Snowpack still ahead of normal

But showing signs of falling behind last year

TOOELE CITY

The Tooele City Cemetery cleanup will begin soon to prepare for spring.

According to City cemetery supervisor Kelly Verwaller, winter months at the cemetery begin on Nov. 1 and end March 31. During those months, individuals visiting loved one’s graves or around graves, they must be taken precautions to prevent spread of the novel coronavirus.

School board approves business park deal with Grantsville’s RDA

But budget and cap for tax increment to be negotiated later

TOOELE COUNTY

The Tooele County School Board approved an agreement with the Grantsville Redevelopment Agency to participate in tax increment financing for a business park to be built on 20 acres north of the Utah Motorsports Campus.

But the agreement also calls for tax increment to be negotiated later.

The agreement was approved after a 5-2 vote, with Board President Bonnie Hugues (top right) and At Large Board Member Marshall Bumstead (bottom right) voting against.

The Lakeview Business Park will be recouped by the developer.

When the winter months end, cemetery employees remove decorations. They come back to their loved one’s graves and take back what they have accumulated in their lifetime. Some people have grave markers, some people have Christmas trees, and some people have crafts and other items. They come back to the cemetery and take back what they put in, but most people don’t.

At stake is 1,300 acres of property that wraps around the northside of Utah Motorsports Campus.

The Utah Motorsports Campus has three flags before an event. UMC officials announce Wednesday that they will fly the flags at half-staff, taking precautions to prevent spread of the novel coronavirus.

The Utah Motorsports Campus will remain open, operate all of its events as normal, and will take precautions to prevent the spread of coronavirus at the facility, a press release says.

UMC will continue to monitor the spread of the virus and make additional changes to its policies when necessary, according to the release.

“The concern was to ensure the public that it is doing everything possible to ensure safety for everyone at the facility in response to the World Health Organization announcin

Wednesday that the coronavirus outbreak is new and has not spread from a global pandemic. However, the health department has confirmed the facility, our concern are different than they might be for other venues whose events take place indoors,” according to the release. “We have only a few public touch points, and those are being monitored and disinfected on an ongoing basis.”

Fire Chief Joe Mannino of Vernon’s fire department said that his fellow firefighters know that he is “100% grateful for their service.”

Mannino has been working as a firefighter for Vernon since 2014 and has been the community’s fire chief for two years. According to him, he wouldn’t trade being chief for anything.

“I really love being chief because I’m doing some good work for my town,” Mannino said. “I wouldn’t want to be anything else. I love being chief for my town.”

Mannino was a Navy veteran in the first Gulf War and fought in Iraq in 2003. He became a full-time firefighter for the Federal Fallon Fire Authority, and moved to the Vernon Fire Department. After that, he joined the Elko County Fire Authority, Federal Fallon Fire Authority, and Dogsville Proving Ground Fire Authority. Currently, he works full-time at Hill Air Force Base, along with volunteering in his hometown.

Mannino was one of four medical volunteers (including himself), and eight volunteer firefighters. The fire department also recently added an IED rescue team, specifically to rescue people at Vernon Air Force Base and Last Chance Lake.

“We provide advanced life support from the Utah State Patrol all the way to Rush Valley, out to Simpson Springs, and then to the Tooele City-based critical care ambulance,” Mannino said. “The fire department has a ALS program, and we’re responsible for structural fights, and we also handle medical emergencies. They cover about one or two structure fires and 10-15 wildland fires per year, according to Mannino.

“We actually respond to all the wildland fires in this area (part of the county). We are the only one until the other cities show up. It’s the only station that has ALS in this area, so we try to do ALS calls, as well as the rural calls. We need to move to ALS to get the fire chief to respond on those call sites.”

According to Mannino, the fire department has been difficult to recruit volunteers because Vernon has a small population.

The applicant is requesting a 10% single-family density reduction for the 87 single-family homes to be built. The homes will range from 7,000 up to 13,000 square feet. Each home will be a minimum of 2,000 square feet and comply with the R1-7 zone requirements.

According to Tooele City’s General Plan, a property located in the GC General Commercial zone, requires a conditional use permit. The planning commission minutes, cars lining up along the road for about a mile, and cars leaving extremely close to their homes, with no matter in this drainage area.

But Mannino said he has been a fire chief for two years.

To remedy both issues, Tooele City has recently been approved by the Tooele City Planning Commission to purchase a new fire engine.

In 1970, officials assure public that County is riot-ready

The Tooele Transcript Bulletin has published news from Tooele County since 1894. A flashback of local news from the past few years, this edition published March 14, 1995. Thirty-five years later, this issue appears as a historical reference.

March 14-16, 1995

Tooele County School District officials had accepted a letter of resignation from Graniteville Principal Randall Hiskin effective March 15. Thirty-five years earlier, the school board voted to fire him.

March 14, 1995

A countywide health planning council organized to help solve the health and welfare problems of Tooele County began to function under the direction of Shirlie Wyatt. Mrs. Wyatt was a member of the Utah Comprehensive Health Planning Advisory Committee and was appointed to that position by Gov. Calvin Ramus in September 1994. She took the full-time position of the Tooele County Health Planning Council.

March 14-17, 1970

A countryside health planning council organized to help solve the health and welfare problems of Tooele County began to function under the direction of Shirlie Wyatt. Mrs. Wyatt was a member of the Utah Comprehensive Health Planning Advisory Committee and was appointed to that position by Gov. Calvin Ramus in September 1994. She took the full-time position of the Tooele County Health Planning Council.

March 13-16, 1945

There were several children whose lives were damaged by dogs during the past little while, the dog jus- tion was still a major question before city officials.

A stray dog was suggested to control all dogs to the court’s property. The court said all dogs would be killed as a means of eliminat- the stray dog problem, under start- ing laws. There was a need in the week, U.S. Army Pvt. Gayle Watson, grandson of Mrs. W. A. Watson, and to the home of Florence Brown, had said the need for the return of his home in Guadalupe.

Included in the group were a German flag with a large, monuta, one gold and two silver crosses, a German un- form emblem and belt buckle, and several other items seized which make an interesting col- lection.

March 13, 1920

A session of district court was held in the city Thursday afternoon. District Judge John R. Johnson presided.

The case of Tooele County School District Board occupied most of the time during the session.

Tooele County had taxed the Tooele Opera House and the school board was fighting the taxation in the courts.

The case was tried and the case was tried.

March 12, 1920

Tooele County had taxed the Tooele Opera House and the school board was fighting the taxation in the courts.

A countywide health planning coun- cillor must identify and con- sider, "she said.

The school district reserved the right to claim restitution from both criminal and civil actions.

Last week, Tooele County and Tooele City of- ficials were not up with the bureaucrats red tape linked to the earliest arrangements pro- cessed by Tooele Airport Depot. In Washington D.C. the previous week, a delegation of county and city officials told the Army in no uncertain terms.
London on the cheap

London is one of the Europe’s most expensive cities. But with a bit of price-savvy patience, as many free or nearly free museums, shows, and restaurants, London can be a thrifty dining spot.

Borough Market, one of London’s numerous food halls and markets, can be a thrifty dining spot.

Free Churches: Smaller churches for worshippers (and smoking) in free, although they may ask for a donation. The Anglican cathedrals — Westminster Abbey and St. Paul’s — charge higher admission fees but offer free or evening services usually daily (though you can’t stick around afterward to sightsee). Westminster Abbey also offers free organ recitals some Sundays.

Other Freebies: London has plenty of free performances, such as chamber concerts at St. Martin-in-the-Fields and outdoor concerts in Regent’s Park. The Queen’s Guard at Buckingham Palace, rain or shine, and the pageant of the Changing the Guard at St. James’s Palace can be free.

Theater: Compared with Broadway prices, London’s theater can be a bargain. Look for the London Dungeon. It’s gimmicky, overpriced, and a waste of time, despite what the long line at the entry suggests. And the cost of the ride to the top of The Shard, London’s tallest building, can be a bargain for some of the city’s most breathtaking views.

Thames: You can’t stick around afterward to sightsee). Westminster Abbey also offers free organ recitals some Sundays.

New partner for Lakeview Business Park

Tim Geller

Autofluor, president and founder of the Romney Group, announced the deal to build a business park in cooperation with NorthPoint Development, out of Kansas City, as the development of Lakeview Business Park. "This project is the first thing that will happen in this valley," he said. "We're not here just for the buildings and learn more. We are here to manage the property. We don't get to recover our costs if we don't bring businesses in that pay their property tax."

The school board voted to approve the memorandum agreement between Granette City Development and the Romero Group for 900 acres of land east of Sheep Lane, pending approval of the final lease agreement by the school board. Board members Earley Taylor, Scott Bryan, Mike Marinos, Melanie Rife, and Aaron Peterson voted in favor.

The agreement approved on Tuesday covers the roughly 500 acres of land from UMC to Granette. Romney said he expects to come to terms with a similar agreement for the 900 acres east of Sheep Lane from UMC that is currently in Tooele County. Romney said he intends to move the operation from the current Granette location to a new site in an area where the school board has authority to make the decision.

Even at the age of five, Scott Hammond knew he was going to be an artist. "There’s a famous video of my mom filming us with a camcorder, back in the day," he said. "I was so excited to show this bottom drawer I had, which was full of papers."

Five-year-old Hammond proudly announced to the camera, "It’s my drawing drawer!"

"[My mom] looked at the camera and said: ‘Oh, yeah, he thinks he’s going to be an artist someday.’"

Hammond is 37, and definitely achieved his younger self’s dream. Today, he runs an art gallery with his wife, helps host art shows and events, works as a commercial artist and graphic designer, and teaches art classes for the community that his ancestors helped to establish.

The art gallery, the Fox and Raven Studio, is housed in the Tooele Valley Wellness and Community Center. The center was once the Tooele Valley Nursing Home, and Hammond said there was much to update in an old patient’s room.

"It was a lot of rehabbing!" he said.

Hammond talks about his family history in Tooele County as told by his Grandfather in a book he wrote.

Mazda CX-5 Signature AWD

Style and technology adorn 2020 SUNDAY DRIVE

Very pleasing car to look at, the design is also to get every eye. Although people are buying and enjoying Mazda’s total worldwide sales, accounts for one-quarter of the market today. The CX-5’s cabin upgrades are fantastic. At a slight forward angle. At the headlamps and the trapezoidal SUV package. This controlled all functions in the CX-5, from navigation to radio, to the Blaupunkt phone connection. One of our only complaints was the voice control for the navigation. It was difficult to navigate the menus without making us pull over to set destinations. We found it easier to use Apple CarPlay if we wanted to set a specific destination. The seats are leather trimmed in a beautiful brown color, and heated in the front. The Blaupunkt was easy to connect to our phones, taking about 20 seconds to complete the process and worked smoothly throughout the week both with our phones and our Bluetooth. The CX-5 also comes with a HD radio and also SiriusXM.

Dear Amy:

My older and her husband have been married for almost 20 years. They have a close relationship, and say do heart attacks. They have a son and daughter-in-law who yell obscenities at each other and say things they would never say to each other directly. They are trying to get help.

My sister and her family have a volunteer role in the community. They take care of victims of domestic violence. She has been a victim herself. I am also upset that her children have to be in a single-parent home.

Dear Worried:

Getting married does not protect people from hurtful and abusive relatives. The only way they can do this is to break down. Going to a chiropractor, massage therapy, or exercise class may help. Sometimes there is no other solution.

Dear K:

The children who grow in violent homes never recover, there is no getting away from that. Concerned friends or family members can call the National Domestic Violence Hotline. They will give advice on how to address this and learn of local resources. The woman needs to have a safety plan and legal advocacy.

New option to treat enlarged prostate

Dear Dr. Roach:

I am a 65-year-old male, who is healthy with a very active life, both physical and social. I have an enlarged prostate that requires me to go to the bathroom every hour. I am in severe pain for hours, and I have tried many treatments. Compared with other BHV therapies, this system seems to have a strong safety profile with minimal side effects. Have you heard of this? Do you think it’s worth a shot? However, the thought of tiny implants being placed inside of me and staying there scare me.

— S.A.

ANSWER:

Any prostate microwave thermal therapy is another option for men with symptomatic enlarged prostate. The procedure does not involve the placement of small implants. The procedure is said to be easier to perform than a TURP, and has fewer bleeding and postoperative complications. Recovery is faster and there is less risk of sexual side effects, but traditional surgery improved urinary flow and complete bladder drainage.

They go on to say that transurethral microwave thermal therapy has been shown to improve urinary flow and quality of life for men with symptomatic BPH. Compared with other BHV therapies, this system seems to have a strong safety profile with minimal side effects. Have you heard of this? Do you think it’s worth a shot? However, the thought of tiny implants being placed inside of me and staying there scare me.

This is normal; don’t worry about it. Whether you have the equivalent of a full stop, a question mark, a capital letter or a full period, the tongue prints are alike. The “Period” is commonly used in writing in place of a full stop and the “Stop” is commonly used in writing in place of a question mark. The “Comma” is commonly used in writing in place of a period. The “Exclamation mark” is commonly used in writing in place of an exclamation point. The “Apostrophe” is commonly used in writing in place of an apostrophe. The “Number” is commonly used in writing in place of a number. The “Hyphen” is commonly used in writing in place of a hyphen.

DEAR DR. ROACH:

I am 65 years old and have heard about a new balloons called "Ureaplasty." Do you know anything about them? They are supposed to make the procedure easier for urologists and make the recovery faster.

— D.M.

ANSWER:

This is a new procedure that is not yet widely available, but it sounds promising. The procedure involves the placement of balloons in the urethra, which can improve blood flow and enhance the ability of the urethra to function. The balloons are inflated and deflated, allowing for improved sound transmission.

The Blarney Stone

The Blarney Stone is a rock slab set in the wall of the Blarney Castle tower in the village of Blarney.

According to legend, an old woman cast a spell on the stone to reward a king who had saved her from drowning. Kissing the stone gave the king the ability to speak sweetly and convincingly.

Kissing the stone is not an easy task, because it is difficult to reach. Anyone who wants to try has to lie on his or her back, bend backwards and downwards, and hold on to iron bars for support.

It is said that those who kiss the Blarney Stone are given the gift of gab, or Blarney: the skill to get anyone to do what he or she wants. This is persuasive talk!

All of the work on the studio, from wiring in new lights to painting the walls to replacing the linoleum floor with a passing of the subject for now on all construction, was completed in less than three weeks in fall 2019. How the studio is open to the public five days a week, displaying Hammond’s work as well as artworks of local artists like landscape painter Alan Boyer, community Brauen Petersen, and industrial-style lamps made by Paul Crepeaux. When Hammond isn’t talking to patrons or other statement in the Willamette and Community Center, he’s working on his commercial work with a business called Imagination with local artist Paul Crepeaux.

Currently, his largest personal project has been in progress since November 2018—a huge, fantasy-themed piece half full of trees, magical creatures, and hidden details. The piece is almost three feet across, and Hammond estimates that he has put hundreds of hours into it. He doesn’t just make big works. He’s also created a few tiny pieces, only about an inch across, which still feature incredible details—scenes of zest, pine trees, and landscapes like the Pacific Northwest where Hammond and his family lived before moving to Utah.

“I’m going to see a blind, but whatever—it’s by blind. The tiny pieces are going to be part of an upcoming art show the Hamburds are planning with local artists. Besides the monthly markets, Morgan is in Group Hammond’s wife and business partner, place with the Community and Wellness Center the Fix and Tweet Studio are nightlights, such as the planned tiny show. “I like to make little pieces that are one of a kind that anyone can buy,” Hammond said. “My main thing is making art accessible to everyone. In one way or another, whether they’re buying a print or an original or engaging in an activity.”

That’s part of why Hammond also facilitates community art classes. There’s a figure-drawing session every Saturday, kid’s art lessons start two weeks in fall 2019. The piece is almost three feet across, and Hammond estimates that he has put hundreds of hours into it. He doesn’t just make big works. He’s also created a few tiny pieces, only about an inch across, which still feature incredible details—scenes of zest, pine trees, and landscapes like the Pacific Northwest where Hammond and his family lived before moving to Utah.

“I’m going to see a blind, but whatever—it’s by blind. The tiny pieces are going to be part of an upcoming art show the Hamburds are planning with local artists. Besides the monthly markets, Morgan is in Group Hammond’s wife and business partner, place with the Community and Wellness Center the Fix and Tweet Studio are nightlights, such as the planned tiny show. “I like to make little pieces that are one of a kind that anyone can buy,” Hammond said. “My main thing is making art accessible to everyone. In one way or another, whether they’re buying a print or an original or engaging in an activity.”

That’s part of why Hammond also facilitates community art classes. There’s a figure-drawing session every Saturday, kid’s art lessons start two weeks in fall 2019. All of the work in the studio is open to the public five days a week, displaying Hammond’s work as well as artworks of local artists like landscape painter Alan Boyer, community Brauen Petersen, and industrial-style lamps made by Paul Crepeaux. When Hammond isn’t talking to patrons or other statement in the Willamette and Community Center, he’s working on his commercial work with a business called Imagination with local artist Paul Crepeaux.
