County reviewing 10 suitors for Miller racetrack

by Tim Gillie

Tooele County is courting several suitors that want to take over Miller Motorsports Park after the Miller family walks away from the racetrack this fall. The county received around a dozen offers from organizations and individuals that want to buy or lease the property after the Larry H. Miller Group announced in May that it would not renew its lease with the county, according to Tooele County Commissioner Shannon Milne. “We’ve narrowed the list down to 10 serious suitors,” he said. The list includes foreign national companies, corporations, and wealthy individuals, according to Milne. The commissioner declined to divulge the identity of any suitors or details of negotiations at this time. The Miller Group will cease operation of the track at the end of the racing season on Oct. 31, 2015. Milne is optimistic that a new group can be found to lease and operate the Motorsports Park, or buy the property with the intent of operating the park for the public. “The Miller Group has been very cooperative and has fol- lowed through on their promise to make a smooth transition to a new operator,” Milne said. It was no secret that racetrack had been struggling financially for years. MMP opened in April 2006. NEWSDAY/OILFIELD PLUS

Soldier surprises family with early homecoming

by Steve House

SOLDIER STORY

Sydney Ross had just returned to her job at the front desk of Tooele City’s Pratt Aquatic Center on Thursday, having finished hosting a birthday party for her daugh- ter, Addison, at the pool. To her surprise, a few famil- iers, friends and neighbors that hadn’t attended the party began to trickle into the lobby. Mike confirmed than suspi- cions. Sydney Ross asked her neighbor, Gene Balf, what he was doing there. He said he had been planning the surprise all week. He was there to get flowers, but then she opened the door and let her in from Africa. She let out an excited scream and sprinted across the lobby and into his arms. Todd Ross, of Stansbury Park, was home early on leave from Africa.

Country Fan Fest hopes to become a local event

by Donna Persons

STAFF WRITER

With big-name headliners such as Montgomery Gentry, Trace Adkins and Clint Black, Country Fan Fest has all the makings of a national event. But while the concert’s promoter hopes to draw fans from everywhere, event spokesman Jason Stark said they also hope to make the half-24 music festival limited at Deseret Peak Complex a local event. “This is a Tooele festival,” he said. “Obviously people will come from all over, but that’s what we want to remain, that

Bitner: Village Boulevard expansion will proceed

by Tim Gillie

STAFF WRITER

Ground between the end of Village Boulevard and SR-131 in Stansbury Park remains unreclaimed since a groundbreaking six weeks ago, but county officials say the road expansion will be completed by the end of 2015. “It looks like nothing has been done,” said Tooele County Commissioner Chairman Wade Bitner. “But we have been busy com- pleting the paperwork that needs to be done before construction can start.” The county has been working on立项 agreements to finance the project. The design and engineering elements for the project also need to be completed so it can be put out to bid. Bitner said, “We should be able to put the project out to bid in two weeks.” The Village Boulevard expansion project is expected to

Lyman crowned Miss Tooele City

After nearly $1M investment, new gun store opens its doors

by Tim Callis

Firearms purveyors have a new place to check out in the old Goodyear tire store at the southwest corner of Murray’s Murray, parking lot in Tooele City.

Guns enthusiasts flocking to the Utah-based “Get Some” Guns and Ammo shop with an indoor range, according to Brandon Jensen, store employee.

“Get Some” held its grand opening on June 19. The grand opening followed over six months of permitting and remodeling work, he said.

Customers at “Get Some” can buy handgrips, rifles, ammunition and other shooting supplies.

The store also has a seven-lane indoor shooting range.

“Get Some” also offers a variety of classes including a concealed firearm permit class and basic handgun class, according to Jensen.

The majority of “Get Some” customers are looking for handgun, rifle, or archery supplies.

The store does not carry muzzleloaders, black powder firearms, or archery supplies.

“Other than muzzleloaders and black powder, if we don’t have it in stock, we can get any legal gun for a customer,” Jensen said.

The store includes a 25-yard indoor shooting range with seven lanes. An individual can shoot for $12. You can share lanes for $24. Three people share a lane for $24. Monthly and annual memberships are available according to Jensen.

If you want to shoot, but don’t have a gun “Get Some” will rent you a gun, Jensen said.

For $15 a shooter can rent a single gun at the range. For $25 a shooter can shoot any of the guns in the range’s arsenal. The shooter must buy the ammunition for the gun they shoot.

“Get Some” invested nearly $1 million in the shooting range. The expenses included a ventilation system that meets requirements for noise suppression, proofing, and a state-of-the-art backstop system.

The CFP class costs $45, which includes fingerprinting and passport photos. The course consists of three hours of classroom instruction followed by three hours of shooting. Students can purchase their own semi-auto and revolver handgun or rent guns for $5 each during the class, according to Jensen.

The store also offers a basic handgun class, a class for beginning shooters, and a women’s only firearm class.

“Get Some” is owned by Stuart Wiggins. His first store was in a “hole in the wall” storefront on Hidden Sun Street in Murray, according to Jensen.

Today, in addition to Tooele, “Get Some” has stores in Murray, Gurnee, and Layton.

Expanding to Tooele County was natural decision, according to Jensen.

“The owner was looking for a place to grow his business and we noticed a lot of our customers at our other stores that came from Tooele County, so coming to Tooele County just made sense” said Jensen, who worked at “Get Some” in Gurnee.

To get more information about “Get Some” Guns & Ammo, call the store at 435-294-0240 or visit the website at www.getsomeguns.com.

The Tooele store is located at 921 S. Main Street in Tooele City. It is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Did you feel it? Your day just got a second longer

by Emma Penrod

If you’re reading this before 5:59 p.m. on Tuesday, your clock is wrong.

But it’s not just your clock — it’s your time every clock on earth. Fortunately, there is a solution: astronomers will add a single “leap second” at 5:59:59 p.m. to all the world’s clocks with the planet’s rotation once again.

Even though Tuesday will be ever so slightly longer than normal, Patrick Wiggins, a local resident and a Solar System Ambassador for NASA, said most people won’t notice the difference. The leap second should pass without causing any undue distress, though in the past such events have caused minor time-sensitive features on a few websites to crash, he said.

Scientists adjust the world’s clocks with leap seconds every once in a while to keep clocks aligned with the Earth’s axial position in space, Wiggins said. The most recent — the one that crashed websites — occurred in 2012. The five leap seconds were added in 1972, he said, when astronomers detected a slight discrepancy between the Earth’s rotation and the actual time.

In his or her own words:
A while ago I was listening to Radio West, the daily interview show on KUER. The host, Doug Fabrizio, interviewed a man who explained, as a middle-aged man, that he fell the need to look up in high school and he was shamed because of the height difference from a challenge against a concrete barrier.

It is not a surprise that most men who are in jail are victims of abuse. We would be more men who back down and fail to stand up to the challenge of his tall school, are not in college, and duck and dodge a wall that he failed to hit in the ring did hit him and his family. This story I found fascinating because it reminded me of situations that boys and youth must go through to become balanced men.

As a society, we do not know what to do with young men. We do not send them out into the world to be fair, to be just. We don't send them to drugs or to violence.

In high school he was shamed by the height difference. This situation raised many questions: What is it to be a man? How do you know how to do that? What are the models of manhood that we give young men to become? We can help young boys to become responsible men? How do we do that? What can we do to help them with their transition.
Sydney, Addison, Todd and Baldwin Ross were reunited at the Prost Aquatic Center on Thursday.

Flying across multiple time zones with little or no rest, Todd Ross was likely going to crash after the excitement of spending time with family and friends were over, Heidi Ross said.

"I think the adrenaline will carry him through," she said.

Todd Ross had a lot to look forward to once he arrived home, including the Texas-style brisket his mother promised him. He said he had a picture of the brisket on his phone, which only increased the anticipation.

The reunion was small but had poignant and fun moments. A common theme was made about the size of Todd Ross' s biceps, which he said was the result of having an altered copy of the real travel itinerary to see if there were any potential pitfalls. Todd Ross said he was going to look, that's why she said he loves her. Todd Ross now has 15 pre-season events, including 13 in Minnesota for fear he might get burned out.

"I think the adrenaline will carry him through," he said.

"I'm feeling pretty comfortable in the Tooele Valley," he said. "They've got some great facilities out here.

Todd Ross also took a moment to thank his family for being there for him.

to cost $1.9 million. The Bonneville, which earns and plans to develop the property, signed an agreement between the end of Village Boulevard and SR-138, will give the county $850,000 now and another $850,000 in five years for the Village Boulevard project, Bitner said. The county entered into an agreement with EnergySolutions to trust the money in the mitigation fee fund, Bitner said. The county commissioners approved an amendment to the agreements with EnergySolutions at their June 16 meeting. The company agreed to pay $1.7 million in mitigation fees to the county. The payment will be a credit against mitigation fees owed by EnergySolutions for the year 2017 through 2020, in the amount of $850,000 per year, according to the agreement.

The Musical Theatre program and school are a “extension of Tooele from my early childhood,” Lyman said in her pageant bio. “It was the first time I remember feeling involved about my community. And when I return to Tooele I always feel a sense of gratitude for what this town has offered me.”

Stewart, 18, is the daughter of Ron and Gail Stewart, and the niece of former Miss Tooele City, Anna Stewart. Stewart is the sister of Miss Tooele City 2013 winner, Melissa Jones.

Stewart, who is also a past Miss Tooele City, said the people in her community have been a positive, patriotic influence. “The people of Stansbury Park have been a positive, patriotic influence. The people of Stansbury Park have been my role models,” she said. The Firecrackers Dance Team is a part of the Bonneville High School community. “I love helping them to see who they are and eventually they do realize they are unique.”

Village Boulevard Extention

The advance payment of mitigation fees will allow the county to go ahead with construction of the Village Boulevard project using funds from the unrestricted mitigation fee fund, Bitner said.

When the zone becomes self-funded in 2016/2017 and the Royce Company makes the $850,000 payment, Tooele County will put the money in the mitigation fee fund, Bitner said.

“The need is to accelerate the project for safety reasons,” he said. “The people of Stansbury Park shouldn’t have to wait for more than three years.”

The first work that will be done in the project will be the extension of Stansbury Park Improvement District sewer and water lines under the path of the proposed road. “While development on the west side of the road may be a few years in the future, we don’t want to build the road and then tear it up later for utility work,” Bitner said. With the project expected to go to bid in two weeks, Bitner is convinced that everything planned the road should be substantially completed by the end of this year.

Jazz show off draft picks, but growth must come from within

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Jazz still have work to do in the draft picks for the Utah Jazz as the team introduced former Kentucky forward Troy Lydon and Florida's Obi Ogbuehi during a Friday news conference.

The future of the organization is an immediate playoff hopes, however, are all about these acquisitions.

The draft is an optimistic time of year for every NBA club. The rookie teams hope will be significant contributions in the future. That's especially true for teams trying to fill the rosters and to identify the future stars. The Jazz have a different set of storylines.

They had the youth-best side, meaning after the All-Star break and missed the playoffs, something they want to change.

Yeah, and Jalen blanet's not likely to provide that as a rookie. Free agency is on the horizon, but the bigger strides the Jazz will make must come from player development.

"All of our guys have got to get up from A to Z if we want to get where the prize is at," general manager Dennis Lindsey said. "There's no reason that can't happen. We're going to have to show the ball better, but there's no reason that can't happen with the people we have here.

"Hopefully the players being more intimately involved with (coach) Quin Snyder and the development guys in that respect of what's going on. It's a pretty dynamic, mold-breaking environment. And that's the kind of atmosphere and culture we're looking to build and further expand.""}

Gobert carried a heavy load at Boston College and led the Atlantic Coast Conference in points per game. The native of Lebanon showed off his French-speaking skills, but the Jazz hope his basketball skills will blossom with more room to work in the NBA from spacing and not being at the top of opponents' scouting reports.

But the Jazz are more concerned with the development of last year's seventh-round pick Danuel House and Rodney Hood. Troy Gugel said he continues to improve on the bench end. Alarc Herrin was awarded the title of the week. "The thing about where we're going right now isn't quite where we want to stay in that regard," Lindsey said. "I think we are second to Freeman in that.

"It's his role is a little bit different. We're very excited with his progress. I think his development happens without any ups and downs. It's almost like he needs to be reintroduced to Quin and the coaching system."

Snyder said Evans has been working on his balance and33rd, but Hood is described as "sultry" and the teams have reason to believe he'll be able to add a consistent 3-point shot eventually.

After 30 years, Rogerses remain committed to riding, community and one another.

Bonnie and Dean Rogers were married 30 years ago, nearly as long as another significant commitment in their lives: the time they’ve been members of the Bit & Spur Riding Club.

After more than three decades of participation and service to the group, the Rogerses have been named the grand marshals of the Bit & Spur 4th of July Rodeo and Parade. It marks the first time the event has had two grand marshals.

The Rogerses, who live in Erda, have been around horses their entire lives. Dean Rogers, 66, grew up around ranching in southern Idaho and began competing in team roping competitions shortly after finishing high school.

Bonnie Rogers, 65, had a passionate love for horses growing up but had to find ways to ride.

The 65th annual Miss Grantsville Pageant takes place Friday at 8 p.m. at Grantsville High School. It is a search for someone, who is looking to be a goodwill ambassador for other young women. The organization of this pageant is a community-based volunteer effort and provides an academic scholarship to the winner. The contestants, who range in age from 17 to 28 years old, will present a talent, submit a packet of paperwork and must meet minimum GPA and other standards.

The winners are selected by a panel of judges based on the results of their submitted paper- work, an interview, answering an on-stage question, their attitude, the performance of a talent, and a walk as a formal gown.

The current royalty consists of the 2014 Miss Grantsville Tori Fausone, first attendant Bailey Vera (left) and second attendant Jennifer Christensen. During their reign, they helped with numerous community events and service opportunities. They also started a huge garden shortly after he and his family settled in Grantsville. He experimented with many different types of vegetables and quickly became known as an expert in the area. He was the first person in Utah to cultivate asparagus from seed.

Sparks and his garden might have faded into obscurity had it not been for his great-grand- daughter, Barbara Barlow. She became intrigued with his story while working on her genealogy, she also remembers seeing a picture of his great-grandfather, taken when he was 90 years old, wearing knee boots as he worked in his flower garden.

Over time, Sparks' farm and garden were sold and developed (Tooele High School now sits on the same site). But a small piece of land, including the remaining cabin that Sparks constructed, remained, and Barlow wanted her family's treasured possession to last another generation. The image of her grandmother motivated her to buy the land and create a tribute to him.

Barlow and her husband, Paul, moved to the property in 1993 and took stock of the plants. Most of the original perennials and shrubs — as well as asparagus, although planted in the mid-1960’s, still produce asparagus. Having some of the heirloom plants would take place until the area was transformed. It had been neglected for decades and had become a dumping ground for people who are too lazy to take their trash to the local dump.

Clearing the land was the first priority. Thanks to our volunteers, the work was completed and the garden has blossomed into a beautiful garden. Today, the garden includes a family tree, a 132 N. 670 East, Tooele. If in need of community events and service opportunities during the past year.

Chun looked around. “What was that sound?” one of them asked. “That must be thunder . . . or must be careful.” But Chun’s stomach would not stop growling, and he knew he must find some way to quiet it. He took the acorn in his pocket, and as a quarkly as he could, he decided to give it his brother. Chun’s heart was thumping with fear, for his greediness.

That night Chun’s brother walked in, flat, long and skinny, stretched on him as a pole. When the goblins were finished with him, they let him go, for his greediness. When Chun saw him, he shook his head, and his brother wept. “I have learned my lesson,” he said softly. But no one was quite sure if knew that by putting himself in the picture, he paid a painful price for his greediness.

TELL ME A STORY

The Goblin Treasure’

(a Korean folk tale)
adapted by Sue Ferrison and illustrated by Meredith Johnson

O ne upon a time, there were two brothers who were very different. The older brother was tall and lazy, but Chun, the younger Brother was small and hardworking. Chun always worked to go to the forest and cut and gather wood, and he skated about on his small club and his parents. As quickly and as carefully as he could, he filled his sack with as many acorns as he could and raced to the door. There he saw a goblin’s club left behind, and he took that too!

But suddenly Chun’s stomach began to rumble. He peeked out of the closet after a while, but the acorns and no club. He didn’t have so much as a mouth. He raced home as fast as he could. Back home he built a beautiful big house, and he moved his parents into the mansion. Whenever they needed money, he simply thumped his club upon the ground and chanted, “Make gold, make gold.” The goblins were finished with him, they let him go, for his greediness.

When Chun saw his brother, he paid a painful price for his greediness.
