southeast side of the bar near the former town limits of Stockton. It was permitted by Tooele County in 2006, after the property owner’s request Tooele County for denying the permit.

“Desert Peak may be the venue, but the rock is from our own backyard,” he said.

The Tooele County Commission has again denied a rezone request on the Stockton Bar pictured here, that would have allowed the extraction of sand and gravel from the unique geographic feature.

“Sand and gravel mining operations in this area are already known to cause a visual impairment of the bar,” he said.

Patrons of this year’s Night of Western Music and Cowboy Poetry at Desert Peak Complex are in for a treat — the opportunity to watch the production of an hour and a half of Western music, according to Utah state University’s Center for the History of the American West.

The cowboy and western patriots who come to the annual event have seen many stories of the West and its people. The event is a celebration of the American Spirit and the values it stands for. It’s a chance to experience the many facets of the American West and to see how it continues to influence our lives today.

The event will be held on Saturday, July 18 from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. It will feature three different performances, each with its own special focus.

The first performance will be a dance on the Main Street location. Lessons will be available for $12 online at www.desertpeak.org. Both the concert and the after party are open to all ages. Gay said.

The event will take place at 6 p.m. at Desert Peak’s concert center. The concert will be limited, but there are still some tickets available for $25 online at wwwwesternoutlaw.com, or they’re still available for $25 at the door.

Tooele Chamber will honor members

by Tim Gilfe
STAFF WRITER

Tooele Chamber of Commerce held its annual Business of the Year awards banquet Saturday at Miller Motorsports Park in Tooele. The banquet brought together the business community for an evening of celebration and guest speakers. The event speaker was Lance Banta, president and CEO of the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber will honor members for contributions to the community and service to their organizations and businesses. The awards are given annually to businesses and individuals that have brought together a diverse group of people to work on behalf of the county's progress.

EnergySolutions, a company based in Tooele, will be honored at the banquet as the chamber's Chair of the Year. The recognition is given to the organization that has contributed the most to the community in the past year.

EnergySolutions was among the largest firms honored for their contributions to the Tooele County Community. The company is known for its work in the nuclear industry, and it has been involved in many projects in the area, including the construction of the new Deseret Peak Complex.

Other award winners include:

- Tooele County Budget Advisory
- Tooele Kiwanis Club
- Tooele Rotary Club
- Tooele County Education Committee
- Tooele County Homeless Coordinating Committee

The chamber's Come Together Committee selects the recipients. Dinner and installation banquet begins on Saturday, Jan. 24 at 6 p.m. with a reception of the award recipients. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. followed by remarks from board president.

The chamber will also recognize members for their service to the community. The award recipients will be announced at the banquet.

The chamber solicits nominations — held in a number of public celebrations, and a past chairman of the Tooele Kiwanis Club and Masonic Lodge. The lodge is known for its community service projects, including the construction of a building located at the mouth of the Tooele County Cemetery.

The lodge has sponsored fund-raising events for the Children's Justice Center, the local food bank, and has helped put on the annual Easter Egg Hunt that is organized by the Tooele County Chamber of Commerce and Tourism.

Today, the lodge has 10 members. While Masonry is known in the public as a secret society, it is not. The lodge has been in existence since 1940. Etling said the charity organization came into Utah initially with the U.S. Army, and then with the many miners who followed rumors of gold and silver in the area. Masonry is not a religion, but a fraternity with members unifying in their belief in a supreme creator and seeking to improve themselves and give their fellow men a better life.

Two years after founding the lodge, members purchased their base of operations in Tooele City. Ten years later, they met in a shop on Main Street, just across the street from the Masonic Lodge.

ETLING ALSO SAYS that the lodge hosted a number of public events, including the construction of a building located at the mouth of the Tooele County Cemetery.

Obama's middle-class plans may hit close to home in county

President Barack Obama has highlighted his middle-class plans. He has targeted the small state of Utah for its middle class by discussing issues such as student loans and job creation. This move is significant as Utah has a high percentage of middle-class residents. The state has also been identified as having one of the highest rates of uninsured people in the country, which was a key issue in Obama's 2008 campaign. Utah's economy has been growing steadily, but the state still faces challenges such as poverty and lack of access to healthcare. Overall, Obama's middle-class plans may hit close to home in Utah, as the state's residents are directly affected by these issues. The state has a diverse economy, with industries such as tourism, mining, and renewable energy, and the government is working to support the middle class and create jobs. This is an important issue for Utah, and it will be interesting to see how the state responds to Obama's middle-class plans.

to monitor concentrations directly observe sources of road dust, which add a total of more than 400 million tons of PM 2.5 to the county's air quality in 2013. This is the lowest yearly total in the county since 2004 when US EPA estimated the total of 750 million tons. The gradual decline in dirt roads driven could also be good news for Tooele County's air quality. The most population parts of Tooele Valley are considered airsheds areas, meaning the EPA has declared that Tooele Valley air quality is unhealthy or worse than certain days when various other factors have contributed. To achieve a decrease in the amount of PM 2.5, a pollutant that primarily affects people with heart or lung disease, the county has decreased the number of vehicles on the roads.

In its most recent report, the Utah Department of Health recommended a decrease in the number of PM 2.5 by 2020. The number of PM 2.5 in the county has decreased by 15 percent, or 1.3 tons per day, since 2010. The county is working on the adoption of a new air quality management plan.

total number of new homes listed for sale in 2013 was up 9 percent at 3,195 to 3,213 in 2012. According to the report, along with lower prices compared to previous years, Tooele’s low inventory of homes adds to the county’s reputation as a hot real estate market.

The report notes that total sales of homes, including new and existing properties, in Tooele County, according to Coldwell Banker, were warrants, traffic offenses, and other complaints. The report notes that total sales of homes, including new and existing properties, in Tooele County, according to Coldwell Banker, service did rise by 506 to 5,421 in 2014.

The Tooele City Police Department doesn’t have any warrants outstanding as of the beginning of 2014, Turnbow said. The department’s total calls for service did rise by 506 to 5,421 in 2014, but that figure includes domestic disputes, traffic tickets, and vehicle identification number checks. He noted that total calls have risen by an average of 13 percent over the past two years. The report notes that warrants in Grantsville service did not rise. The department’s Facebook page has more than 2,700 followers, was started about two years ago.

Traffic stops also declined in 2014, from 3,213 to 3,195. A more significant drop was in traffic citations, which fell by 380 to 1,957. ”I think the report addressed our problems with drugs,” he said.

While it seems like once you get one off the street, somebody slides in and replaces that one, it’s also a good tool for communication with police on a more informal level. NextDoor, it’s also a good tool for informing the public of crimes.

For every 100 stops, Grantsville police have three complaints. The past year also saw a decrease in the number of complaints against the police department. Turner noted that the police department was a good sign. ”We have seen many of the numbers in the report rise or fall and decrease, Turner said.

Food is easily the most-overlooked thing about sports events

Tavl Stucki
STAFF WRITER

There really only one reason I become a sports reporter, and that was because it’s easy to watch sports your whole life. For what I didn’t realize how often we all feed, which led to the creation of the list of the top-five foods at home games at the high school.

BYO food at the cataract Tavn Stucki

Up to this point, the only meals I had on the job were what I purchased around the high school’s PTO concession stands and fast food options at school during road games. When I arrived at the 2016 Utah Fish & Game Conservation Cataract Tour in Grantsville, Utah, I was excited for all the new food choices at all-you-can-eat buffets — but I wasn’t very picky about it and wasn’t afraid to eat it.

I sampled all kinds of foods offered, and I was happy with most of it. However, I managed to taste the following at the sports event on Thursday night, which was the best scores that just made better.

These were delicious curry

Tuesday night, which outscored Stansbury 30-23 in the second quarter and made it 26-17 with 2:41 left in the half. As much in the Cowboy offense was falling, Detweiler said the defense was there. “We struggled defensively in the first quarter to get stops,” Detweiler said. “What stops the opposition is not just a missed shot, there needs to be a rebound on that too. We need to focus on one getting a stop with a missed shot, and then getting the basketball. Opening with a seven-point deficit, Detweiler’s team scored back-to-back baskets on unmarked cuts to the basket, causing Wilcox to call timeout.

The Cowboys forced five straight defensive turnovers, and was able to move the ball down after that to send it into the second quarter with a 10-9 deficit at halftime. Winning Strokes

As the 2014-15 swim season winds down in the coming weeks, athletes at Tooele, Stansbury and Grantsville High Schools have made a name for themselves in the sport. While all three teams practice and hold their home meets at the Pratt Aquatic Center across the street from Tooele High School, swimmers on each team have developed a friendly rivalry with their counterparts across the valley. In the offseason, many of these high schoolers will join forces to form a county-inclusive club water polo team, but until then don’t expect anyone to slow down to let a rival take a winning place.

PARKANNAU, Alaska (AP) — A group of tourists who ran up the "Rocky" steps in Philadelphia got a knockout photo at the top — a smile until they looked back.

Peter Rowe said he and two friends had just finished running up the streetcar at the Philadelphia Museum of Art on Saturday when they saw Sylvester Stallone.

"He said to us, 'Man, you guys are fast. You're making me look bad!'" Rowe said Tuesday.

Stallone stopped for a selfie with the trio, putting up one fist.

"Look tough, guys!" he said, according to Rowe.

Stallone made the art museum's steps famous in his first turn as fictional boxer Rocky Balboa, who used them as part of his training regimen.

Thousands of people line the steps each year to re-create the run and to take pictures with a Rocky statue, which originally was a prop in the movie, "Rocky III." Stallone is in Philadelphia for the shooting of "Creed," the latest installment in the series.

"What are the chances of meeting him, that celebrity, right there?" said Rowe of the Stallone encounter, calling it "an unusual experience."

Garden troubleshooting and shopping: How do you shop for your gardening needs? How do you troubleshoot it? While it’s impossible to cover all the areas covered in the classes, here are some tips on what to do:

1. Always shop local. If there’s a plant you are looking for, shop local, as it will be better grown in the area.
2. Always compare prices. Look for sales and deals to save money.
3. Always ask for advice. If you’re unsure about a plant or product, ask for advice from a nursery worker.

2. Select “Disk Doctor” from the list of apps.
3. Select “Disk Doctor” from the list of apps.
4. Click “Open.”

The “Welcome to Disk Doctor” box will open with its logo and a message. Click “Next” and then select “Disk Doctor Free.”

Another message appears asking you to accept the terms on Disk Doctor needs to access your Mac. Select “Select User Folder” button and then select “Choose.”

Once this process is finished, a box will appear indicating specific areas of your system and the amount of data in those areas. To select an area to scan, you will indicate the amount of data that will be included inside the box. At the bottom of the box, you may notice some areas that are not selected if you choose them. Click “Scan.”

By clicking this, you will begin the scan. A message will come up indicating the process and the computer will be running for a while before it is finished. Once the scan is finished, you can close the box. If you want to run the scan again, you can simply run the program and select the areas you want to scan.

I recommend running the scan daily, just like you would scan your data and the downloads data. However, if you see any files or apps in any of these areas that you want to remove, leave them turned on. If you want to remove, leave them turned on. Mother wolf spiders attentively care for their hatchlings

Wolf spiders, known for their prudence and maternal care, are a highly protective species and do all they can to keep their hatchlings safe for as long as possible. Unreptiled wolf spiders will wrap their eggs in silk-covered hull and carry the egg sac wherever they go, even while they are mating. Another precaution borders keeping their eggs at heart. It means that the females will keep their offspring in sight so that they don’t freeze or drag on the ground. In fact, if the eggs detach from the spinneret unknowingly, she will search and track it until it is retrieved.

This attitude is fascinating, but wolf spiders are not the only species that carry around their egg sacs. They are how-ever, the only spider on earth that willingly carries around their hatchlings. After nine to 27 days of holding the egg sac, the offspring hatch and then all the females will leave and hunt for themselves, which would take a few weeks. During the time that wolf spiders are mothering, the females are known to be aggressive and often on the alert while carrying an egg sac or their hatchlings. Although they are not deadly or venoms, they can be painful and similar to a sting. However, wolf spiders possess many advantages in order to avoid predators, making fires from these spiders uncommon in humans. Other distinctive behaviors include the use of keen eyesight, sensitivity to vibration, habitat-like body colors for camouflage and speed, and retreating.

The only downside here about wolf spiders is that they sneak in and hide for the winter. On the other hand, they are excellent predators and will feed on ants, aphids, beetles, cockroaches, grasshoppers, and many other smaller insects.

"Don Martin: Three Decades of His Greatest Works"

Don Martin, perhaps better known as Dean Martin, defined the zany mad-men style that ran Mad magazine. His ‘buy work appeared regularly every issue of Mad until 1970. As a Mad regular for 30 years, he also illustrated several fiction for such music legends as Miles Davis and Stan Getz.

Martin was born in Patterson, New Jersey, in 1933. He studied at the Newark school of Fine and Industrial Art before eventually graduating from the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in 1952. He worked at various jobs before getting his first real break when a submission was accepted by Mad magazine and published in its September 1956 issue. In this latest installment in the Mad's Greatest Artists series, more than 300 strips of Martin's work are featured, including such classics as his "Guide to Some Very Cute Couples," "Sound Effects," "Spider-Man," "Spider-Man The Barbiturate," "Conehead The Barbiturate," "Spider-Man," "Spider-Man's Ocean vz." From these, "Spider-Man's Ocean vz." is timeless, and Martin's work is perfect proof. Much of it is just as amusing today as it was when first published decades ago. If you aren’t familiar with Don Martin, grab this book, make yourself comfortable and prepare to laugh out loud.
In shallow salty waters and rivers, a large, slow-moving creature swims and grazes. It is called a manatee. A shy and very gentle herbivore, it is completely harmless.

For almost 50 million years, manatees have grazed the earth’s tropical lagoons, rivers and bays. In Florida alone, there were once thousands of manatees. But now there are less than 3,000 in Florida. They are in danger of becoming extinct.

Standards Link: Life Science; Sorting living things into groups based on similarity and differences in various traits.

What’s That?
Manatees are mammals. To what animal is the manatee related? Complete the maze to discover the answer.

The Mermaid Legend
Long ago, sailors told tales of lovely sea creatures called mermaids. When early European explorers first saw manatees, they thought they were mermaids. Christopher Columbus wrote in his log book that they were not as beautiful as he had thought they would be. “They are not as beautiful as they are painted, to some extent they have a human appearance in the face.”

Standards Link: Literary Analysis; Understanding the origin and form of a passage.

Find at least five differences between what Pirate Pete thinks he sees and what is really there.

Manatee Facts
Manatees come up for air every 1 to 2 minutes. Adult manatees eat over 100 pounds of water plants each day.

Manatee calves are 3 feet (1 meter) long when they are born and weigh about 100 pounds. They grow to be about 8 feet-long and weigh about 3,000 pounds.

Manatees are the state marine mammals of Florida

In 1981 singer/songwriter Jimmy Buffet and Bob Graham, who was then governor of Florida, started the Save the Manatee Club because manatees were put on the international endangered wildlife list. The goal of the club is to protect the habitats where manatees live and reduce manatee deaths due to human interaction.

On their website you can watch manatees on their web cam during the season. The scars on their bodies identify individual manatees.

You can also adopt a real manatee through the club and help protect those manatees at one of three locations in Florida. On registration you get a full biography and a picture of “your” manatee.

For more information go to savethemanatee.org/coolstuff and to adopt call 1-800-432-5646.
