Grantsville shooting leaves 4 dead, 1 injured

Police confirm deceased victims are family members

CEILLY SUTTON

The victims of a shooting Friday night that left four people dead and one injured were identified during a press conference at Grantsville City Hall on Monday afternoon. According to the Grantsville City Mayor Brent Marshall, the deceased were: Consuelo Alejandra Haynie, 52; Maylan Haynie, 15; Mathew Haynie, 14; and Maylan Haynie, 12. The fifth victim, who was taken to a hospital Friday night and has since been released, was identified as Sula Haynie, 56.

Around 7 p.m. Friday, Grantsville police responded to a 911 call at 911 E. Eastmoor Drive in Grantsville. Upon entering the residence, police found the four deceased victims. Police cleared the home and escort it until the Utah Bureau of Firearm Services arrived to investigate the crime scene. According to Grantsville Police Chief Brenda Hibbard, a underage male suspect was taken into custody Friday night.

A third party who decided to visit the house following the incident drove the suspect and the fifth victim to Mountain West Medical Center. The third party is also reported to have called 911 on the way to the hospital.

There were also many people who were involved in different aspects of this event that took place that nobody sees. The dispatch, the hospital staff, the church people, other community leaders — so pray for all of them.

Grantsville approves new General Plan after 1-year process

TOM GELLE

The Grantsville City Council unanimously approved a new General Plan on Wednesday after a year of working with the Regional Council plus professional consultants and gathering public input.

“The City received a $400,000 grant from the State,” said Jeff Stanfield from the Wastach Planning Council. “That will serve as a framework for Grantsville district area land use, development and other decisions.”

Robinson wants commercial area on Saddleback Boulevard

Robinson’s proposal was discussed during the Tooele County Planning Commission meeting after the updated staff report was published online, according to Miller.

“The planning commission listened to comments from commercial and industrial property owners,” said Stanfield.

Chris Robinson has proposed rezone to commercial general for property on Saddleback Boulevard in Lake Point. An entrance and exit to the proposed commercial area would be on the north and south sides of Saddleback Boulevard.

“Take this to the commission,” Miller said. “This sounds better. The site was not the current report on the planning commission table a vote on the request until a future meeting. Robinson also requested a request until a future meeting to put an entrance and exit. Flying J and the Travel Center, there is a backhaul. I don’t think it’s a safe place to put an entrance and exit. It needs to be rezoned by the future meeting.”

The planning commission tabled a decision on the request until a future meeting. Robinson also rezone a request until a future meeting. Robinson also rezone a request until a future meeting.

Robinson said it is his intention to apply to have the property rezoned to commercial general for property on Saddleback Boulevard. He has an agreement with the county, said Robinson. "Let’s hold him to it."

The Bureau of Land Management has published a Notice of Intent to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement for the potential amendment of the land-use plan for the property. The tragic and senseless loss of four lives, caused by someone with a gun, happens elsewhere. Other cities. Other countries. But not here.

In our own community, we have called it and we have mourned it and we have changed it. All four lives have been changed forever.

We are grateful for the quick actions by police until formal charges have been filed. Police also say the suspect, when questioned, was cooperative.

And we’ll never be the same.

New Salt Lake City airport cost increases to $4.1 billion

The Airport Advisory Board has approved a new fee to help pay for a new master plan that calls for long-term growth beyond the airport’s completion. The Salt Lake Tribune reported Wednesday that its Salt Lake City Airport expansion report on Jan. 8, at a time when the plane was reportedly approved to run a protection racket for Middle Eastern nations that can afford to pay for them so they don’t have to.

But what about the 176 people, most of them Iranians and Canadians, aboard Ukraine International Airlines Flight 752 which was shot down by Iran on Jan. 8, just after the U.S. and Iran were engaging each other with whatever military assets they have. Nor has there been single suspicious activity. Why is there even a single Republican who hasn’t helped provide targeting information on Tehran to the U.S. government?

n evening of drinking with his live-in girlfriend turned into arguing. She wanted to leave, but he blocked the door and refused to let her go. When he passed out, she called the police who charged him with aggravated kidnapping. He was a veteran who had been stationed around the world and in several combat zones.

Veterans Court admitted him after a battery of tests and pleading guilty to felony charges. Veterans Court sentenced him to a rigorous rehabilitation rather than a prison sentence of between 15 years to life.

The motto of Veterans Court is “We do not lie, cheat, or steal.”

After 37 years of “being a cop” and 25 years as a hostage negotiator, in 2015 Unified Police Department assigned Greg Smith of Stansbury Park to be the only Compliance Detective for the then-new Veterans Court.

Detective Greg Smith of Stansbury Park helps veterans in trouble with the law get their life back.

Detective Greg Smith points to a patch he wore as a SWAT member.
On Feb. 7, 1984, while spacewalking over the Persian Gulf, astronaut Bruce McCandless II became the first human to maneuver freely in space. McCandless became the first person to move himself in space using a jetpack-like apparatus, which he called a “tethered space vacuum suit.” The suit allowed him to fly up to 320 feet away from the space shuttle Challenger, which was orbiting Earth. McCandless’ spacewalk lasted for 64 minutes and covered a distance of nearly 2,000 feet. He used a combination of gas jets to propel himself and a thruster to change direction. Despite the initial success, McCandless’ experiment was not without its challenges. The thrusters did not work as intended, and the spacewalk was limited by the tethered lines connecting him to the Challenger. Nevertheless, McCandless’ spacewalk opened the door for future spacewalks and the development of more advanced spacewalk technologies.

Of course, the story doesn’t end there. In 2021, a private spacewalking company, Axiom Space, announced plans to send private citizens on spacewalks to perform maintenance and scientific research. The company’s first mission, Axiom Mission 1, is scheduled for launch in 2022. The mission will include three private citizens, including a former NASA astronaut, who will perform a spacewalk while on the International Space Station.

So, while McCandless’ spacewalk may have been limited by technology and safety concerns, it paved the way for future spacewalks and opened up new possibilities for human exploration in space.

Homeowners can get a 15% discount on the purchases of books they purchase from the giving tree project. Again, there is no official protocol that anyone should contribute to help offset the cost of school supplies that are purchased by public school teachers. But, if a group of friends want to help teachers with their lists, they can donate books and share the expense with others. As long as a group of friends can spread the expense, they can purchase books for teachers without breaking the bank. It’s not just about finding the best books for students; it’s about giving back to the community, something teachers cannot do on their own.

For the past several years, eight friends have used the giving tree project to help offset the cost of books for children in need. The giving tree’s goal is to find a book that’s a guest in this house, but has no name. She may technically have followed those. Then she saw envelopes on the little sideboard. Her hand began to tremble as she opened the envelope. Inside she crumpled to the floor. Her neatly typed name on a slim sheet of paper wasn’t what she was looking for. She had crumpled to the floor. Tooele County features some of the most dramatic and diverse landforms on Earth. There are 11,000 foot-high peaks, an inland sea, verdant valleys, and a mysterious desert with a bizarre expanse of white salt. The only people who knew about the place were the Native Americans who lived there, and a few white explorers during the early 1800s. But that all changed in September 1846. That year the Donner- Reed Party, while trying a shortcut to California, passed through the county and nearly perished in the Great Salt Lake Desert. Three years later, a handful of Mormon pioneer families left Salt Lake Valley and built a meager encampment in Settlement Canyon above today’s Tooele City. Soon, others followed, and a community emerged on the edge of the Great Basin frontier that was populated by individualistic and energetic settlers who managed to thrive in an environment fraught with hardship. Their story, and many others, are found inside this History of Utah’s Tooele County. Learn about how the pioneers ingeniously built their lives in the wilderness; the wild mining days in Ophir, Mercur and Jacob City; the Pony Express Trail; the glorious beaches and resorts along the southern shore of the Great Salt Lake, and more.

Happiness

Every single person is happy, yet at the same time, everyone suffers. Poets, heroes, saints and ordinary men must face the same dilemmas. Across time and across cultures, every culture has all of these, and more. Everyone today seems to be in search of something—something that is always just out of their reach, something that is difficult to describe, something that is a little different from what they thought they wanted. Happiness is a term that is difficult to define, but not because it is a vague or fuzzy word. Happiness is a term that is difficult to define because it is a word that is used in different ways by different people.

The Life of the Skies

Birding at the End of Time

Throughout most of human history, birds have been an essential part of life, and as a consequence of culture. The sacred art of hunting, the sacred art of fishing, their subjects were often depicted in art and sculpture. In many parts of the world, birds are revered as symbols of life, fertility, and the hunt. In many parts of the world, birds are revered as symbols of life, fertility, and the hunt. Dream Catchers

Legend, Lore and Artifacts

The First “Dream catchers” were woven from string, corded or braided, and then suspended from the top of a frame, usually a wooden or metal ring. The dream catcher was designed to catch the stage of sleep known as “REM” (rapid eye movement) sleep, which is when dreams are most common and vivid. The dream catcher is an ancient Native American symbol of protection.
