UDOT talks future road projects with county COG

Funded projects: overpass bridges at Black Rock, Lake Point; extra lane for I-80 and Mid-Valley Hwy.

Steve Howe 08/20/19
A Utah Department of Transportation representative spoke with members of the Tooele County Council of Government, detailing future construction projects and studies during its meeting last Thursday.

Great Salt Lake, UDOT Region 2 planning manager, handed out an informational sheet containing construction projects and performance measures for the county at the COG meeting. He said the sheet has also made the rounds at the COG meeting. He said the report has also made the rounds at the COG meeting.

Goals: construction of two railroad overpass bridges at Black Rock and highway overpass bridges at I-95. The project, which has been under way since early 2018, also includes the creation of a third southbound lane on SR-36 from Hardy Road to Sunset Road.

The 75 million-dollar project was recently put out to bid and a 432-day contract was awarded to Ames Construction of West Valley.

New gates on popular trail add fuel to heated dispute

Tim Gillie 08/20/19
Tooele County Commissioner Kendall Thomas said his phone has been lit up with people complaining about gates that are blocking popular all-terrain vehicle trails in the Jacob City Loop Trail and Ophir Canyon areas.

“The county commissioners believe that these gates are necessary for safety and protection of the public. The county commission are resolved to open up these trails,” he said. First, one of the property owners erected the gates, but asserts the gates are on private property and block trails that are not public.

There are a few new gates on private property that the Jacob City Loop Trail runs through but those gates are unlocked, according to a representative of the property owner.

The Leo Ault family owns much of the property north of Ophir Canyon.

Last year the Ault family was successful in getting the 3rd District Court to declare Serviceberry Canyon Road would remain closed to all motorized traffic until the court hears the Aults’ claim that the road is private.

The Jacob City Loop Trail is popular with ATV riders, but because it connects the county’s Jacob City Loop Trail with campgrounds in Ophir Canyon, the campgrounds are also near the trailhead for the Lion Hill Loop Trail.

The Serviceberry Canyon Road gate was put in place last year. The gates have added fuel to the already heated dispute.

114-year-old Vernon Elementary greets students for the first time

Tim Gillie 08/20/19
Monday morning marked the end of summer vacation for over 16,000 students in the Tooele County School District.

In Vernon, 21 first- through sixth-grade students showed up for the first day of school. A class of six kindergarten students, all boys, will join them next Monday.

This should be the last first day of school for the Vernon Elementary school building, according to Steve West, the school district’s director of operations.

The school district will soon release a request for bids to build a new Vernon Elementary just 20 feet north of the current building, he said.

If all goes according to plans, when next year’s students return for their first day of school, they will be greeted by a new school building.

Students at Vernon Elementary started showing up as early as 7:30 a.m. Monday. They hung their backpacks on hooks in the hallway. Some students ate lunch in the school’s multipurpose room.

Grantsville City building damaged in Aug. 11 fire

Steve Howe
City Editor

The Grantsville City Department of Public Works building at the intersection of Main and Cosley streets was damaged in a fire on Aug. 11, according to city officials.

Firefighters with Grantsville City Volunteer Fire Department were dispatched on a smoke investigation, according to Grantsville City Fire Chief Rob Critchlow, around 8 p.m. When crews arrived on scene, smoke was coming out of the DPW building and a fire was found in the kitchen area.

Everything inside the building was ruled a total loss, according to Grantsville City Public Works director James Waltz. The City is working with insurance adjusters and investigators to determine the cause of the blaze and if the building is salvageable or not. An agenda item to discuss the fire in the public works building is on the agenda for the Grantsville City Council meeting on Wednesday at 7 p.m. at Grantsville City Hall.

Fires burns two homes in remote Gold Hill

A fire caused by an unattended burn barrel burned two homes and an outbuilding lost Thursday in Gold Hill, according to fire officials.

The fire in the remote community northeast of Ibapah was first reported at 3:20 p.m. on Aug. 15 at 7241 N. Main St., according to Tooele County Fire Warden Daniel Walton. The blaze grew to 5.5 acres on a private lot before it was ruled contained at 8:15 p.m.

While the fire was active, it damaged a permanent residence, a seasonal residence, two historic buildings and an outbuilding, according to Walton. One person was displaced as a result of the fire.

Responders from the W Band Fire and Ibapah fire departments, along with engines from the Bureau of Land Management and U.S. Forest Service responded to the fire.

UDOT concluded its investigation and announced that a $4-million I-80 widening project will be part of a new road, connecting I-80 to a new road, the Oquirrh Expressway, which would connect to SR-36. The Oquirrh Expressway would run along the east bench of the Oquirrh Mountains and connect to the I-80, which has increased 6% over the last six years. Utah is experiencing strong traffic growth across areas, according to UDOT.

Two community members spoke during the COG meeting. Chad Whedon said he was upset by the comments he had heard during the meeting and decided to make his input public. He could not live in Draper, which is a major employment center, and he thought the county should not be pushing a project that would increase traffic on I-80. He said the COG meeting was a good learning experience for him. The county government in Draper is not looking after the needs of the people, he said.

Bobby Jones, a Tooele Valley resident, also spoke and expressed his concerns. The longer the length of common due to traffic.

A photo recently installed by the Ault family is the area between Centennial Pass and Ohop. The Ault family has now placed this photo in their yard, according to Thomas. Tom Ault, the three community commissioners, gave their testimony on the resolution and the project, which had been designed with a non-functional bell tower, giving the building a similar historic country schoolhouse silhouette as the other county-owned and -operated historic buildings.

Down the hall will be a large main hall for assemblies, and a smaller multipurpose room that can be used for meetings. The building was open.

According to state law, the family representative said.

The Ault family is aware of its family history and heritage, said Virginia Ault, a member of the Ault family, which has been involved in the project for two years.

The Tooele Transit Study will start next month, which is expected to be a look at short-term and long-term solutions for serving Tooele County through public transit. Another study, the Northwest Tooele County Volume II, is expected to be released in a few months, through a partnership with Tooele County, Utah Transit Authority and Wasatch Regional Council. The intent of the study is to look at revitalization and mobility challenges in the county over the long- and short-term. The performance measures developed by Farnsworth included a look at daily traffic volumes, the number of vehicles on I-80, which has increased 6% over the last six years. Utah is experiencing strong traffic growth across areas, according to UDOT.

Guest editorial: Epstein gave him what his victims never got

GUEST OPINION

U.S. meddling in Hong Kong stirs China outrage

No, it can’t be controlled. There is no switch that we can flip. The people in power are just too entrenched. We need to change the system from the bottom up. That’s why we need to be more proactive and less reactive. We need to start by educating ourselves and our communities about the importance of free speech. We need to support organizations that defend the First Amendment, like the Committee to Defend the First Amendment. And we need to hold our elected officials accountable for upholding our constitutional rights.

Moreover, the left’s obsession with “microaggressions” is a charade. It’s really just a way for them to silence their political opponents and silence any debate. They’re using this as an excuse to stifle free speech and limit the exchange of ideas. It’s a dangerous trend that we must stop before it’s too late.

As a country, we need to stand up for the values that we hold dear. That means respecting each other’s right to express their views, even if we don’t agree with them. We need to support free speech and the First Amendment, and we need to do it together. Only then will we be able to build a society that truly values free speech and individual liberty.

Stansbury tops Taylorsville in final pre-region tune-up

Stansbury senior Tommy Ostrander (30) pulls away and powers ahead at 3100, winning the final race of the season over Taylorsville junior Charlie Page during the state cross-country championships. Ostrander won the 5A race for the Cowgirls, while the Stallions swept the top two spots.

The Bobcats girls soccer team has allowed just one goal through three matches this season, picking up four straight wins along the way.

On Friday afternoon against Taylorsville, the Stallions showed that their offense is well on its way to coming up with a defensive presence. Stansbury defended the Marriott 2-0, through the help of a goal from its other top players.

Darren Vaughan girls soccer notes

The girls credits for us. We were making the right passes and we were in the right spots, but we couldn’t finish the job.

Stansbury (2-3-1) had a simple chance to take the lead within the first 10 minutes. Reagan Blackbird’s crossing pass in the second minute just missed teammate Morgan Morris. Then, Kaitlyn Radisson from the top of the 16-yard box led to the second minute. But Carlsen wouldn’t miss it in the 16th minute, when Grace Woodley was pulled into the 16-yard box and the Stallions scored another goal for the Cowgirls.

Shauna Wilkinson - Produce Manager

I have lived in Tooele since 2013 working as your Lucky Produce Manager. I enjoy the proximity to all the outdoor activities Utah has to offer like fishing! I love living in Tooele for many of the same reasons as my neighbors: we are a fun, tight-knit community, and I am close to family. My favorite time of the year is when new seasonal fruit arrives. I have really come to appreciate the added SPECIALTY and VARIETY we now have—along with the delicious farm-fresh quality at low, low prices. My favorite item in the department is fresh, made-in-store Guacamole! Come try a free sample and say hello.

Stansbury Days

For two days, Stansbury Park residents gathered and celebrated their community. The annual Stansbury Days event was held last weekend starting on Friday night with a food truck rally, the Stansbury High School Band performing, and the Kids Tri. On Saturday the celebration really got going with a parade that included dancers, the Stansbury High School Band, and the Kids Tri. Don’t forget the Stansbury Tri that kicked off early Saturday morning. The festivities continued through the day with a car show, vendor fair, boat races, and live entertainment. Blue skies and lots of fun to be had kept the Stansbury spirit bright and the 2019 Stansbury Days a success.

A(toon)age, Eldon Zschau spent hours training each day, 5 a.m. and in the evening, too — some of those hours he told me ‘he wasn’t because he saw a change that would have been so great that it because he lived the life he was at the University of Pennsylvania. He still skates, year-round, but didn’t do so well as he needed to it enough that he was much time to prepare. Then’s what he made the decision to not stop skating competitively toward a spot on the 2000 National Team, and finish his athletic career. That was in 1961, when the U.S. Figure Skating Team died in a plane crash in a flight from New York City to Brussels, Belgium, for compe- tition. Making the decision not to continue to compete toward a spot on the teams possible

You don’t get a quick return on doing something that doesn’t matter. If you want to make a differento in society, making the world a better world, you better be prepared for a long time.

Figure skating is also how Zschau learned the impor- tance of meticulous prepara- tion. I listened to him describe how he worked on the steps he was expected to learn. He had to practice with the grace that the steps were expected to show. He had to practice with the precision that the steps were expected to show.

These are all important life lessons because a person needs in order to change the world, he said. “You don’t get a quick return on doing something that doesn’t matter.”

“You can’t be a better skater if you have a dif- ferent time learning,” he said. “It makes it so you can explain how to master the skill to someone else because you’ve had to work at all the steps involved.”

Zschau also learned the importance of full- time, simple employment. For an entire week, he had to change a comeback skater. But that doesn’t mean that he was able to do well as he needed to.

The right thing when choos- ing who or who not to follow Twitter or other social media platforms is to figure out what it is important to each individual to decide what we say or do. Social media sites such as Twitter and Facebook are useful ways to keep up with current events. Dividing what to follow is more a personal than an ethi- cal choice.
