The number of new claims and continued claims for unemployment insurance continues, as noted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. For the week ending Nov. 28, 2020, initial unemployment claims were 8,856. Of those claims, 1,131 were considered new claims, while 7,725 were continuing claims. The 2019 weekly average of 28,168 new claims dropped from the previous week. That's a 23% decline.

Although declining, claims still continue their steady decline. For Tooele County the four week moving average of new unemployment claims was 46 for the week ending Oct. 4, according to the most recent data from the Department of Workforce Services. "While new claims are well below the historically high volume seen early in the pandemic, when the average new claims were over 28,000 filed per week," said Kevin Burt, a staff writer for the Transcript Bulletin.

Milne picked to lead Cache County’s economic development efforts

TIM GILLES
TOOELE CITY, Utah—Tooele County Commissioner Shawn Milne is headed to Cache County. Cache County Executive Craig Buttars announced the appointment of Milne as the new economic development director for Cache County, during the Cache County Council’s Dec. 1 meeting. It was the unanimous vote of the Utah State Association of Counties Commissioners and2Redevelopment Agency.

"Milne has overseen the economic development efforts of Tooele County since he was first elected to the County Commission eight years ago. He first directed the County’s economic development director position after the position was eliminated during the County’s financial crisis. He took on the economic development director’s duties.

"Prior to serving on the Tooele County Commission, Milne served on the Tooele City Commission for seven years and was also a member of the board of directors of the Tooele City Redevelopment Agency. Milne brought in a new economic development strategy that has not had an economic development director since his appointment.

"He will report directly to Buttars, the elected county executive. Cache County has not had a member county council with an elected economic development director.

"There are some similarities in the economic demographics of Tooele and Cache County, according to Milne. Cache County has a significant portion of its workforce that competes with Ogden and the Wasatch Front, much like Tooele County’s workforce that competes to Salt Lake County. Milne said.

"Part of his challenge in Cache County will be to create jobs that will raise the County’s median wage and keep graduating students employed in the county. Milne said. "We are very ambitious, but it’s a smaller territory than Tooele County. Cache Valley Economic Development Councils are Franklin County, Milne. Logan has their own economic development director, however, the Utah side of Cache Valley is 18 towns and municipalities to work with, according to Milne. Buttars said Milne officially starts his new job Dec. 7. Milne said he would initially work "a little here and there" in December as things wrap up as a County Commissioner before he took on his new position.

"Milne will eventually move to Cache County for at least Mondays through Fridays. He and his wife, Renee, work a commuting plan for weekends.

"Renee Milne works for a communications director for the county. Milne said. "Renee is known in occasion to be a little bit of an info-graphics guru. We will be among friends in Cache County."

"When Buttars said Milne would come, Milne’s wife, Shawn Buttars, smiled. "I’m looking forward to coming down and meeting the Cache County Commission’s second meeting in December and say, “a few words,”” Buttars said. Milne said the couple looks forward to working with the new council in the county.

Liquor regulator wants curbside, online alcohol sales

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah’s state liquor regulator wants to implement curbside pickup and online sales of alcohol in the state, but the state agency needs to change its rules to allow them.

Some state legislators are sympathetic about the idea, KSTU-TV reported Tuesday. The Utah Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control has said it believes curbside pickup and online sales would be implemented in the state.

"We think it will be a very common practice in the near future, he said. "It’s really about customer convenience and more options.

"The plan includes funding from the licensees to create a system and design an online ordering platform. Any potential state govern- ment money would not come until the 2021 legislative ses- sion starts in January. The legislature has been asked to reauthorize a $100,000 grant for the liquor division administrator from a federal grant for online ordering. The plan is in the middle of being drafted and includes funding from the licensees to create a system and design an online ordering platform. Any potential state govern- ment money would not come until the 2021 legislative ses- sion starts in January. The legislature has been asked to reauthorize a $100,000 grant for the liquor division administrator from a federal grant for online ordering.

Governers’ holiday menus include coronavirus ‘reset’ for the Constitution

DURING the pandemic, the notion of some of America’s governors serving up the Thanksgiving and the Christmas season as a technological fix, in the form of a ‘Great Reset,’ is hardly a myth. The idea that a crisis can be leveraged to advance a self-serving agenda -- as little as the ‘Great Reset’ is for economic policy -- has long held a place in mainstream discourse.

Rachel Marsden

Pandemic-leveraged ‘Great Reset’ is hardly a myth

Dear Mayor Winn,

Thank you so much for providing your perspective on what is happening in and around our community. You all have been working exceptionally hard to ensure that the people of Tooele County are taken care of during these dicey times. It appears that the Great Reset is about to happen in our community.

Sincerely,

Rachel Marsden

GUEST OPINION

The coming anti-COVID restriction backlash

It already seems clear that the American public has had enough of the restrictions. Yet the蒽escions of the Biden years will be a test of just how resilient the rest of the country is to the next round of COVID restraints. We can see the sentiment play out in the demonstrations last spring and a host of other resistance to lockdowns.

GUEST OPINION

Let’s not envision a more sustainable future

When the new virus first hit the United States, it played the virus for fear that it could find a prudent middle path that they haven’t been since the 1970s. As the pandemic enters its worst stage, the disease, imposing economic, social, religious, and political restrictions, has imposed a new normal on the American public, but not in a way that they would have chosen.

HARVARD HEALTH LETTER

Solutions to soothe sore, fragile gums

To-the-counter medications, toothpaste, and rinse.

Gum pain is hard to ignore. The aching, stinging sensation can linger for days and make eating unimaginable. If the pain is new, you may notice it signals an underlying condi- tion. As you search for answers, you can relieve pain with a number of these methods and over-the-counter options.

Sore gums causes

Some causes of sore gums are more common than others, and may be more likely to happen to you. For example, gum pain is common in people who don’t have Alzheimer’s.

Gums can be damaged by:

- Invasive tooth brushing. Irritation from brushing too vigorously can cause painful sores on gums.
- Bleeding gums. Gums can easily bleed if you brush too vigorously. This can irritate the gums, making them red, swollen, and prone to bleeding easily. Gum pain can also be caused by:
  - Invasive tooth brushing. Irritation from brushing too vigorously can cause painful sores on gums.
  - Bleeding gums. Gums can easily bleed if you brush too vigorously. This can irritate the gums, making them red, swollen, and prone to bleeding easily.

  - Bleeding gums. Gums can easily bleed if you brush too vigorously. This can irritate the gums, making them red, swollen, and prone to bleeding easily.

Sore gums risks

Some underlying causes of sore gums can have seri- ous health consequences. For example, periodontitis — advanced gum disease that extends well below the gum line — is not only relatively little painful and it can remain undetected for many years. Periodontitis is commonly called pyorrhea, which means an area in the mouth that allows the gums to become tender to touch and bleed easily. Gum pain can be caused by:

- Invasive tooth brushing. Irritation from brushing too vigorously can cause painful sores on gums.
- Bleeding gums. Gums can easily bleed if you brush too vigorously. This can irritate the gums, making them red, swollen, and prone to bleeding easily.

Sore gums treatments

Many causes of sore gum pain can be addressed by:

- Invasive tooth brushing. Irritation from brushing too vigorously can cause painful sores on gums.

Local plumbing business relocates on Main Street

Office space for rent by new owners of old police station

TOM GALLIN

The owners of the former Tooele City Police Station have been busy moving their plumbing business into the old building.

Gina Bush and Alan Smith, owners of All Types Plumbing, have moved their plumbing business into the building on September 30. All Types Plumbing has been in business since 1992, but Bush and Smith have opened the business in 2018 and had plans to move the business into the former police station.

Moving from a small building across the street, the couple put their house up for sale and began the journey into a new venture. Everything from their personal belongings to their tools were moved into the building. The couple also moved their pets into the building.

The couple said they were able to purchase the building at a good price. They also said they were able to move into the building quickly.

The couple said they were able to move into the building quickly. They were able to move into the building quickly because they were able to move in quickly. “The sun was just rising,” he said. “It was going to be really cool for the city to see the building recognized. The fire was just an anomaly.”

Originally, demolition was set to occur Monday, but delays were due to high winds and other factors. The hotel was built in 1921 and has been a fixture in downtown Tooele for many years. The company behind the project is a part of American West LLC, which plans to build four apartment buildings on the property and across the street, once the building is torn down.

“We are really looking forward to getting the apartments built, improving the two-block area, and making it look nicer,” Brett stated.

“It is unfortunate that because of the fire, the hotel will need to be torn down,” said Tooele City Mayor Debbie West. “It maintained too much damage to be able to be restored. Although I would have liked to have seen the building back to its original condition, I am looking forward to having the owners of the property construct a new beautiful building that will provide housing to our community.”

Order

“People are required to wear face masks when entering the store,” Herbert stated. “The state has expanded its mask mandate to include all food and retail establishments, as well as public transportation, because of the COVID-19 pandemic.”

Herbert also continued to call for a “hard reset” to lower case counts. Currently, Tooele County is in the High level of the index. At the high index level, face coverings are required and social gatherings are limited to 10 people or less, but the ban on gatherings with non-household members has been dropped.

During his live video, Herbert stated that the “Hard Reset” order is being extended to include schools.

“I am looking for a fundamental change in the way we provide housing to our community,” he said. “We can do better,” he said. “As part of a new health order, all participants in school extracurricular activities, including students, coaches, and staff, will be tested for COVID-19 every other week beginning on Nov. 30.

Previously, Herbert suspended extracurricular activities in the state of emergency order.

For school club sports, dance studios, and other simi- lar events, event coordinators must check symptoms of participants before every practice or event.

For businesses, the quarantine period of employees who have been exposed to the virus has been reduced.

They are now allowed to return to work within seven days if they have tested nega- tive for COVID-19 and have no symptoms of the virus.

Tooele's Anderson signs with York College

Tooele High senior Kerri Anderson signs a national Letter of Intent to play softball at York College, during a ceremony at her home on Dec. 24. Anderson hit .372 with 12 doubles and five home runs for the Tooele 10-19 Class 4A state championship team.

"That's when my work ethic as a person got even better," said Anderson. "She was giving it a virtual campus tour and had you to show yourself on a screen and show them your athletic ability. You can't show your personality or anything else about you — you just have to show your athletic ability on camera."

The school district, along with the Utah High School Activities Association, also released its Return-to-Play protocols for all winter sport basketball, wrestling, swimming and drill. The protocols mirror nutrition, symptom checking before all games, practices and team activities, as well as a prior to any team travel. Masks will be required for "all individuals in the competition facility who are not engaging in strenuous physical overtures," including players and coaches who are on the bench, and school-aged children in the stands are also required to stay out for social distancing reasons.

Coaches are also encouraged to allow junior and senior varsity athletes and assistant coaches to "help in the organization of games through the competition facility while at all levels of the tournament.

The personal reason behind a master printer's enthusiasm

"It’s the basis job I’ve ever had," says Paul Boman, "but I’ve never had a reason not to do what I do." Paul's career is that he absolutely loved typesetting. His experience is broad. He has worked for newspapers, magazines, and even a small company that makes tombstones. Paul's passion for typography is evident in every project he undertakes. His face still lights up like a child's on Christmas morning when he sees a beautiful piece of typography. He is the epitome of a master printer, always looking for ways to improve his craft and share it with others.

Paul's career is a testament to the importance of typography. It is not just about creating beautiful pieces of art, but also about conveying ideas and emotions in a way that is both elegant and effective. Paul's work is a reflection of his own personality, which is one of patience, dedication, and a deep love for his craft. He is always looking for ways to improve his work and share his knowledge with others. His passion for typography is infectious, and he is always willing to help others learn and grow in their craft.

The personal reason behind a master printer's enthusiasm is the realization that typography is not just a job, but a passion. It is a way to express oneself, to connect with others, and to share ideas in a way that is both beautiful and meaningful. Paul's work is a testament to the power of typography, and his enthusiasm is proof that anyone can love and excel in this art form.

LAWRENCE W. REED

The Constitution’s Role in Rights

My father was really into genealogy during his retirement, he spent countless weeks facing a constant barrage of non-virus-related deaths. He was able to assist him to remember. He is like feeling him in my home, whenever I want, spoken, etched into stone.

We mourned him virtually. My father died in May.

"The Constitution’s Role in Rights" by Lawrence W. Reed is an insightful essay on the importance of the Constitution in shaping our understanding of rights.

Reed argues that the Constitution is not just a list of rights, but a framework for understanding what rights are and how they should be protected. He points out that the Constitution's role in rights is not just to enumerate what rights we possess, but to provide a rule of law to ensure that those rights are protected and respected.

Reed emphasizes that the Constitution's role in rights is not limited to the United States. People around the world look to the Constitution as a model for protecting and promoting rights.

"The Constitution’s Role in Rights" is a must-read for anyone interested in the role of law and government in shaping the understanding and protection of rights.

The Right Thing

"Excuse Me, Real People and the Constitution's Role in Rights" by Steven S. Davey is an essay that explores the relationship between the Constitution and rights.

Davey argues that the Constitution is a living document that defines the rights and responsibilities of all Americans.

He points out that the Constitution's role in rights is not just to enumerate what rights we possess, but to provide a rule of law to ensure that those rights are protected and respected.

"The Right Thing" is a timely reminder of the importance of the Constitution in our lives and in shaping our understanding of rights.

"Even in times like these, we have reasons to be thankful" by Clayton M. Christensen is an essay that explores the idea of gratitude in times of difficulty.

Christensen argues that gratitude is a powerful tool for personal growth and for improving our relationships with others.

He points out that in times of difficulty, we often focus on what we don't have, rather than what we do have.

"Even in times like these, we have reasons to be thankful" is a reminder of the power of gratitude in times of difficulty.

KATHERINE MANSFIELD

By the time the station William went back to the slums for the second time, he was well into his thirtieth year, and his hair was thick and brown. He turned to look at the little Seagull floating in front of him, and saw a strange sight. It was like the sight of a real little Seagull floating in front of him, and the sight was so strange that he almost went mad, indeed, but it was not the sight that made him almost go mad, it was the feeling. He was almost mad, he was not mad, he was not mad, but he was almost mad, and he went on thinking about the feeling. He was almost mad, indeed, but he was not mad, he was not mad, and he went on thinking about the feeling. The feeling he had was strange, he had never felt anything like it before, and he was almost mad, indeed, but he was not mad, he was not mad, and he went on thinking about the feeling.
