Two accidents occurred over the weekend in Tooele County — one caused two deaths, the other a Tooele County resident to a nearby hospital.

On Friday morning at about 8 a.m., dispatchers put out a call of a crash, on foot at 5-60 state route 101, according to Nick Street with the Utah Highway Patrol. A couple was traveling northbound on state Route 201. The most damage was done to a cement mixer, being pulled by a truck and trailer, which hit the right side of the cement mixer, pushing up the right side of the semi-truck.

The driver was transported to the hospital with no life threatening injuries. He was the only one transported to a hospital.

All of the other persons involved were either unharmed or only had minor injuries. The road was blocked for about two hours and traffic was diverted onto state Route 201.

The other accident occurred on Sunday around 6:00 a.m., according to Street.

A couple was removing southeast on state route 196, the Skull Valley Highway, near milepost 23 in a white 2002 Ford F-150 pickup. The woman, who was driving, drifted off the road to the left, traveled approximately 100 feet then came back onto the roadway. The overcorrected after entering the roadway and reached the right side of the road, according to Street.

Both the driver and passengers were not injured and were both cited from the crash, according to Street. They were pronounced dead on scene, according to Street. Drugs were located at the scene and troopers believe they were a contributing factor in the crash, according to the Utah Highway Patrol.

Ginsburg’s death puts rules of law and the Constitution on November ballot

The death of the liberal icon Ruth Bader Ginsburg, greatly expands the political debate over who should fill her seat on the Supreme Court. The issue has been discussed for years, but now in the wake of the death of Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg, the debate has become more urgent and more heated. The issue has raised questions about the role of the Supreme Court and the constitutional Ginsburg’s defense of the liberal interpretation of the Constitution, which has led her to be referred to as the “Notorious RBG.” The death of Ginsburg has opened up a vacancy on the Supreme Court, which has sparked a political battle over who should fill the seat.

The battle has raged on for months, with Democrats and Republicans on opposite sides of the issue. The Democrats have called for a vote on the appointment of a new justice, while the Republicans have argued that the seat should remain vacant until the next presidential election.

The debate has been further complicated by the fact that the Supreme Court is currently split 5-4 between the liberal and conservative justices. With Ginsburg’s passing, the court is now 5-3, with a conservative majority.

The debate has sparked a national conversation about the role of the Supreme Court in our democracy. Some have called for the court to be reformed, while others have argued that it should remain as it is. The death of Ginsburg has added a new dimension to this conversation, with some calling for a more active role for the court in protecting individual rights.

The battle over Ginsburg’s seat is likely to continue for some time, with both sides entrenched in their positions. The ultimate outcome of this battle will have a significant impact on the future of the Supreme Court and the direction of our democracy.

Democrats — between the left and the very old moderates who remain — into sharp focus for voters. And should Trump nominate a federal appeals judge, Democrats would again be compelled to attack him because their candidates would lack the experience they need to defeat him during their last-ditch confirmation hearings.

Judge Barrett handled her well with grace, respect and style. Dick Durbin of Illinois witness- ed if the confirmed Barrett would be an “orthodox Catholic,” and Sen. Jesse Franklin guessed that “this dogma lives loudly and proud.”

That didn’t poll well. In the round, Biden’s running mate, Sen. Kamala Harris of California, a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, asked Barrett to explain if she considered herself a “constitutional originalist.”

The confirmation was merciful in her personal story. But as Ginsburg clearly made clear in her last year, as a liberal justice — she didn’t have to wear the jury, but if you’re going to have to wear the other shoe. She’s not the ideal person to engage with people who worked for her. In fact, it should be considered one’s patriotic duty to challenge her con- structive debates issue while assessing the interests of a party, a candidate or a person potentially high court.

The human mind doesn’t do nuance very well and generally finds more comfort in black and white than in shades of gray. But American voters are more often than not the decision-makers in the U.S. Supreme Court decision-making. And the people did decide. The Supreme Court election. And the people did decide. BUFFS BREAK SIX-YEAR DROUGHT ON STALLIONS’ FLOOR

The Stansbury Cowboys broke a six-year drought at Tooele High School on Friday night when they defeated the Buffaloes by a score of 22-16.

Stansbury was lead by the strong play of quarterbackecer Ingalls, who had an impressive night on the field. He completed 21 of 25 passes for 235 yards, finding wide receiver Richardson 12 times for 176 yards and two touchdowns. The Cowboys also had a solid rushing attack, with running back Latino running for 137 yards on 18 carries.

On the defensive side, the Cowboys were led by linebacker Durango, who had 11 tackles and two sacks. Safety Martinez also had a strong game, intercepting two passes and breaking up another in the end zone.

The victory was the first for Stansbury against Tooele since 2014, breaking a streak of six consecutive losses. The Buffaloes had been looking to rebound after a disappointing season, but the loss to the Cowboys was a tough blow for their playoff hopes.

The Stansbury Cowboys will look to continue their winning ways next week when they travel to face Rocky Mountain. The Cowboys are currently in third place in Region 10, just a half-game behind second-place Desert Hills.

Volleyball The format of the upcoming state volleyball tournament was thrown into question last week when Utah Gov. Gary Herbert placed the city of Orem under “orange” COVID-19 restrictions. That means Oquirrh Valley University will no longer be able to serve as host, and administrators are working to find a solution.

Monday's Warm Cocoa

By Lynn Butterfield

In 1740 Wesley broke with the Moravians on some points and started the Methodist movement in Great Britain. The Methodists were an outgrowth of the Pietistic movement of the mid-seventeenth century, which emphasized personal piety and a direct relationship with God. The Methodists were especially popular among the lower classes, who were attracted to the simplicity and directness of their message. The Methodists were also known for their emotional and spiritual experiences, which were often accompanied by powerful feelings of joy and幸福. These experiences were seen as a direct connection with God, and were a source of great strength and comfort for those who experienced them. The Methodists were also known for their emphasis on education and literacy, and they played a significant role in spreading the message of Christianity to those who had not had access to formal education before. The Methodists were also known for their opposition to slavery, and they were instrumental in the abolition of slavery in Great Britain. The Methodist movement had a profound impact on the history of Christianity, and it continues to be an important force in the world today.
Our Repeating Calendars

There are 365.24 days in each year. To compensate for the near-1/4 extra day, our calendar adds leap years (the addition of one day in February) every four years, however, the extra time each year is just over 1/4 minutes short of 1/4 of a day, century years are not leap years unless divisible by 400. Therefore, the year 2000 is a leap year, whereas the year 1900 is not.

There can be only 14 calendar patterns with these starting on each day of the week, or a leap or non-leap year. Any calendar repeats in a minimum span of six years and a maximum span of 40 years. All the 14 patterns occur at least once in a minimum span of 23 years and a maximum span of 40 years.

Here are all 14 calendars and the years they apply to from 1900 through 2020.

  - Landscape Painting from Tierra del Fuego to the Arctic
  - A bold and richly illustrated study of the stylistic evolution of landscape painting in the Americas, this work follows the nations in the Americas as they gained independence in the early 19th century and the pictorial landscape tradition that emerged. Landscape painting has become the primary medium for articulating conceptions of land and nation in the development of North and South American cultural identity. Picturing the Americas offers a comprehensive overview of the development of this genre on both American continents.
