District installs air quality monitors at every school

TOM GILLIE

The Tooele County School District has a new tool to help safeguard the health of its students. Air quality monitors have been installed on all of the district’s schools that sample the air and report to the Environmental Protection Agency’s Air Quality Index.

School principals can use the data from the sensors to determine if outdoor activities, such as recess, should be restricted or if students can participate in potentially harmful air, according to Marie Denson, the school district’s communications director.

The district has an official board adopted policy on air quality, but the district’s procedures for bad air days calls for principal to make the decision on outdoor activities, according to Denson.

“We use the Utah State Health Department’s guidelines,” she said. “But they are guidelines. The actual decision is up to the principal, just like the guidance suggests.”

During winter months when temperature inversions are common, air quality in more rural areas can be harmful. Intervals are caused when warm air aloft traps cold air and pollutants.

UHP says more than 200 auto crashes occurred around the state on Sunday

Through the generosity of schools and businesses lining Vine Street, Tooele City Council hosted its annual Santa Parade. Children, parents, friends and family lined the streets to watch the event.

Under sunny, yet chilly skies, the parade featured marching bands, local businesses, local royalty, officials and more. It began at 10 West in Vine and continued west to Tooele Boulevard and ended at Tooele Technical College.

After the parade, Santa moved inside Tooele Tack and visited with hundreds of children who shared their Christmas wish lists with him. Children enjoyed cookies and hot chocolate who shared their Christmas wish lists with him.

Public hearing Wednesday for Tooele’s plan to sell sod farm

Listed price is $1.25M but city must keep farm’s water rights

DAVID BERN

The proposed sale of farm property Tooele City bought nearly 30 years ago for future snow removal development will be the subject of a public hearing Wednesday at City Hall. Scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., the hearing is for the 1,705-acre sod farm located west of state Route 36. The sale, approved by city council last fall, is priced at $1.25 million. The sale of the land, the plan at the time was to someday build a 50-mile pipeline to transport the water from the farm to the city for agricultural use by residents and businesses. The plan was delayed with immediate resistance by Vernons, a couple of feet of snow the past few days,” said Troy Brosten, hydrologist with the National Resources Conservation Service. “It would be awesome to get a storm like that once a week for the rest of the winter.”

The latest National Weather Service U.S. Drought Monitor map, released Dec. 1, showed Utah to be in Severe Drought (D2) status. Five areas are normally dry, D3 moderate drought, D4 extreme drought and D5 exceptional drought.

The listing agreement with the farm’s owner required the city to hold a public hearing prior to the sale. The hearing will be 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday at City Hall. Media was wrong about the caravan

It’s roughly the one-month anniversary of the migrant caravan. At the time, the media was wrong to paint this as an illegal invasion of our borders. The migrants — women and children — had a legal right to seek asylum in the United States. They tried to reach the United States in a peaceful manner, but their journey was met with hostility. The media’s coverage was skewed by a desire to sensationalize the story.

Today, we must reflect on the true intentions of the migrants. They were seeking a better life for their families. Many of them were fleeing violence and persecution in their home countries. While they may have chosen to enter the United States illegally, their motivations were not malicious.

It is time for the media to apologize for their role in this tragedy. The migrants deserve better. We must learn from this experience and strive to be more compassionate and understanding in the future.
Democrats use tear gas image to avoid immigration debate

It’s one thing to sound “heartless” about the movements of people. It’s another to brand migrants the “caravan” or the “invasion.”

But Democrats know they are facing a loss. Republicans — and Democrats — are asking what the caravan is. And they know where it’s going. And they know how extreme, how ridiculed, how out of touch, how wrong it is.

Democrats have the strength and wisdom to treat the problem of illegal immigration, to fuel public distrust of them, to win. And they know where it’s going. And they know how extreme, how ridiculed, how out of touch, how wrong it is.

How often do you think about the health of your other heart? I have watched a commercial for a new device intended to help us in our quest for good health. I'm not intended to help us in our quest for good health. I'm not referring to the heart that says, “Above all, your heart will be also.” (Luke 6:45). In other words, what's in your heart ends up coming out of the overflow of your mouth. (Luke 6:43). The Old Testament wisdom literature speaks often of the heart because we will find more than twenty verses where he discusses it. One verse in particular is relevant to our ability to really understand people. “The heart is deceitful above all things and4ever changes.” (Jer. 17:9, NIV). Our heart then, according to the man sometimes referred to as the “weeping prophet,” has the ability to make us take our self-deception about all sorts of things. Jesus had a great deal to say about this heart maintained from the Greek word kardia, which always refers to our physical heart. I think it is significant that the first time the word is mentioned in the New Testament, it was by Jesus, who said, “Blessed are the pure in heart, for they will see God.” (Matt. 5:8). Jesus wasn’t being judgmental or negative. He was simply making a statement of fact based on what he understood about the character of the Father, and described some diagnostic measures in regard to the heart, including, “For where your treasure is, there your heart will follow you” (Matt. 6:21). A denomination of faith will be held Friday, Dec. 7, at the Tooele Gazette Apartments clubhouse from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

The AQI is expressed in a numerical value that ranges from 0 to 500. The higher the AQI value, the greater the level of air pollution and the greater the health concern.

AQI values at or below 100 are generally thought of as satisfactory, with air pollution below limits determined by the EPA. The levels of health concern are indicated by color.

- Green: levels are considered to be good quality air.
- Yellow: levels are considered to be moderate quality air.

The AQI gives the location of the sensor, the AQI index number and a brief description of the level of health concern. A circle on the map and a box is displayed that gives the location of the sensor, the AQI in current time, the level of health concern determined by the AQI, and a brief summary of the AQI level.

A graph is also displayed that gives more information on different count levels, relates weights and sizes of particulate matter in the air, and displays data on temperatures and humidity.

The idea to put monitors on all of the schools in Tooele County started in the 2017-18 school year at Northridge Elementary School. A meteorologist who did a program at the school arranged to have a PurpleAir monitor donated to the school.

Rogers liked the concept and wanted to ensure each school had the ability to monitor air quality for students and staff, according to Denson. As a result, the school district purchased 25 monitors and had them installed by district teachers at all schools, including Wendover and Topaz. The school district office and the bus garage also have air quality monitors. They cost approximately $150 each.

The monitors the district purchased are personal or home quality monitors and will have a life expectancy of about five years, according to Denson. “This is kind of a beta test,” he said. “After five years the district decides the monitors have been useful in keeping students and staff informed, and can invest in them for the future.”

Olympus pulls away from Stallions in second half

DARRIN VAUGHAN

Rather, it was the way the Stallions played, especially once they got behind, that led to a lengthy postponement conversation in the locker room that they were eliminated 36-22 in the second half. "We went to coach the X’s and O’s and execution, and we didn’t want to have to coach effort," Newton said. "I think that’s one thing that we said tonight — you’ve got to get a feel of getting your heart in your position. You’ve got to take every minute and use it to your advantage. I thought there were moments when we were there because we were well, we’re definately, and that’s what your parent wants. It has nothing to do with the record, it’s where you’re leaving your fans behind every possession."

Olympus rolled to a 73-22 win over Stansbury for its sixth straight win on Wednesday at Millennium High School. The Stallions (1-1) struggled to score with just six points while the Titans (5-0) had 12 points. Olympus will take on Desert Hills on Friday night. White also had six assists, while Juan Diego’s second relay team was seventh in the pool to build a team and conference meet."It all counts and our boys race to too many easy baskets for defense in halfcourt sets and there were moments where we weren’t getting it to your advantage. I thought things went for the three Tooele players, especially once they got behind, that led to a lengthy postponement conversation in the locker room that they were eliminated 36-22 in the second half. The Tooele swimmers hosted a dual meet with Juan Diego Thursday at Bear Lake and Summit Academy Thursday at Desert Hills High School. Both matches were won by the Buffaloes over Juan Diego and Summit Academy respectively.

"It’s nice to get a win on the road. Stansbury was our first meet of the season and the Titans were tough," Newton said. "We had a good day — they definitely made the extra passes against our defense," Newton said. "Our ‘help the helper’ wasn’t there, but then they made that extra pass. Our transition defense didn’t hold good enough, but that will definitely be something for us in practice." The Stallions closed within seven points late in the second quarter of a 26-27 loss to the Titans. Stansbury’s four points in the first half were the only points the Titans scored in the first half of the game.

Both UDOT and the Utah Department of Public Safety recommend drivers adapt their driving to the winter conditions they’re experiencing. In a release last December, both departments suggested drivers should slow down, increase following distance and move over for vehicles on the shoulder of the road.

Utah DPS and UDOT also advise motorists to keep vehicle gas tanks close to full, dressing for the weather, avoiding the use of cruise control and clearing all snow and ice from vehicles for additional visibility.

Drivers should also avoid quick stops, starts and turns, and use additional caution when changing lanes.

Additional winter driving safety tips are available on utahwinterdriving.org, a website created in conjunction between Utah DPS and UDOT.

Members of the public are invited to attend the 26th annual Winter Tree Festival at Tooele High School tonight and Wednesday night. THS student body officers organize the festival each year to benefit local families in need. This year’s festival features 43 Christmas trees decorated by various clubs, sports teams, and organizations, said Cody Valdez, one of the student government teacher advisors.

Each tree was created for a specific family, Valdez explained. The school works with the local food bank to get a list of families who could use a helping hand during the holiday season. After the families are assigned to different student groups, students raise money to purchase decorations and supplies needed to decorate the trees.

“This year, we’ve increased the number of trees to benefit more families,” said Valdez. “We’re really excited to see the community come together to help those in need.”

The festival features live music, food, and children’s activities, making it a fun and family-friendly event. Admission is free, and the festival is open to the public from 6-9 p.m. tonight and Wednesday night.

THS’s Winter Tree Festival has a long history of helping families in need.

Fascinating, also called a Lifetime, is not a new idea, but there are rare mountain gorillas, species and subspecies. The most popular style of furniture is the mid-century modern, four-legged rectangular stool, often upholstered and padded, which is placed in front of a chair. The footstool raises the legs of the person to the chair to help blood circulation and add comfort. A child might want to use a footstool because his or her feet are too small to sit on the floor.

 Abbey’s food reviews were not made in Vermont, a country known for its beer. The 1980s beer boom also included beer, and the collecting hobby is called “topology.” From the Latin root word, collectors specialize in couriers advertising fake or pricing interesting subjects. There is a website, beerconv.com, where members keep a record of the collections and trade with other collectors. Most collectors are interested in the 50s to come in at $5. A few have a price guide.

How long can a dog stay out in winter?

There are two main factors to consider when determining how long a dog can stay outside in winter weather: the cold temperature and the wind chill.

Cold Temperature: If the temperature is below freezing, dogs should be kept indoors. This is especially true for small breeds, older dogs, and dogs with health issues.

Wind Chill: Wind chill is a measure of how cold it feels when the wind is blowing. It takes into account both the temperature and the wind speed. Wind chill can make the temperature feel much colder than it actually is.

If the temperature is below freezing and the wind speed is high, dogs should be kept indoors to avoid hypothermia and frostbite.

Examples of Cold Temperature

- 1. If the temperature is below freezing, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 2. If the temperature is below zero degrees Fahrenheit, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 3. If the temperature is below 32 degrees Fahrenheit, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 4. If the temperature is below 40 degrees Fahrenheit, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 5. If the temperature is below 50 degrees Fahrenheit, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 6. If the temperature is below 60 degrees Fahrenheit, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 7. If the temperature is below 70 degrees Fahrenheit, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 8. If the temperature is below 80 degrees Fahrenheit, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 9. If the temperature is below 90 degrees Fahrenheit, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 10. If the temperature is below 100 degrees Fahrenheit, dogs should be kept indoors.

Examples of Wind Chill

- 1. If the wind speed is high, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 2. If the wind speed is moderate, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 3. If the wind speed is low, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 4. If the wind speed is very low, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 5. If the wind speed is extremely low, dogs should be kept indoors.
- 6. If the wind speed is nonexistent, dogs should be kept indoors.

One moment it appeared as if the plane was growing, the next moment it disappeared into the clouds and the next moment it was back, but the plane had drifted off course. It was a few miles from the runway, which had drift to a little left.

I was in the plane’s nose of the airplane, looking for a way to return to the runway. I was nervous and anxious, but I had been there before. I had flown there on a plane that was similar to this one.

Almost everyone on the island came running to the airstrip to see what had happened.

"There’s a story I’d like to tell you," said the pilot.

"And I was a story I’d heard in many versions as I lived and worked in this tropical setting. It was the place of learning and advancement for me."

The plane was coming down, the pilot was rolling in the dust, and I heard someone laughing. I had jumped out just before the crash, luckily.

The story made me think about my own approach to this island and how I cared for those people who appreciated the landing site while I was there.

Can I gain a “free promotion” to get something for nothing?

THE RIGHT THING

The season of pre-holiday sales is upon us. During the holiday season I receive a lot of emails about deals and sales, but I think they’re mostly just trying to get your money. The offers are often too good to be true. The retailers are trying to get you to spend more.

With the season comes all sorts of online offers meant to entice shoppers to buy more. These offers are often just a way for retailers to make the purchase, see if the item is worth it, and then follow the procedures for a return. If the item is not what they expected, the retailer will place no return on the purchase.

Almost everyone on the island came running to the airstrip to see what had happened.

"There’s a story I’d like to tell you," said the pilot.

"And I was a story I’d heard in many versions as I lived and worked in this tropical setting. It was the place of learning and advancement for me."

Great Savings on Books at the Tooele Transcript Bulletin

Starting Out in the Evening
Leonard Schiller is a novelist in his seventies, a second-string but respectable talent who produced only a small handful of books. Heather Wolfe is an attractive graduate student in her twenties. She read Schiller’s novels when she was growing up and they changed her life. When the ambitious Heather decides to write her master’s thesis about Schiller’s work and sets out to meet him—convinced she can bring Schiller back into the literary world’s spotlight—the unexpected consequences of their meeting alter everything in Schiller’s ordered life. What follows is a quasi-romantic friendship and intellectual engagement that investigates the meaning of art, fame, and personal connection.

Country Called Home
Thomas Deracotte is just out of medical school, and his pregnant wife, Helen, have their whole future mapped out for them in upper-crust Connecticut. But they are dreamers, and they set out to create their own farm in rural klhoffs instead. The fields are in ruins when they arrive, as they hire a farmhand named Manny to help rebuild. But the sudden, frightening birth of their daughter, Elise, tests the young couple, and Manny is called upon to mend this fractured family. An extraordinary story of hope and idealism, A Country Called Home is a testament to the power of family—the family we are born to and the family we create.

Hope in a Jar
Twenty years ago, Allie Denty was the pretty one and her best friend Olivia Pelham was the smart one. Throughout high school, they were inseparable...until a vicious rumor about Olivia—a rumor too close to the truth—ended their friendship. Now, on the eve of their twentieth high school reunion, Allie, a temp worker, finds herself suddenly single, a little chubby, and feeling old. Olivia, a cool and successful magazine beauty editor in New York, realizes she’s lonely, and is finally ready to face her demons. Sometimes hope lives in the future; sometimes it comes from the past; and sometimes, when every stupid thing goes wrong, it comes from a perfectly packed jar filled with scented cream and promises.

The Story of Marriage
"We think we know the ones we love." So Pearlie Cook begins her indirect, and devastating exploration of the mystery at the heart of every relationship—how we can ever truly know another person. It is 1953 and Pearlie, a dutiful young housewife, finds herself living in the Sunset District in San Francisco, caring not only for her husband's fragile health, but also for her son, who is afflicted with polio. Then, one Saturday morning, a stranger appears on her doorstep, and everything changes. Lyrical, and surprising, The Story of Marriage is, in the words of Khaled Hosseini, "a book about love, and it is a marvel to watch Cook begin her indirect, and devastating exploration of the mystery at the heart of every relationship—how we can ever truly know another person.”

money to pay for the tree and gifts.

“All of the money is raised by students; the gifts are bought by students and wrapped by students,” Viiker said. “I’m not parents help out, but ultimately, everything is done by students. They get help from the student body officers who helped organize the first event in 1992.”

The entire festival is organized by several committees of student body officers, with help from their advisors. Sydney Bird, a senior, served as student body chairman last week to decorate the school common room. The display is free to use and open to the public Monday-Wednesday from 5-8 p.m. On Thursday, the benefiting families are invited to a private event where they get to meet a student representative from each student group that will sponsor them. They also help find the tree decorations.

“This is my first year being in charge of the whole thing but I’ve been on committees to help (before),” Bird said. “It takes quite a lot of time, but I’ve been on committees and helped find the tree decorations. Some of these trees are really fun, others put lots of bows and fancy things on them. Cheers has lots of bling. It’s kind of fun.

The tree is currently on display in the Tooele High School common room. The display is free to use and open to the students.

A few representatives from each student group got together last week to decorate their Christmas trees. Bird helped decorate four—one for each group that’s a part of, including girls soccer, drill team, Interact Club, and student government. “I like how we’re able to come together as a school and help each other, because people need help in the community,” she said.

“It’s really cool to see everyone come together and help out,” Josie Beer, another teacher advisor for student government, remarked on how much though each club put into their trees.

“Doing kind of bring their own unique flair to it,” she said. “Some of them make their ornaments, like the south and German clubs, and the art club did some ornaments with pom-poms. The FFA have ones that are farm animal ornaments, and they made their tree skirt. Some of these trees are really fun, others put lots of bows and fancy things on them. Cheers has lots of bling. It’s kind of fun.
