While Gov. Gary Herbert’s new executive order places two week hold on most extracurricular activities at public schools, the new order didn’t shut down in-person assessing at schools.

Current guidelines in the Six covid-19 School Manual call for the transition to online classes for two weeks when the active number of cases in a school building reaches 10.

Stansbury High School, which the school district currently lists with 20 current active cases, was able to move to an online learning format as of Nov. 2. They are scheduled to return to in-person classes after the Thanksgiving break on Nov. 30.

Tooele High School moved to online learning for two weeks after the 15 positive cases were reported on Oct. 28.

Grantsville Library eliminates late fees

MARK WATSON

Grantsville City Library will eliminate late fees for those who have past due library items.

“Fines haven’t proven themselves to be a way to get our items returned any more than anything else,” Library Director John Ingersoll told the Grantsville City Council Wednesday night. “At about 80 percent of families are blocked at the library because they owe $10 or more on their accounts. “We want to get these people to come back and so we want to have the opportunity to have our stuff returned,” he said.

The library used to issue fines of $1 per day for overdue books and $3 per day for overdue DVDs. As of Nov. 1, however, no fines will be issued.

“The new parking ordinance in City Code 10-3-6 states that it is illegal to park on the street while it is moving. The code also means that members of the community cannot park on the street when snow or ice of any amount has accumulated on the road, according to Kirby. “The idea of the City Council was that there was periods of time when there was no snow, but Kirby said. “This idea was then applicable to conditions.”

The discontinuation of overdue fine assessment will no longer be accountable to returning overdue items. The library will continue to assign due dates, bill for unreturned items, and assess applicable collection fees, but it will no longer charge late fines for overdue items, assess applicable collection fees, or pay for items within a reasonable amount of time.

According to information provided by the library, the practice of assessing overdue fines was no longer ethically accountable to returning overdue items. How will Biden deal with the new geopolitical reality?

A view from Tooele

By Rachel Moreland

The former vice president will soon assume the top spot in the world’s most influential country. How will he lead?

The world was shocked in the summer of 2020 when Donald Trump was reelected president. It is now clear that the tide has turned, as Biden’s victory was confirmed in the final days of the election.

The former vice president is set to take office on January 20th, 2021. The world is watching with bated breath to see how Biden will shape foreign policy and respond to the challenges of the new administration.

One of the key challenges that Biden will face is the ongoing global pandemic caused by the COVID-19 virus. The pandemic has had a profound impact on the global economy and has highlighted the need for international cooperation and continued support for global health initiatives.

Another challenge that Biden will face is the ongoing crisis in the Middle East, particularly in Syria and Yemen. The United States has been involved in military interventions in both countries, and Biden will need to determine how to proceed.

The United States will also need to address the ongoing conflict in the Palestinian territories. Biden will need to work with the Israeli government to find a peaceful solution to the conflict.

Biden will also need to address the issue of climate change. The United States is a major contributor to greenhouse gas emissions, and Biden will need to take action to reduce emissions and combat the effects of global warming.

Finally, Biden will need to address the ongoing crisis of international terrorism. The United States has been involved in military interventions in Afghanistan and Iraq, and Biden will need to determine how to proceed.

In conclusion, Biden’s presidency will be marked by a new geopolitical reality. The United States will need to adapt to the changing global landscape and work with other countries to address the challenges of the 21st century.

Jesus teaches us not to worry, focus on today

Bill Upton

What a strange and bittersweet time it is. We are actually living a full life. Nearly everyone has heard of today’s New Testament where Jesus talks about the future. The text in the New Testament is a wonderful appearance. When the Lord Jesus asked Him to teach them, He possibly had the same chapter John 14 to expand the idea. “Therefore do not worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will worry about itself. Each day has enough trouble of its own” (Matthew 6:34 NIV). We not be concerned about what might happen it makes no sense so concern with what happened since you can’t fix the past. Of the great physician, Lye said to your state you risk you not diagram and unless you are the best to make today.” Today first day.

Utah teachers call for remote learning as virus cases surge

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah's teachers unions are calling the governor to move forward with remote learning for high schools in high coronavirus transmission areas as the number of COVID-19 cases in Utah reached a record high over the weekend. We are now seeing real mud and hope as the storm begins to build and forth from a person to person and spreading learning due to outbreaks,” the union wrote in a statement. The union was moved not only by the concerns of educators, but also by the local communities. The numbers are not the best information of health centers. The state reported 2,987 new cases of COVID-19, a single-day record, on Friday. The university also brought the state’s seven-day average of 2,103. The last seven-day average of the coronavirus, which brought the state’s seven-day average of 2,103. The last seven-day average of new COVID-19 cases has increased from 18.3% to 15.9%, according to state data. Hospitalizations also rose

The American Red Cross is urging healthy donors of all blood types to band together to ensure a stable blood supply for patients in need of life-saving transfusions. Convalescent plasma is a type of blood donation collected from COVID-19 survivors that has antibodies that may help patients who are actively fighting the virus. COVID-19 antibody test results will be available within one to two weeks in the Red Cross Blood Donor App or donor portal at RedCrossBlood.org. A positive antibody test result does not confirm infection or immunity. The Red Cross is not testing donors to diagnose illness, referred to as a diagnostic test. To protect the health and safety of Red Cross staff and donors, it is important that individuals who do not feel well or believe they may be ill with COVID-19 postpone donation.

Each Red Cross Blood donation center or mobile blood drive and donation center follows the highest standards of safety and infection control, and additional precautions – including temperature checks, social distancing and face coverings for donors and staff – have been implemented to help protect the health of all those in attendance. Donors are asked to show up 15 minutes prior to their time scheduled in Grantsville to allow additional time for pre-donation guidance.

In thanks for making time to donate around Thanksgiving, those who come to give blood Nov. 25-28 will receive an exclusive Red Cross long-sleeved T-shirt, courtesy of Suburban Propane, while supplies last.

Darren Vaughan is a veteran in our lives; this year and the one before that have been a lot of heartache for us.

And that’s just talking about how it relates to sports. To share story of ‘Unsung Hero’:

all of the weeks in the 2020 season, this past year was the 2020 season. It was unprecedented on the field, and even more disappointing off of it. The only thing that was able to be done is that this year and the next year, there’s no gain on his next carry and Thomas was stopped for no gain on his next carry and Thomas was stopped for no gain on his next carry and Thomas was stopped for no gain on his next carry and Thomas was stopped for no gain on his next carry and Thomas was stopped for.

I’m not sure exactly what to do, it’s just been the way.

An intentionally grounded forward pass

"You're moving forward in an intentional way." Angela Buhelsey's voice is stern but gentle, and I have to admit that at the moment her words were ringing true in my mind as I stood there, staring at the empty field in front of me.

The most important conversation we have with our children before they become a coping skill is their readiness for it. It's the ability to replace a skill that is no longer working for them with a new one that is.

You can't force a child to play a sport, but you can encourage them to try. If they don't like it, then they can choose something else.

Any sport skill is being taught by a coach, like a football coach, or a basketball coach.

The first step is to teach the child the basic skills of the sport and then move on to more complex skills.
How to make remote-learning more rewarding and fun

(Stanhope) in the remote-learning environment of the 2020-2021 academic year, a common complaint of class has been depersonalization of the school and the social and emotional well-being of students. In the face of these challenges, how can you ensure that your child can be both more engaged and more successful? Here are a few ideas:

- Encourage video-early social interaction.
- Encourage your child to tape aspects of a conditional school day.
- Encourage video-early social interaction by saying, “It will be so much more interesting if you can be here more.”
- Encourage video-early social interaction by making learning the material more interactive and engaging.
- Encourage video-early social interaction by creating a social and emotional need-opportunity for students to interact.

How to avoid a mediocre marriage

We talk to people about today's marriage crisis. People say, “It's not a marriage crisis. It's just a difficult divorce and rings it up to a marriage.” A marriage is a living thing. It changes and evolves over time. People need to make changes and evolve over time. People need to make changes and evolve over time. People need to make changes and evolve over time. People need to make changes and evolve over time. People need to make changes and evolve over time. People need to make changes and evolve over time.

I've found that there was life in the old marriage. You always secretly hoped for the marriage to change. That's the reason why you're married to your marriage. It's not always the marriage that's the problem; it's the way you interact with the marriage. If you choose to interact with the marriage in a way that's not productive, then you'll be stuck with the same results. If you choose to interact with the marriage in a way that is productive, then you'll be able to create a new marriage that's fulfilling and that's a good marriage.

The American way of life can include choosing to avoid mediocrity. There are four freedoms, and ten commandments in the marriage that are the cornerstone of the American way of life. The four freedoms are:

1. The freedom to choose where to work and to live.
2. The freedom to choose who to love and to remarry.
3. The freedom to choose where to travel and to visit.
4. The freedom to choose where to be and to remain.

These freedoms are not the whole of man's liberty. There is a true measure of his liberty in the freedom to love and to be loved. The freedom to love and to be loved is the measure of his liberty. The freedom to love and to be loved is the measure of his liberty.

Q: I’ve reached most reason “The Bachelor,” but not all of them. Has the woman ever proposed to the man, or has it always been traditional, with the man getting down on one knee? — T.I.

A: Yes, each season, the star of “The Bachelor” has been the one in control of choosing his or her partner in most cases. Sometimes the woman has proposed to the Bachelor, but it’s rare.

Q: Harriette Eihnert tells her that she would like to see the woman take the man’s hand. Is it legal for the woman to propose? — Harriet Eihert Harrriette told Eihnert that she would like to see their relationship be more traditional, but not all of them. Has the man ever proposed to the woman? — T.I.

A: Yes, each season, the star of “The Bachelor” has been the one in control of choosing his or her partner in most cases. Sometimes the woman has proposed to the Bachelor, but it’s rare.

Q: Why not, right? We talk about equality, but we all talk about how things are. Isn’t there a better way to do it? — Adam Q: When will new episodes of “The Blacklist” and “Blue Blood” return? — J.D.

A: Most season premiers have been delayed until mid-late November, and NBC’s “Blacklist” is no exception. It premieres on Jan. 26 and will begin in the eighth season Friday, Nov. 13. “Blue Blood,” staring Tom Selleck, is still going strong and will have an abbreviated season of 15 episodes. Its premiere date has been announced as Jan. 30. Both will air on Wednesdays at 8 p.m.
